IDLE MARCHERS MAKE PLEA AND DEPART CAPITAL

Army of 12,000 Jobless, Led by Priest, Quits City in Order.

HOOVER PLEDGES AID IN WHITE HOUSE TALK

Stirring Rites Held at Tomb of Unknown Soldier; 200 Are Stranded Here.

The army of American citizens that emphasized to President Hoover and Congress the need for alleviation of the economic depression last night left the city after a solemn tribute had been intoned by their leader, the Rev. James R. Cox, at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

As they rode out of the city they unwittingly left behind them 200 of their followers, who were unable to find room on the trucks. All were cared for at the old National Hotel. Many men who had hiked here crowded on the trucks and left no room for those who had ridden in them on the journey here.

Arrangements were being made early today by Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, and the Police Department to feed the men this morning at the Salvation Army. One of Father Cox's aids is making arrangements for the men to be taken back to Pittsburgh today on freight trains.

The men, many of them in faded and ill-fitting olive drab uniforms that they wore back in '17, stood bareheaded in the darkening amphitheater and raised their voices to sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" after Father Cox had called upon the leaders of the Nation to do as the Unknown did—"to keep the faith of the country and our fathers."

The solemn services at the Unknown's Tomb was the climax of a day's successful effort on the part of the 12,000 marchers from western Pennsylvania to bring to the attention of Congress their request for an appropriation of $5,000,000,000 to stimulate business.

Appeal to Hoover.

Earlier in the day a group of them, headed by Father Cox, met President Hoover and appealed for his aid in furthering the provision of their needs. They said that the Chief Executive's voice trembled with emotion as he told them he believed that the final campaign against the depression had been laid.

Led by Father Cox, who succored many of his followers as an Army chaplain on the battle fields of France, the haggard and worn men stood massed on the East Plaza of the Capitol singing marching songs of '17 as he presented their resolution for relief to Senator James J. Davis and Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania.

Every place the marchers went they received sympathetic welcomes from spectators, and their treatment was in decided contrast to that afforded the Communists who marched on Congress last month and sang revolutionary songs while a band attired in Soviet field uniforms played "The Internationale."

Pledge Allegiance Anew.

Their petitions presented, the thousands of Pennsylvanians raised their arms and, led by Father Cox, renewed their pledge of allegiance to the flag. The American flags waved and the men sang the hymns of the Nation.

Back home, in Pittsburgh, Father Cox told them, a tremendous welcome awaits them, and the thousands of men who were unable to accompany them will greet them at their home city.

At the White House the men were received shortly after noon by President Hoover, to whom they outlined their plight. The President replied as follows:

"I am glad to receive you as the representatives of Pennsylvania unemployed. I have an intense sympathy for your difficulties.

"I have considered that the vital function of the President and of the Federal Government was to exert every effort and every power of the Government to the restoration of stability and employment in our

Bombs Held Sent To Duce and King

Reported Aboard Ship on Way to Italy; Search to Be Made.

Genoa, Italy, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—An explosive expert will meet the liner Excalibur when she docks at Naples Monday to search the mail aboard for two bombs, one addressed to the King of Italy and the other to Premier Mussolini. The American Export Steamship Co., owner of the vessel, received a cable from its New York office today saying the bombs were aboard.

The exact location of the explosive devices was unknown, the company agent said, and it will be necessary to go through all the mail aboard to make sure no suspicious package is delievered without examination. The Excalibur is a regular mail boat.

Italian newspapers continue to give prominence to news from the United States about bombing attempts and the subsequent investigations, but the government has remained silent.

Roosevelt Star Rises As Democrats Meet; Ritchie Enters Race

Friends Are Confident Convention Will Go to Kansas City.

(Associated Press.)

Forces bent on the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for President yesterday commanded a preponderance of sentiment in the Democratic national committee.

With the actual meeting of the committee almost two days away, friends of the New Yorker were certain they could send John J. Raskob's prohibition proposals to the national convention without any commitments and probably without discussion.

In addition they were confident they could take the convention to Kansas City over the bids of San Francisco, Chicago and Atlantic City. Word reached the Capital late yesterday that funds had been pledged to guarantee expenses in the Missouri city.

Behind the Roosevelt leadership there was a general consolidation of Maryland Governor Is Hailed as Winner at Leaders' Banquet.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 7.—A presidential "possibility" since 1924, Gov. Albert Cabell Ritchie of Maryland tonight became an avowed candidate—the first prominent Democrat to toss his hat into the ring for 1932.

"Of course, I would like to be President; who would not?" Gov. Ritchie said.

Ritchie, four times Governor of Maryland, made this simple and frank declaration at a Jackson Day banquet given here tonight by the Concord Club.

The Democrats of Maryland began booming Gov. Ritchie for President at the Madison Square convention eight years ago. They put him forward again in 1928, but the Maryland

HOUSE SIDETRACKS FEDERAL PAY CUTS

Reductionists, After Defeat in Committee, Plan Rider Method.

Successfully past the first hurdle in their right to maintain wages, after a House committee yesterday tabled pay-cut proposals, Federal workers today face a fresh hazard in new moves of House pay reductionists.

Unperturbed by committee action in sidetracking their bills, at least two of the four proponents of salary-cut legislation last night were considering advisability of forcing the issue on the House floor as a rider to an appropriation bill.

They were Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, who declared he would first try to crystallize public sentiment in a radio campaign, and Representative Ashton C. Shallenberger (Democrat), Nebraska, who said he would "possibly" propose an amendment on the floor.

The third member of the House pay-cut quartet, Representative Milton C. Gerber (Republican), Oklahoma, said he would take no action pending conference with other members, while the fourth, Representative Robert F. Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania, reversed his position.

Mr. Rich said that if any one can show him how the deficit can be cut without a salary reduction he will not press his demand for a pay slash. He said that members of the committee on expenditures in the executive departments, which tabled his measure yesterday, have promised to supply him with figures. He will take no action pending receipt of the information, he declared.

On the contrary, Mr. Rich came out yesterday for a national minimum wage law, and said he was willing to offer an amendment to the Constitution if necessary to pave the way for it.

"The competitive cycle has forced some industries to cut wages down to 15 and even 13 cents an hour," he said. "Such wages are criminal. If the constitutional restriction against fixing wages could be overcome, I would favor establishing a minimum, possibly as high as 40 cents. This would exert a stabilizing influence on business everywhere."

Rich, subjected to a personal attack before the committee yesterday because of his own industrial holdings, said he considered his salary reduction proposals to the interest of Federal workers, many of whom otherwise face the loss of their jobs.

McGugin, most militant of the four, declared he would so arouse public sentiment that Representative John J. Cochran's committee on expenditures will be forced to recon-

J. Cardenas Mentioned As Spain's Envoy Here

Madrid, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Juan Cardenas, Spanish minister to Tokyo, has been tentatively selected as new ambassador to Washington, foreign office circles said today. The cabinet still has to approve the selection officially, but it was considered certain they will do so.

SENATE ADVANCES MONEY RELIEF BILL

Passage of $2,000,000,000 Measure in 48 Hours Is Predicted.

(Associated Press.)

The $2,000,000,000 Government financial relief measure moved forward in the Senate yesterday with a promise that it would give new life to the Nation and end deflation.

Leaders were confident of passage within the next 48 hours and Senator Walcott (Republican), of Connecticut, in presenting it, urged speed to meet a "great emergency."

Members turned their chairs to face Walcott, who stood in the rear of the chamber, through four hours of discussion. Democrats came over to the Republican side to be closer and two financial experts of that party, Glass, of Virginia, and Bulkley, of Ohio, flanked Walcott and aided him in the exhaustive questioning, propounded by the membership.

Last night several amendments were confronting the bill, including proposals to extend its arm of help to the shipping industry and to depositors of closed banks.

Walcott gave assurance that the $2,000,000,000 would be available to closed banks which are solvent, but he joined Secretary Mellon in the view that separate provision must be made for the relief of depositors of closed institutions.

In a letter read to the Senate, Mr. Mellon recognized the "desirability of some action looking to the relief of depositors in closed banks." The letter added:

"Relief for these depositors is by no means a simple problem, particularly if it intended to include all State nonmember banks that are being liquidated under 48 different laws which vary greatly. More time is needed for adequate consideration of this problem."

Senator Reed (Republican), of Pennsylvania, gave notice that he would insist that the bill contain provision for subjecting the bonds sold by the corporation to the inheritance and gift tax. As the measure now stands the bonds would be exempt from all federal levies.

Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, a Republican independent, forced the reading of the complete text of the bill, a procedure usually dispensed

50 Persons Are Killed In Russian Rail Wreck

Moscow, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Fifty persons were killed and many others injured in a rear-end train collision Saturday about nine miles northwest of Moscow, it was learned today.

The heavy casualty list resulted in part from the fact that the injured were placed by rescuers along a parallel track to await the arrival of medical crews from Moscow. A freight train came along and, before the engineer could stop, his locomotive and several boxcars had plowed through them.

Governor of Virgin Islands Called to House Group Quiz

By J. B. M'DONNELL.

Dr. Paul M. Pearson, first civilian Governor of the Virgin Islands since they became United States territory, has been called to Washington by the House appropriations committee to give an accounting of his criticized administration.

Gov. Pearson will appear before the appropriations subcommittee in charge of the Interior Department appropriations bill, in which is carried funds for the Virgin Islands, perhaps this afternoon or tomorrow.

Gov. Pearson will follow Herbert D. Brown, chief of the United States Bureau of Efficiency, who is the first witness on the committee's list of those on whom it intends to call for information about conditions in the islands.

Investigation by the bureau led to published criticism of Gov. Pearson as having violated the spirit and letter of the law and the purpose of Congress in appropriations made last year.

Composed of three Democrats and two Republicans, the subcommittee, at the instance of Representative Edward T. Taylor, of Colorado, its Democratic chairman, has turned the task of directing its inquiry over to Representative Burton L. French (Republican), of Idaho, who was chair-

HITLER TO RULE ON HINDENBURG OFFICE TENURE

Rise Gives Nazi Leader Right to Decide on German Ruler.

URGED TO APPROVE TERM'S PROLONGING

Further Hold on Reins of Nation Is Price Offered for Backing Plan.

Berlin, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—By a dramatic turn in German politics, fiery Adolf Hitler, former noncommissioned officer in the German imperial army, sat in judgment tonight on his old field marshal, President Paul von Hindenburg.

It was for Herr Hitler to decide whether to command his Fascist legions in the Reichstag to prolong for one year Von Hindenburg's term as president.

This shift in the political line-up was brought about by two days of conferences in which Hitler first listened to overtures by Wilhelm Groener, minister of defense, and then talked with Chancellor Heinrich Bruening.

Decision Due Today.

The National Socialist leader announced he would confer with the chieftains of the Nationalist opposition and would make known his decision as soon as he had learned their views. It was reliably reported that he would see Gen. Groener tomorrow to tell what course the National Socialists and Nationalists will pursue.

Hitler was called into the government's counsel to avoid the necessity of a presidential election at this critical time. Gen. Groener wired him last Tuesday, asking him to come to Berlin.

The Fascist leader, the minister of defense and Chancellor Bruening were together an hour and a half today. They said nothing for publication, but it was taken for granted that certain political concessions had been offered to the National Socialists in return for their help in keeping Von Hindenburg in the presidential chair. The price was at least one place in the cabinet, it was believed.

Two-Thirds Vote Needed.

Regular presidential elections are to take place next May. To prolong the president's term the Reichstag would have to approve by a two-thirds majority—and Dr. Bruening could not count on any such support without the help of the National Socialists.

Tonight Hitler conferred with Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, leader of the Nationalists, and Franz Seldte, head of the steel helmet organization.

Dr. Bruening had engagements to see Social Democratic leaders to inform them what had taken place at the Hitler conference.

The action to bring the forces of the government and the forces of the opposition together reflected the belief in political circles that, since the favorable reaction abroad to President von Hindenburg's recent speech calling on the nation to do its utmost in this time of trial, the president is more than ever Germany's man of the hour. It reflected also the growing Nazi strength, shown in all recent elections.

Castle May Join Arms Delegation

Hoover Considering Him as Sixth Member of Geneva Group.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover is seriously considering the appointment of William R. Castle, Undersecretary of State, as the sixth member of this country's delegation to the coming arms conference at Geneva.

It is not expected to be long before another selection is announced. The delegation leaves toward the end of this month, headed by Ambassador Dawes.

Other members already named are Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, Senator Swanson, of Virginia; Norman H. Davis, of New York; Mary Emma Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, and Hugh S. Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium.

Dawes Calls on Friends In Wall Street District

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and the undersiung pipe which he made famous, made their joint appearance in Wall street today.

The former Vice President, soldier, and banker, offered no explanation for his visit, but called on several friends, among them Owen D. Young, who collaborated with him in working out the first Dawes plan for reparation payments, which later was succeeded by the present Young plan. It was understood that the reparations expert would remain here for a short time only, before again visiting Washington, prior to his return to London.

U. S. WILL PROTECT ITS RIGHTS IN CHINA, JAPAN TOLD IN NOTE; INVADERS REACH GREAT WALL

Nippon's Forces Reach Shanhaikwan, Partly Within Republic.

MOVE "NECESSARY," PROCLAMATION SAYS

British and Chinese Staff Kept Off Peiping-Mukden Railroad.

Tientsin, China, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Japanese troops formally occupied the City of Shanhaikwan today, marking their farthest advance southward since they expelled the Chinese from Chinchow.

(The Tientsin dispatch did not make clear whether the entire City of Shanhaikwan, the gateway of Manchuria, had been occupied. Some of the city is within the great wall of China. If all Shanhaikwan has been seized, this marks the first occupation by the Japanese of any territory within China proper.)

Occupation Held Necessary.

An armored train and various supply trains reached Shanhaikwan late yesterday and the formal occupation was completed today, according to reports reaching here, when the main body of the Japanese column entered the city and posted a proclamation saying it was "necessary" that they take the place over.

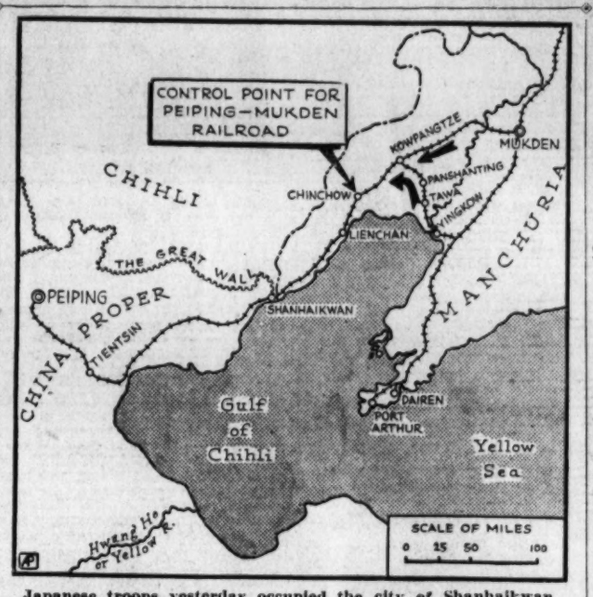
An additional airplane carrier and three gunboats were reported at Chinwangtao, 10 miles from Shanhaikwan.

A hundred Japanese soldiers from the Tientsin garrison escorted numerous Japanese women and children back to their homes in Shanhaikwan. The women and children had been refugees here for a considerable period.

Railroad Interference.

Interference with service on the Peiping-Mukden Railway has resulted in considerable dissatisfaction in Tientsin. Railway officials declared the Japanese military authorities declined to permit the British and Chinese staff to resume service between Tientsin and Mukden, saying the presence of Japanese troop trains along the line made it impossible at present.

Tientsin was in ignorance of what had happened to 3,000 Chinese troops who were in Shanhaikwan. They were ordered by the Japanese yesterday to evacuate. It was believed possible that they had gone to Lanchow, within the great wall, where 30,000 other Chinese troops from Chinchow are quartered.



Japanese troops yesterday occupied the city of Shanhaikwan, the farthest advance south since they chased the Chinese from Chinchow. The map shows Shanhaikwan, at the juncture of the Great Wall and the Gulf of Chihli, while the arrows show the route of the Japanese in their drive from northern and eastern Manchuria down into Chinchow and and Shanhaikwan.

Nancy Hoyt Curtis Has Reno Lawyer

Novelist and Former Society Girl Here, Wed Bostonian.

Reno, Nev., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Nancy Hoyt Curtis, novelist, was in Reno today and had engaged an attorney, but her only answer when asked whether she was here for a divorce, was, "What do people usually come here for?"

Mrs. Curtis, who is known to Washington society as Nancy Hoyt, married Edward Davidson Curtis, of Boston, September 22, 1927, after getting a divorce from Gerald Wynn-Wynne in Paris. Prior to this marriage, she had been engaged to Lieut. F. Wiseman Clarke, of the Royal British navy. The marriage was indefinitely postponed the day before it was to take place.

Mrs. Curtis is a novelist of note, her best known works being "Round About," "Unkind Star" and "Bright Intervals." The Curtises have a daughter, Edwina.

Dr. Kane Performs Operation on Self

Executes Second Within 10 Years and Declared It to Be Success.

Kane, Pa., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Dr. Evan O'Neil Kane, 40-year-old surgeon, is resting tonight after operating upon himself.

Ten years ago he removed his appendix.

"The operation was a success," he smiled as he was removed from the operating room late today.

Dr. Kane had to rely upon his sense of touch in reaching the affected parts. He has been ill for several weeks from inguinal hernia. He used a local anesthetic.

"This operation was rather dangerous," the veteran surgeon explained, "and I seemed quite nervous."

Dr. Kane is the father of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, recently acquitted of drowning his wife in Virginia. The physician became ill during Prof. Kane's trial.

JAPAN HELD THREAT AT NAVAL HEARINGS

Rapid Growth of Strength Is Cited; Adams Says U. S. Building "Doubtful."

(Associated Press.)

A Japanese sea force growing more rapidly than either the American or British navies was cited yesterday by Chairman Hale of the Senate naval committee as a reason for building the United States fleet up to treaty limits.

In addition, the committee heard Secretary Adams of the Navy Department say it was "extremely doubtful" that actual cash for new naval construction would be sought at this session.

Guarded in his remarks, Adams said he could not officially approve Hale's bill for a treaty limit navy for the reason that President Hoover and the Budget Bureau had not yet had opportunity to give their views on it.

His previous personal indorsement of a similar measure before a House committee brought a Democratic suggestion that he ought to resign because his views differed from those of th President.

Although withholding specific approval, Adams said smilingly that he could not "wholly dissent from the view" expressed by Hale that adoption of a construction program at this time would increase American bargaining power at the Geneva disarmament conference next month.

After giving masses of comparative statistics on the naval construction of Japan, Great Britain and the United States, Hale said:

"It looks to me from these figures as though the country that is looming as a great naval nation is not so much Great Britain as Japan."

The Far Eastern empire, he said, has been rapidly increasing its naval

Minnesota Man Names Himself for Presidency

Concord, N. H., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Alonzo S. Hilton, of Cloquet, Minn., tossed his hat into the presidential ring today when, in a letter to Enoch D. Fuller, secretary of state, he asked that his name be placed on the primary ballot, March 8, for the Democratic nomination.

Fuller said he had never heard of Hilton.

LAVAL AGAIN AIMS FOR NEW CABINET

Makes Plans for Arms and Reparations Sessions; Briand to Quit.

Paris, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Premier Pierre Laval seemed determined tonight to attempt the formation of a "national union" government, similar to the wartime cabinet, in order to present France's cause at the international reparations and disarmament conferences with the backing of all political parties.

This became apparent with the issuance of a semiofficial note in which the state of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand's health was indirectly broached.

M. Briand was expected to relinquish soon his post in the foreign office. A second semiofficial note said that if his health did not permit further service there, the premier would ask him to stay in the cabinet as "minister of state."

This would mean that he would be a minister without portfolio, a sort of "elder statesman" after the Japanese model. "Thus," the statement added, "the eminent statesman would contribute the aid of his great experience in governmental deliberations."

The earlier communique said the impending negotiations would demand "an increased effort, which perhaps it would be imprudent to impose on the eminent statesman, who for so many years has assumed the crushing task of directing France's foreign policy."

The rest of the document indicated that Premier Laval was seeking to replace not only the late minister of war, Andre Maginot, but the head of the foreign office as well.

The premier, the same source said, would rather present the resignation of all his present cabinet to President Paul Doumer—with the assurance in advance that he would be asked to

Maj. Gen. Barnett's Widow Lauds Post Essay Contest

Will Stimulate Interest Not Only in Washington Himself But Also in Bicentennial Celebration, She Declares; Applications Pour in.

"The patriotic service given by The Washington Post to the school children of Washington and vicinity in providing the historical and educational opportunity of taking part in the George Washington Essay Contest with its attractive cash prizes deserves the commendation of every citizen," declared Mrs. George Barnett, widow of the World War commandant of the Marine Corps, Maj. Gen. Barnett. Mrs. Barnett herself is a leader in patriotic and civic works, being at present acting president of the Woman's Naval Service, the first woman's national defense organization, prominent in D. A. R. work, the chairman for Virginia of the National woman's committee for Washington Cathedral.

"As a Virginian," continued Mrs. Barnett, "I naturally take a pride in the achievements of George Washington not only first in the hearts of his countrymen but the ideal of every Virginia boy and girl. I am glad to see that some of the Virginia counties and especially his home city of Alexandria, have a chance to participate in this contest. The rules seem to me very fair and I am sure will stimulate renewed interest in the young people not only in Washington himself but in the Bicentennial observance as well.

"Our children should be taught to revere our heroes and to emulate their examples. Washington and his associates were men who dared in their day and generation for the sake of the right. We should teach our young people that they must be willing to pay in service for the blessings of citizenship in this great country. Washington's life is an inspiration to all and especially to the young. I

Open Door, Nine-Power and Kellogg Pacts Are Involved.

NOVEL APPLICATION OF TREATIES STATED

Stimson Declares Tokyo and Nanking Peace Must Keep Agreements.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States has invoked three cardinal principles of its foreign policy, the open door in China, the nine-power pact and the Kellogg-Briand pact in a declaration of its intention to protect the rights of this Government and of American citizens in China. Secretary Stimson yesterday cabled to the American Embassy at Tokyo and to the American Minister at Nanking for immediate delivery to the Japanese and Chinese foreign ministers the following identic note:

"With the recent military operations about Chinchow, the last remaining administrative authority of the Government of the Chinese Republic in South Manchuria, as it existed prior to September 18, 1931, has been destroyed. The American Government continues confident that the work of the neutral commission recently authorized by the council of the League of Nations will facilitate an ultimate solution of the difficulties now existing between China and Japan. But, in view of the present situation and of its own rights and obligations therein, the American Government deems it to be its duty to notify both the Imperial Japanese Government and the Government of the Chinese Republic that it can not admit the legality of any situation de facto nor does it intend to recognize any treaty or agreement entered into between those governments, or agents thereof, which may impair the treaty rights of the United States or its citizens in China, including those which relate to the sovereignty, the independence, or the territorial and administrative integrity of the Republic of China, or to the international policy relative to China, commonly known as the open-door policy; and that it does not intend to recognize any situation, treaty or agreement which may be brought about by means contrary to the covenants and obligations of the pact of Paris of August 27, 1928, to which treaty both China and Japan, as well as the United States, are parties."

Purposes of Note Explained.

A corollary explanation of the Stimson equal rights note was given by the State Department yesterday, when it was declared that the purpose of the note was as follows:

First, of course, the United States has no desire to question the legitimate treaty rights of Japan in Manchuria, whatever they may be.

Secondly, the United States has no desire to intrude in any direct Chinese-Japanese settlement except, that

(a) Nothing in that settlment must impair American rights in China under the provisions of the open-door agreement and the nine-power pact, and

(b) Such a settlement must not be achieved by methods in violation of the Kellogg-Briand pact.

Immediately after dispatching the most important contribution to American diplomatic history since the Kellogg Pact, Secretary Stimson summoned the Japanese Ambassador to the State Department and handed him and the Chinese Minister a copy of his message. A short while after, the representatives of the other remaining six signatory nations of the Nine Power Treaty were invited to the office of Secretary Stimson and they in turn received copies of his note. It is expected that these nations will take similar action in notifying Japan and China of their intentions of abiding by the provisions of the Nine-Power agreement. The other ministers who received copies of the Stimson equal rights note were: England, France, Italy, Belgium, Portugal and the Netherlands.

Step Becomes Imperative.

The intention of Secretary Stimson to take this step was of long pre-

STIMSON AGAIN UNDER FIRE ON LOANS POLICY

Charges Repeated After He Denies Responsibility for Losses.

LETTER OF WARNING ON GERMANY BARED

(Associated Press.)

A State Department defense of its policies on foreign loans drew further attacks yesterday from senatorial critics.

The department in a lengthy statement prepared by Secretary Stimson denied the charge by Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, that it was "morally responsible" for American losses in foreign bonds.

Glass retaliated by characterizing the department's statement as a "wretched subterfuge" and reiterated his charge that it had acted "lawlessly" on the foreign bonds. Senator Johnson (Republican), California, also joined the attack.

Warning Is Revealed.

At almost the same moment the State Department issued its statement the Senate finance committee learned of a letter addressed to American bankers by Frank B. Kellogg, then Secretary of State, in 1926, warning them to be careful in extending further credit to Germany.

The committee's incomplete records show that since 1926, when that warning was issued, American bankers have loaned $762,575,000 to the German government and private German companies.

Senator Johnson, who instigated the investigation of the flotation of foreign bonds, characterized the Kellogg letter as "of the utmost importance."

Criticizes Department.

He criticized the State Department for not having apprised Congress and the committee of its existence, and said that Representative Fish (Republican), New York, had been unable to obtain it.

The letter was printed yesterday in a Baltimore newspaper, and Johnson read it to the committee out of that paper.

The State Department became involved in the investigation Wednesday, when Commerce Department officials told the finance committee it had approved South American loans despite information at the Commerce Department that they were not good risks.

Subsequently Glass, a former Secretary of the Treasury, made his charge of moral responsibility, because, he said, in approving them the department had given them governmental standing.

Stimson Denies Charges.

Stimson's statement said no foreign loan had ever been made which purported to have the approval of the American Government as to its intrinsic value.

The practice of having bankers notify it of proposed loans, the department said, was established with the idea "of safeguarding essential American interests that might be affected by the process of foreign investment."

It has been maintained, Stimson said, "as an informal, comparatively light and flexible check against the possibility that contemplated loan issues might run counter to some Government policy or aim.

"At every opportunity," he added, "the department has made clear to bankers and interested public that this practice of advance notification to the department and the absence of objection and comment by the department must in no way be considered or portrayed as approval of the loan."

Glass Attacks Statement.

Glass said the department's statement was "a mere repetition" of previous statements which the Senate "unanimously refused to accept as an adequate explanation of these lawless activities."

He added:

"Of course, the contention of the State Department that it did not approve, but merely assented to a loan, is a wretched subterfuge.

"It was well understood by bankers proposing to make loans that the failure of the State Department to object was tantamount to approval and these loans were consequently put on the market with the moral sanction of this Government through usurpation of a banking function by the State Department."

Fish Raps Action on Letter.

Fish yesterday asserted the State Department had "rendered a disservice to American investors and the Republican party" by not making public the Kellogg letter of 1926 advising international bankers Germany was overborrowed.

"It was inexcusable that this letter was not submitted to the Congress when the moratorium bill was being considered," he said. "The State Department is now placed in the position, by the Democrats, as having tried to protect and absolve certain bankers, to the detriment of the public interest * * *

"Senator Glass has tried to place the blame upon the Republican party for permitting foreign loans, but the facts show that Secretary Kellogg did protest vigorously, in 1926, against unproductive loans to Germany but, unfortunately, this correspondence was withheld during the consideration of the moratorium, which makes it now look as if the Republican party had been shielding American international bankers."

Democrats Sure to Win, Norman Mack Declares

Veteran Campaigner Says End of Dry Law Would Bring Recovery.

By DON B. REED.

A fiery veteran of Democratic campaigns since 1892 yesterday came to Washington to predict a certain victory for his party in November.

On the eve of the annual Jackson Day dinner of Democrats from all parts of the country, Norman E. Mack, retired Buffalo, N. Y. publisher and former chairman of the Democratic national committee, found time to declare that "prospects for victory never were so good as they are in 1932."

The publishing of a newspaper only a memory with Mr. Mack, he has added vim and vigor to devote to politics, his other favorite pastime. The New Yorker is confidence personified as he relates the reasons for the predicted downfall of the Republicans at the coming election.

Sure of Victory.

"It is inconceivable that we can lose," says Mr. Mack. "While I have not toured the country personally, I have been in close touch with the situation and reports from every State in the Union indicate that the people are of the opinion that the Republicans have failed to fulfill their promises.

"This being the case and with the Democrats presenting a united and harmonious front all along the line, the prospects for our victory are the brightest in years."

Questioned as to possible Democratic candidates for the Presidency, Mr. Mack said that undoubtedly Gov. Franklin D Roosevelt of New York would be a candidate because his record placed him high among the leaders of the party

Cites Roosevelt's Strength.

"There will be other candidates," continued Mr. Mack, "but Gov. Roosevelt's tremendous victory in 1930 when he carried his State by 750,000 has established firmly his appeal to the public and naturally he will be foremost among those considered. He is generally strong throughout the country, according to reports I have received, for his record is well known."

While some of his fellow party members have been somewhat backward in discussing prohibition, Mr. Mack does not hesitate to express his opinion on this important topic.

"If we had sense enough to do away with prohibition and turned back to conditions as they were before prohibition was adopted, the country would be on its feet within 30 days," is Mr. Mack's summary of the problem.

"The United States is helping every nation in the world make money except itself. However, I feel certain that the country is of the opinion that the bottom has dropped out of prohibition. Even a large number of drys are convinced that the present 'experiment' is a failure.

Likes Canada's Rum System.

"Personally I have no idea that the old days of the saloon will return, but I do believe that a law similar to that now in effect in Canada would solve a great many of our problems. Personal liberty and temperance can be advocated by the same person, regardless of the claims of some drys. If the liquor situation is handled with discretion and common sense there is no need to worry over the future of the country."

Mr. Mack expects the Jackson Day dinner to be an extremely harmonious affair, for he believes that all factions of the Democratic party are ready to strive for the ultimate goal —the election of the next President.

The New York publisher switched his paper, the Buffalo Times, from an independent policy to the support of Grover Cleveland in 1884 and since then has been honored on many occasions by Democrats, both nationally and in his own State. In 1908 he held the chairmanship of both State and national committees and was, in addition, a member of the national committee, the first of his party to gain this triple distinction.

U. S. DEFENDS STAND ON FOREIGN LOANS

Four General Situations Are Pointed Out in Reply to Criticism.

Criticism in Congress of the position taken by the State Department in the flotation of foreign loans by American bankers was vigorously answered here yesterday by official sources in the department.

The policy followed by the State Department in indicating its disapproval of loans of foreign countries was learned to be based on the following four general situations:

First, where the loan evidently was for purposes which the State Department considered "unproductive;"

Second, where the loan was for purposes of armament making or military expenditures;

Third, where the loan was for purposes of a monopoly or for assisting in establishment of a monopoly;

Fourth, where the loan was to be made to a country which had not yet definitely funded its obligations to the United States Treasury.

France Involved.

Of this last classification, it became known that the country principally involved was France, which did not ratify her debt to the United States until July, 1929. Up to that time 33 different requests had been made to the State Department by Wall street bankers requesting governmental permission to make loans.

One of the cases where the State Department had refused permission for monopolistic reasons was with regard to the Brazilian coffee revalorization loan. A slight touch of humor was injected into the usual matter-of-fact official exchanges when a request was made by one Wall street banking house for permission to lend money to a German brewery. This also was refused, but on what grounds was not revealed.

Aim Interest of Citizens.

The State Department announced that its policy had been not to pass on the "security or merits of foreign loans." The sole aim of this department of the Government had been "in the interests of the citizens of the United States in connection with its foreign relations."

During the administration of President Harding the practice was first established, with the idea of safeguarding American interests that might be affected by the process of foreign investment.

Hofer S. Meekham Dies at Residence

Retired Map Compiler to Be Buried Today in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Hofer S. Meekham, civil engineer and for a number of years map compiler and draftsman in the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, died Wednesday in his home at 7715 Alaska avenue northwest.

He entered the Government service June 29, 1900, and served continuously until his retirement on April 30, 1931. He had been in ill health for the last six months, but was confined to his home only about two weeks.

Schmidt, were at his bedside during his last moments. He also is survived by one brother, Ernest C. Meekham, of Leominster, Mass. Funeral services will be held at the home this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

TARIFF BILL IS READY FOR ACTION IN HOUSE

It Reaches Floor Following Attack by Representative of Administration.

(Associated Press.)

Flatly opposed by the administration through its Treasury spokesman, the Democratic tariff bill yesterday moved to the House floor.

It bore approval of the ways and means committee by strict party lines of 15 to 10, and the Democratic majority promised to speed it along to the Senate not later than tomorrow night.

One provision inserted by the Democratic Senate-House policy committee had fallen by the wayside. On their own initiative, the ways and means committee majority threw out a proposal that the President negotiate reciprocal trade agreements with foreign countries. They explained the action as intended to prevent complications over existing favored nation treaties.

Opposed by Mills.

To meet a contention against the bill made at hearings yesterday by Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury, the committee inserted a provision authorizing the President to initiate a tariff commission investigation of duties on commodities.

The measure provides for the establishment of a permanent international economic conference to eliminate tariff wars. It also proposes that Congress and not the Chief Executive, as at present, have power over the flexible provisions of the tariff act.

If the measure is sent to the White House by Congress, a presidential veto has been freely predicted on Capitol Hill.

After concluding hearings on the tariff bill, the ways and means committee announced it would begin consideration of a tax increase bill next Wednesday.

Administration's Views.

The administration's views against the tariff proposal were presented to the committee by Undersecretary Mills and Frederick Livesey, economic adviser of the State Department.

Speaking for the Treasury, State and Commerce Departments, Mills said they saw no necessity for it.

He said it sought to remove the flexible provision from the present tariff bill by taking away the authority of the President to proclaim rates on the recommendation of the Tariff Commission. He charged the Democratic bill would "freeze rates" and permit Congress to be continually considering the tariff.

"The international economic conference conflicts with the first part of the bill," Mills said. "You take away authority from the President in the first part, and you give him power to initiate an international conference designed to lower rates."

Conference Held Useless.

Mills said it was useless to create such a conference because one existed under the League of Nations, and asserted he did not believe the Democrats "can do it."

At the same time, he said, in proposing the conference its authors failed to lay down a policy by which the President might be guided.

"The place to lay down a tariff policy for this country is in the House, and not in an international conference," Mills declared. "I dislike the idea of framing the United States policy at an international conference."

sider the measures. Should this fail, he will resort to the alternative of amending an appropriation bill, he said.

As a last resort he might attempt to obtain the 145 necessary signatures to take the bills away from the committee and bring them to a vote by the whole House, he told The Post.

Federal workers yesterday were jubilant over the Cochran committee action. President Luther C. Steward, of the National Federation of Federal Employes, who will meet today with the executive council to map out the federation's legislative program, was pleased that the employes had weathered "their first test of strength." He has opposed the measure on the ground that government pay reduction would start a movement that would affect every community and wage earner in the United States.

Further Hearings Balked.

The executive council, representative of federation unions throughout the United States, at today's meeting will plan their stand on many matters affecting the Federal employe, including reclassification of the field service, retirement after 30 years service, and the five-day working week, all proposed in bills now before Congress.

Representative Cochran, who made known his hostility to the pay cut proposal long before his committee opened hearings ,announced the committee's action in tabling the measures with an air of finality.

Taxpayers League Under Fire.

Charges were made yesterday that the American Taxpayers League, which recently sponsored a radio talk on salary reductions by Representative McGugin, is the same organization whose activities were attacked two years ago by the lobby subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee. The organization replied that a new organization and by-laws were adopted two weeks ago. J. A. Arnold is the directing head.

Representative Garber, called to another committee meeting, alone of the four proponents of Federal paycut measures, did not testify at yesterday's hearings of the committee on expenditures in executive departments. Representative Shallenberger, who modeled his bill closely after the Oklahoma representative's, said he spoke for him.

Mr. Rich told the committee he would amend his bill for a 10 per cent general reduction so as not to affect salaries under $1,400. Urging the necessity of immediate cuts in expenditures, he told the committee:

Alley Closing Bill Revived in House

Bowman Measure Would Abolish Hidden Communities.

The old "alley closing" bill, designed to wipe out for all time Washington's hidden communities in inhabited alleys, yesterday was reintroduced by Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia.

The bill would authorize the District Commissioners to acquire the alley properties by condemnation or gift, to replat the land, repave the alleys and demolish or move any of the buildings, which they would afterward be empowered to rent, manage or sell. They would utilize facilities of the United States Housing Corporation in carrying out the act.

Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, introduced a bill to extend the annual leave of firemen and city and park policemen from 20 to 30 days.

Culbertson-Lenz Bridge Battle

Former's Lead Reduced to 8,770 as Opponents Win 6 Rubbers.

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A sensational gain of 5,405 points—the largest swing of any session—tonight enabled Sidney S. Lenz and Commander Winfield Liggett, jr., to reduce the lead of Ely Culbertson in the great contract bridge match to 8,770 points.

The 150-rubber match ends tomorrow night with six rubbers left to play. Victory for Lenz continues to be regarded as a virtual impossibility, but his tremendous plus in the next to the last of twenty sessions created great interest in the final.

Lenz and Liggett won six of seven rubbers in the nineteenth session tonight. The rubber standing of the series became 74 for Culbertson and 70 for Lenz.

Commander Liggett held great cards tonight and might possibly have made more out of them. Culbertson had a new partner for the session, Howard Schenken, a New York importer and amateur.

Found Much to Criticize.

Culbertson found considerable to criticize in his partner's bidding and play.

Lenz commented on the session:

"We had the breaks of the day. If the match was going any further I would employ Mr. Schenken to play against me—it's a pleasure."

Mr. Schenken consistently held bad cards and it was to this circumstance that Lenz referred.

The jovial commander, who entered the game to replace Oswald Jacoby, will have glory, whatever the result tomorrow night. For in the rubbers in which the commander has played he and Lenz are so far ahead that it is almost as impossible to offset their plus as it is for them to win the match.

Mrs. Culbertson will play opposite her husband in the final six rubbers tomorrow night.

Culbertson used such terms as "overwhelmed" and "completely silenced" in referring to the great cards held tonight by his opponents.

Culbertson bid four hearts and made six on the first hand. His plus increased from 14,175 to 14,395. It was Hand 805, the first of Rubber 138. A slam was not biddable. Culbertson described the play as a fine type of cross ruff.

Hand 806—Lenz bid two hearts and was set one. Net score, Culbertson 14,445.

Hand 807—Lenz bid one no trump and was set two. Net score, Culbertson 15,545.

WET REFERENDUM BILLS BEFORE HOUSE

Raskob Home Rule Plan Is Embodied in Measures Introduced.

(Associated Press.)

The prohibition question arose yesterday in several quarters of the National Capital.

Two resolutions embodying the Raskob home-rule plan for control of liquor by the States after Statewide referenda were introduced in the House. Their authors were Gavagan, of New York, and Lonergan, of Connecticut, both Democrats.

The House judiciary committee pigeonholed prohibition legislation, awaiting President Hoover's expected message to Congress on law enforcement. The Crusaders, an organization opposed to prohibition, presented a petition to members of Congress asking immediate enactment of legislation to permit manufacture of beer.

In the Senate, Brookhart, of Iowa, who favors prohibition, said the Crusaders "are assuming a Christian title for an un-Christian purpose." He added: "The purpose of these beer bills is to transfer the income taxes from the big taxpayers to the laborers and common people."

Raskob's Poll Attacked.

He made these remarks after Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, had introduced an amendment to his 4 per cent beer bill under which the use of the beverage would be restricted to hotels and restaurants. He said the Crusaders favored this provision.

In addition, Brookhart claimed the prohibition poll taken by Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee, was a dry victory. He said Raskob sent questionnaires to 77,000 contributors to the 1928 campaign chest and received replies from only 25,000.

The national prohibition board of strategy took notice last night of the letter which Raskob wrote to members of the national committee this week calling for a united front on prohibition and outlining the results of his prohibition poll.

Beer Hearing Starts Today.

The board said in part: "In spite of juggling figures in his (Raskob's) poll of contributors to the 1928 Democratic party campaign fund, the facts come out with great illumination. Forced to admit that less than one-third of the contributors replied to his questionnaire, he nevertheless tries to assume that this minority who did reply represents the party. His own figures show that more than 66 per cent of the contributors did not reply. These either are dry or showed their resentment of his role of platform maker by ignoring his poll, or else had no interest in his proposal."

The Senate manufactures subcommittee, headed by Senator Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, begins hearings today on bills of Senator Bingham and Senator Bulkley to legalize beer.

Senate Adopts Walsh EmploymentResolutions

(Associated Press.)

The Senate yesterday adopted two resolutions bearing on unemployment. They were by Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, and called upon the employment stabilization board and several departments to report on what construction projects "might be wisely undertaken" within the next six years.

They also sought information on the condition of plans for such projects, cost estimates and similar data.

Mellon Impeachment Resolution Is Delayed

(Associated Press.)

Consideration of the Patman resolution impeaching Secretary Mellon was postponed yesterday by the House judiciary committee until next week.

This action was agreed upon by committee members because of the delay in having the resolution reach the committee formally through parliamentary channels.

DR. NELSON GAPEN, PROFESSOR, IS DEAD

Native Washingtonian Was Member of Faculties at Georgetown.

Dr. Nelson Gapen, a native Washingtonian and for many years a prominent member of the faculties of the Georgetown University Medical and Dental Schools, died suddenly yesterday afternoon following an operation at Georgetown Hospital. He was 53 years old.

Dr. Gapen had attended his professional duties as usual on Wednesday. Yesterday morning he went to the hospital in a serious condition, was operated on in the afternoon, but failed to rally, dying at 3:30 o'clock.

Dr. Gapen was born here January 3, 1879. He graduated from a local high school and obtained his doctor of medicine degree from Georgetown in 1900. Immediately upon graduation he was placed on the faculty as a demonstrator in anatomy for the freshman class.

Two years later Dr. Gapen was commissioned an assistant surgeon in the Army Medical Corps with the rank of first lieutenant. He graduated from the Army Medical School in 1903 and in later years pursued advanced studies at Harvard Medical School and the University of Michigan Medical School. At various times during his service in the Army, duties in Washington permitted him to serve on the Georgetown Medical faculty in various capacities. In June, 1930, he was given the retired rank of colonel. Dr. Gapen rejoined the medical faculty at Georgetown permanently in 1922, being professor and chairman of the department of materia medica, pharmacology and therapeutics.

He was active in the affairs of the District Medical Society, the American Medical Association and the American College of Physicians.

Dr. Gapen is survived by his widow, Mrs. Myra Dunnington Gapen, and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Gapen Lanham, the wife of Lieut. C. T. Lanham, who is stationed at Fort Benning, Ga. Mrs. Lanham is en route to Washington for the funeral, the date of which has not yet been set. Dr. and Mrs. Gapen made their home at 4415 Seventeenth street.

MONEY RELIEF MEASURE NEAR PASSAGE IN SENATE

with by the Senate, at the outset of debate yesterday.

Senator Wolcott during the lengthy discussion asserted the gigantic relief corporation "will be the instrumentality of opening a number of marginal banks, banks close to solvency."

"All the arteries of trade will receive this cash," he said. "It is bound to revive business and when business gets going again prices will get back to a point showing a moderate profit and this depression will be checked definitely.

"The problem of restoring confidence cannot be attacked halfheartedly. We must spare no pains in injecting elasticity into the hardened arteries fo the financial situation."

Walcott repeatedly emphasized the need for haste "before it is too late."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, urged provision in the measure for assistance to the joint-stock land banks. Glass suggested that Robinson put this forward instead as an amendment to the pending measure for increasing the capitalization of the land banks.

In the House the banking committee continued its hearings. Chairman Steagall appointed a subcommittee to make any changes it thought necessary in the Walcott bill and report back to the full committee today. He expects to report the bill to the House Monday.

One of the members he named was Representative McFadden, Pennsylvania Republican, who told the House President Hoover had "sold out" to Germany and international bankers in connection with events involving the moratorium.

Representative Golder, another Pennsylvania Republican, protested the appointment of McFadden to the subgroup, insisting that since he was opposed to the bill he should not help draft it. Representative Strong (Republican), Kansas, joined with Golder, but the committee approved the appointments.

The committee heard George St. Jean, of New York, of the Federal International Corporation, heartily indorse provisions in the bill which he said would improve credit acceptances.

"Without that help," he said, "American exports will dwindle to an inconsiderable amount."

The text of the Mellon letter on the Reconstruction Finance Corporation follows:

"I understand that the suggestion has been made that provision for relief of depositors in closed banks should be incorporated in the bill creating the reconstruction finance corporation and that the subcommittee of which you are chairman desires the opinion of this department as to the advisability of doing so.

"The reconstruction finane corporation bill as originally conceived and drafted was intended to create an instrumentality through which assistance could be given to going concerns and through which the general credit structure might be supported by making available the means for bringing immediate relief at any threatened point, the general idea being that the mere existence of this powerful instrument with ample resources would serve to restore confidence, which is the element most needed to reserve the present depressing and inflationary factors. I do not believe that the main purpose of the proposed measure would be furthered by the proposed amendment.

"In fact, it would in all probability be weakened, for the problem of extending needed credit to going concerns is very different from bringing relief to depositors in banks that are being liquidated. This department has viewed them as separate and distinct problems. We have felt that the second and very important problem could more properly and adequately be dealt with through a separate measure and I understand that bills have already been prepared and others are in course of preparation.

"While recognizing, therefore, the desirability of some action looking to the relief of depositors in closed banks, I do not feel that there is anything to be gained by confusing the two programs and by incorporating in a carefully thought out plan intended to attain a definite objective, a hastily improvised measure for taking care of a totally different situation.

"Relief for depositors in closed banks is by no means a simple problem, particularly if it is intended to include all State nonmember banks that are being liquidated under 48 different laws which vary greatly. More time is needed for adequate consideration of this problem, and I feel that the public interest will be better served by further study, rather than hasty action at this time."

ATTACK MAY CANCEL HAWAII MANEUVERS

Adams Says Step Pending; Honolulu Grand Jury Asks Police Quiz.

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Adams of the Navy Department said yesterday the February maneuvers of the fleet in the vicinity of Hawaii may be canceled in view of recent disorders on the islands.

The disorders resulted from an attack by natives on white women.

A number of such cases have been reported by naval authorities in Hawaii and the Secretary feels that further disorders would be prevented by keeping sailors from landing.

Naval officials expressed the opinion that the maneuvers would be held in another locality and that if the fleet went to Hawaii shore leave there would not be granted.

Honolulu, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Honolulu today was a city of impending investigations and governmental reforms.

Several hundred men and women members of civic organizations met and pledged themselves to work "forcefully and relentlessly" for governmental reforms, while the grand jury called for inquiries designed to improve crime conditions.

Both moves were part of a clean-up campaign instituted as the outgrowth of an attack Saturday upon an American school teacher—the second upon a white woman within a few weeks.

The grand jury's report asked for investigation of the police department and of motion pictures dealing with gangs and sex questions, and more strenuous enforcement of the prohibition law.

However, the jury regarded prohibition as difficult, if not impossible to enforce, and expressed the opinion that under it the drink evil has become worse than ever.

The jury indicted Lui Kaikapu, escaped Hawaiian convict, who attacked the school teacher, for attack and burglary. Kaikapu pleaded guilty shortly afterward and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Gov. Lawrence M. Judd said today he was doing all in his power "to correct the situation," when informed by the Washington Navy Department that men of the fleet would not be allowed ashore in Honolulu during February maneuvers unless crime conditions were abated.

Doctors in Connecticut Top Rum Prescriptions

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—All but two of the 2,165 physicians in Connecticut took out liquor prescription books from the Government in the fiscal year 1931, the Women's Christian Temperance Union has learned from the Federal commissioner of industrial alcohol.

Fewer than half the physicians in the United States received prescription books, doctors in Connecticut leading and Tennessee trailing the other 47 States. In Tennessee, only 19 of the 2,962 physicians took books.

GOVERNOR ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

KING ALBERT.

That is what his Republican opponents called Albert Cabell Ritchie in 1930. Ritchie was running for Governor of Maryland for the fourth time—an unheard of thing. Thus the cry of King Albert, and the Republicans charged that he was trying to set up a dynasty.

When the votes were counted, however, it was seen that Ritchie had won by an overwhelming majority—70,000 or more. This was a testimonial to his magnificent record as governor of the Free State.

Ritchie is perhaps the most handsome man who ever aspired to the Presidency. He gets his good looks from his mother, who was Elizabeth Cabell, celebrated Virginia beauty. Incidentally, Ritchie was born in Richmond, Va.

Unlike most presidential aspirants, Ritchie frankly admits that he is a candidate. He has always admitted it—ever since his friends began to boom him back in 1924. When the 1932 "Ritchie-for-President" boom was launched last night in Baltimore, Ritchie said: "Of course I would like to be President. Who would not?" E. T. F.

ROOSEVELT FORCES CLAIM LEAD AS DEMOCRATS MEET

forces opposed to the prohibition policies of Chairman Raskob. With the exception of a few members, mostly from the Northeastern section of the country, there were few committeemen not numbered among those fighting any move to have the national committee debate or vote on the Raskob "home rule" amendment.

June 24 Selected.

The informal proposal of the chairman to hold the convention ahead of the Republican sessions in Chicago also was stepped on. June 24, ten days after the Republican meeting, has been tentatively selected as the Democratic date.

If the Raskob proposals on prohibition referendum are brought before the committee, former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, will lead the fight against them. Although he has not committed himself to the Roosevelt candidacy, he is convinced that prohibition discussion should be postponed until the platform committee begins its deliberations in June.

With the arrival of former Gov. Smith, the 1928 candidate, there cropped up the usual consignment of rumors about the possibility of his renomination.

Silent on Discussion.

The former governor did nothing to set at rest the discussion of the part he will play in the forthcoming struggle. He would not talk and apparently avoided any long conferences. He was at the breakfast table in his hotel for two hours, and a score or more party leaders stopped and chatted with him on their way from the dining room.

"I will do my talking tonight at the Jackson Day dinner," he said. "Until then I won't say anything." Mr. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox, all former candidates for the Presidency, will be the principal speakers at the Jackson Day dinner.

Every available seat in the big Mayflower dining hall has been taken and hundreds of applicants have been turned down. A number of national committeemen went to Baltimore last night to witness the formal launching of Gov. Ritchie's preconvention campaign for the nomination.

The Ritchie field marshal, Howard Bruce, of Baltimore, has rented ten rooms at the Mayflower, and reservations have been made for 120 Ritchie supporters at the Jackson Day dinner. Gov. Ritchie himself is expected to come to Washington tomorrow.

Kansas City, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Kansas City put in its bid for the Democratic national convention with an offer of $150,000 late today, after business leaders had been informed from Washington an invitation would virtually assure the city's selection.

The offer agreed upon by Chamber of Commerce officials is $100,000 in cash to be turned over to the national committee, and a guarantee of another $50,000 to meet the convention expenses.

If the gathering is brought here, the sessions will be held in historic Convention Hall, scene of the 1900 Democratic convention and of the 1928 Republican convention.

With minor improvements, the structure is the same as in 1900, when it was hastily rebuilt in 90 days for the Democratic gathering after a disastrous fire.

Money Voted Quickly.

Business leaders were unanimous in voting the money after the situation had been presented by Conrad H Mann, president of the chamber, who made local arrangements for the last Republican convention.

The chamber directors authorized that the $100,000 in cash be made available at once, the amount to be covered later by subscriptions from business firms and individuals. The $50,000 for expenses is guaranteed from a fund which the chamber's industrial committee has for advertising and publicity.

The word from Washington that the Roosevelt forces on the national committee were anxious to throw the convention to this city and there was every reason to believe they would be successful, stirred civic leaders to action at the last minute. Only two days ago Mr. Mann had expressed the opinion no active effort would be made locally. Today he told business leaders:

"Responsible party leaders in Washington inform me we can have the convention if we desire it. My belief is that we are going to get it."

Administration Democratic.

The city administration here is Democratic and will throw its full force behind the local arrangements, which, however, will be made by civic leaders without regard to party.

A projected new $4,500,000 municipal auditorium will not be completed in time for the convention. Convention Hall, where Bryan was nominated in 1900, and Hoover in 1928, is adequate, however. The maximum seating capacity is 17,000.

One factor reported to have influenced the Roosevelt forces in approving the structure is that its size would prevent a host of spectators from entering and attempting to stampede delegates for rival presidential candidates.

Hotel facilities proved entirely sufficient in 1928, and have been expanded since so there will be no difficulty in housing visitors. The city's central location makes it readily accessible by all transportation avenues.

Chicago Delegation Leaves.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The second section of Chicago's delegation to the big Democratic powwow in Washington left today, determined to bring back the national convention.

Melvin A. Traylor, the Chicago banker who has been boomed in the South as a presidential possibility, and Mayor Anton Cermak headed the party of 60. Another group, bearing the city's invitation to the Democratic party and funds which it considered "sufficient to satisfy the national committee," left yesterday under the leadership of Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the nonpartisan committee that recently landed the Republican convention.

Some of the local office holders planned a brief vacation at Miami, Fla., after attending the sessions in Washington.

7 Hurt When Painters Fall Into Street Crowd

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Two painters working on advertising signs atop a three-story building at Thirty-fourth street and Herald Square today fell directly on five persons at a subway entrance when a scaffolding rope broke.

All seven involved in the accident were injured and three were taken to a hospital. The accident attracted a big crowd of shoppers and for nearly an hour traffic was at a standstill.

RITCHIE ENTERS RING AS 1932 CANDIDATE

executive stepped aside in favor of Alfred E. Smith.

In offering Gov. Ritchie to the Nation tonight, the free State Democrats sincerely felt that they were putting forward a winner. So enthusiastic are they themselves, these Maryland Democrats, about their handsome executive that they can not see how the remainder of the country can resist him.

Their enthusiasm was expressed in the cheers they raised for Ritchie, in the campaign slogans they coined, and in the songs they sang tonight.

"America will be safe with Ritchie," said one of the posters in the banquet hall of the Lord Baltimore Hotel.

The Ritchie boosters sang a dozen or more songs, most of them parodies on popular favorites. The meter may have been bad, but there was plenty of harmony and noise. It was a real, old-fashioned Democratic "pep" party.

Bruce Proposes Ritchie.

Gov. Ritchie was offered as a candidate by Howard Bruce, Democratic national committeeman for Maryland.

The banquet was by no means a local affair, however, as was evidenced by the presence here of Democratic leaders from many parts of the country. A score or more of political reporters came over from Washington to "cover" the event.

Aside from Ritchie, the orators of the evening were Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, and John Hemphill, who came very near being elected governor of Pennsylvania in 1930.

Senator Walsh was the best orator, but the friends of Ritchie were much more interested in Mr. Hemphill. That individual is seeking to line up delegates to vote for Gov. Ritchie at the next Democratic national convention. Meantime, Joseph Guffey, another Democratic power in the State, is trying to line up prospective delegates for Gov. Roosevelt.

Ritchie's speech, including a reiteration of his long-standing and unwavering opposition to national prohibition, outlined a generally conservative attitude which may be of importance in drawing a line of demarcation between his followers and those who favor the candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York.

Contrast Is Noticeable.

Particularly was the contrast between the two governors noticeable in Ritchie's declaration on the power issue tonight under the general heading of "Government in business." Ritchie said:

"I believe the collective wisdom is for a minimum of government and a maximum of freedom, and that it is against public ownership, whether of power, or railroads, or other utilities, and is in fact against every unnecessary form of governmental control, because these things tend to put the cold hand of death on the creative and competitive impulses of the American people."

However, Ritchie went on to declare that:

"This does not mean opposition to the regulation which Government must necessarily exercise in the public interest over the operations of utilities and great combines. It gives no comfort to any one who would thwart the proper and effective application of such necessary regulatory measures by obstructive tactics."

Divergence on Relief.

On the question of unemployment relief the divergence between the New Yorker and the Marylander was also emphasized by Ritchie's warning that:

"The danger here, as I see it, lies in the possibility of compulsory governmental unemployment insurance. Should that ever come, I believe it would mean a bureaucracy so great that it would outbureaucrat all other bureaucracies put together. Industry itself can avoid this danger by showing enlightened statesmanship of its own. It has always seemed to me that the obligation here rests primarily, not on government, but on industry itself."

As to emergency relief measures for those now in distress Ritchie contented himself with the statement that:

"It would be premature for any one not conversant with the actual facts to do more now than venture the hope that whatever action the present Congress may in its wisdom contemplate may square with the Democratic principles of self-reliance and State responsibility."

Ritchie prefaced his attack on prohibition with the statement that the present economic and social system should be described as individualistic rather than capitalistic.

Views on Personal Rights.

"Individualism does not stop with man's business and material activities," he said. "It gives him the right to live his life in freedom and in liberty so long as he does no hurt to the like rights of others or to the recognized sanctions of society.

"Properly applied, it would shield him from a hundred different ways in which Federal officers scattered through the various branches of government can annoy him and hector him to no good purpose. Just now there is hardly a phase of your life, from the cradle to the grave, from the cellar of your home to the contents of your pocket, into which Federal officers can not pry.

"The high-water mark of all this is national prohibition. Do not let us forget that—when we talk about the evils of centralized power. Our greatest progress toward temperance, which ought to be the goal of everybody, was made before we mixed morals, politics and legislation all up together, and tried to do by centralized force and constitutional fiat what can only be done by education and popular sanction and consent.

Time of Real Progress.

"Our real progress came while we were leaving the question of prohibition to the States, where it ought to be, and before we put it in the Constitution, where it ought not to be. I think it should be turned back to the States, so that each State may settle it in accordance with the needs and conditions of its own people, and be protected by the Federal Government against interstate shipments which would contravene its laws."

Touching upon his personal feelings with respect to his candidacy Ritchie asked:

"What Democrat, I ask you, would not like the chance of trying his hand at leading the hosts of democracy in this year of merited Democratic victory? What Democrat would not welcome the opportunity of straightening out this governmental muddle in Washington and trying to help make the old fashioned dream of old fashioned Americanism come true?"

He added that it is his "first aspiration" to see a Democratic victory and should the nomination go to another "then cheerfully and whole-heartedly it shall be my duty to fight in the ranks behind him, for him, and for all those cardinal and enduring things which are the living, breathing faith of our party."

Accuses Hoover of Silence.

Ritchie paid his respects to the man whom he hopes to succeed in the White House as follows:

"At such critical times as these, with millions of people out of work and in distress, the President's message to Congress, while characterized by some constructive suggestions, is characterized also by its great silences.

"Silence about prohibition and about the restoration of our national self-respect, the strengthening of our national morale, the increase of our national revenues and relief for unemployment, all of which could be made to follow the ending of the present system. Silence about Republican prosperity and about beautiful dreams of happy homes with two cars in the garage and a chicken in every pot. And if not silence, at least inadequacies for the suffering farmer, the suffering business man, and the suffering consumer."

John N. Hemphill, Democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania in the 1930 campaign, definitely pledged delivery of his State to the Democratic column in the 1932 election if Ritchie is nominated.

"There is a feeling," Hemphill said, "in many sections of the country, and it is especially pronounced in the South and the West, that we can afford to ignore, can even afford to compromise with, basic principles because it is so certain that a Democrat will be elected President this year."

"These timid ones stress the so-called economic issues and eliminate entirely our ancient and honorable creed of States' rights and refuse to apply it to the open sore of our body politic, national prohibition—they call it expedient so to do. I believe it cowardly and, furthermore, I deny its expediency, for America is reawakening to the validity of Jeffersonian democracy, and if our party is faithless to this creed, we will both lose respect and lose elections, not only in 1932 but in many years thereafter.

Some Party Must Act, He Says.

"Some political party must apply the doctrine of States' rights to the eighteenth amendment nonsense. If we do not do it some other party will be formed to do it, or perhaps strange as it may now seem, yesterday's party of centralization and bureaucracy, the Republican party, past master at expediency, may itself do it. For that reason, and not looking only to 1932, but to many years thereafter, I am firmly of the opinion that the expedient thing for us to do is to turn our back upon such timid Democrats who would compromise our fundamental principles with cowardly platform evasion.

"In the economic distress in which we are now floundering it has become the favorite banality among many Democrats, encouraged so to do by Republicans who fear wet Democracy, to proclaim that 'bread not beer' is the pressing issue. From the inclusion of one it does not follow that the other must be excluded. Tht Democrats of vision and courage will substitute for 'bread not beer' the slogan 'both bread and beer.'"

ATTERBURY UPHOLDS FOUR-LINE RAIL PLAN

President of Pennsylvania Road Tells I. C. C. Idea Is Best Possible.

(Associated Press.)

W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday said any change in the proposed four-system plan for consolidation of Eastern railroads would necessitate reopening negotiations that might endanger the work of eight years.

Testifying in hearings before Chairman Claude R. Porter of the Interstate Commerce Commission on the petition by the great Eastern trunk lines for modification of the commission's five-line consolidation plan, Atterbury said the railroads' scheme was the result of numerous concessions by all parties.

He indicated the belief that it could not be carried out on any basis other than outlined in the application. The fifth Eastern system as outlined in the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan announced in 1929 he pronounced lacking in possibility of proper financial stability.

The Delaware & Hudson Railroad, a bridge line to a New England gateway, was brought up in Atterbury's testimony as it was Wednesday in that of Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio. Atterbury, unlike Willard, opposed independent ownership of the line by any one. He asserted that joint control by all four systems was the only insurance against one party to the plan gaining control of the line.

During questioning regarding the disposition of various lines leading into New England, Atterbury took occasion to emphatically deny the Pennsylvania controls the New Haven Railroad.

H. T. Newcombe, of the Delaware & Hudson, a Loree Line, asked Atterbury to detail the stock holdings of the Pennroad Corporation in various lines that would go into the Pennsylvania system.

Atterbury flatly refused to answer questions regarding the subject on the ground that the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. does not own a single share of stock in the Pennroad Corporation and that to make such an inquiry would be prying into the affairs of a private stockholder.

form a new government—than merely replace M. Briand and the late war minister.

In his desire to conciliate all shades of operation, it was semiofficially stated, Premier Laval would ask the important radical-socialist party, constituting the bulk of his adversaries in the chamber of deputies, to cooperate in the formation of a new cabinet.

The premier believes, said the semi-official note, that internal politics under the present circumstances are dominated by grave problems of foreign policy.

It was recalled, in connection with the note, that M. Laval had previously tried to effect some sort of "national union" during the past year, but always met resistance man of the naval appropriations subcommittee in the last Congress, when Virgin Islands appropriations were carried in that bill.

Representatives William W. Hastings, of Oklahoma, and William J. Granfield, of Massachusetts (Democrats), and Frank Murphy (Republican), of Ohio, are the other members of the Interior Department subcommittee.

Both Chairman Taylor and Representative French said the committee did not intend to make any effort to pass on the witness of Gov. Pearson for his post because that was without the province of the committee. The inquiry, they said, would be confined to ascertainment of such facts as would enable the committee to decide whether the $412,000 appropriation asked for the Virgin Islands was necessary.

It was regarded as significant that the commitee rejected suggestions by Interior Department officials that they could furnish all information which might be required, and requested the department to ask Gov. Pearson to come before the committee in person.

Assistant Secretary John H. Edwards and Ebert K. Burlew, administrative assistant to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, also will be called again before the committee in the course of the islands inquiry, and indications are that the governor and department officials will have to be convincing to persuade the committee that their estimates should not be materially cut.

The Bureau of Efficiency investigation of conditions in the islands was begun before the appointment of Dr. Pearson, former head of Swarthmore University, while the islands still were under the administration of the Navy. The investigation was begun at the instance of congressional committees but Dr. Pearson is reported to have insisted that Mr. Brown be ordered out of the islands before he went there to take over the reins as first American civilian governor.

Gov. Pearson subsequently was charged with having violated the appropriations law in that he used for one purpose funds appropriated specifically for other purposes and took to the islands with him and put on the Government pay rolls several persons whose employment was not authorized.

Dispatches published in The Washington Post several months ago told of the expenditure of several thousands of dollars for performances of light opera on a boat taken over for the purpose and anchored in the harbor.

Another criticism has been that the cost of the central administration has been excessive and efforts to reduce this cost have been repulsed.

ROSENWALD BURIED WITH SIMPLE RITE

Wishes of Philanthropist Are Respected as Thousands Mourn.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Julius Rosenwald was buried today after simple private services in keeping with his entire life.

Without any eulogy, without any flowers and with only the members of his family attending, the last rites were held for one of the world's greatest philanthropists, a merchant prince who disliked ostentation.

Not long before he died yesterday afternoon, Mr. Rosenwald had told his son he wanted the simplest possible funeral. His thousands of friends respected those wishes today and mourned his passing with mere expressions of regret and messages of condolence to the family.

The services at the Rosenwald home in suburban Highland Park were conducted by Rabbi Louis L. Mann, of Sinai Temple, and consisted chiefly in the reading of Mr. Rosenwald's favorite Psalms—the 90th, the 23d, the 15th and the 24th. Burial was in the Rosehill Cemetery.

The capitalist's only brother, Louis, arrived from Salina, Kan., in time for the funeral. Arrangements for the services had been delayed for a short time until he could be reached. Thirty immediate relatives, by blood or marriage, attended the funeral.

The City Council today met in special session and passed a resolution as a "testimonial of the universal esteem in which he was held." Employes of Sears, Roebuck & Co. also expressed their regret at the death of their chief.

A group of Negro citizens in recognition for Mr. Rosenwald's great philanthropies for members of their race, planned a memorial service to be held January 17.

Olson, Girl's Killer, Reported Arrested

Man Taken Into Custody in Los Angeles Denies He Is Erdman Olson.

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A man identified as Erdman M. Olson, charged with murdering his sweetheart, Clara Olson, near Prairie du Chien, Wis., in September, 1926, was arrested here today.

Edward Hess, former Prairie du Chien resident, told officers the man, who said he is Jerome Hegeman, 23, is Olson, but Hegeman denied it. Although officers said he bore only slight resemblance to Olson's police circular photograph, he was held on a suspicion murder charge. Hegeman was picked up on a downtown street after he had been pointed out to police by Hess.

Numerous suspects have been arrested in this country and one in Canada in the Olson case since the body of the girl was found in a shallow grave near the home of Olson's father, Albert Olson, wealthy farmer, December 2, 1926.

Nonunion Worker Slain in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Robert Wesenberg, 40, who had worked with a steam shovel on an excavation job under police protection since Monday, was assassinated as he left his home for work today. Three bullets, suspected by police to have come from a labor foe, felled him. He was not a union shovel operator.

Man Shoots Wife And Kills Himself

Bodies Are Found in Camp on Sky-Line Trail Near Luray.

Luray, Va., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The bodies of Ben E. Gildersleeve and his wife were found dead in bed today at a contractor's camp on the Sky Line trail in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Luray.

Gildersleeve's right hand clasped a revolver which authorities said first fatally wounded his wife and then himself. An inquest will be held at Luray by Madison County authorities.

Mrs. Gildersleeve, cook at T. E. Rosenbaum's camp, had been separated for some time from her husband. He joined her several days ago. They are survived by a son, 14, and a daughter, 10.

Daisy de Boe Is Freed Again Pending Appeal

Los Angeles, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Daisy de Boe was released from jail today pending an appeal on a probationary sentence of 18 months passed last February, following her conviction on a charge of stealing an $835 ermine coat from Clara Bow, film actress.

Miss de Boe, who was the actress' former secretary, was ordered released by the second district court of appeals. She was released previously, pending an unsuccessful appeal. In her two periods of incarceration she has served approximately eight months.

Stimson Invokes Open Door and Treaties in Note Sent to Japan.

meditation. For the last fortnight he had been reviewing the precedents to be found in the case of analogous circumstances. The recent military advances of the Japanese forces into Manchuria which had carried them in their momentum beyond the confines of the Manchurian boundary and almost to the Great Wall itself, made a statement of view from the United States a necessity. However, it was emphatically stressed that no connection whatsoever was to be made between the present declaration and the Chamberlain incident. This was the occurrence at Mukden last Sunday when an American consul was assaulted by Japanese troops. The American note yesterday was conspicuous for its complete absence of truculence or asperity and was a calm, dispassionate statement of legal fact which one was justified in expecting from one of the great juridical minds in the country today.

While the Open Door and the Nine-Power Pact and even the now celebrated Pact of Paris are well-known international legal instruments, the unusual twist which was put to the Kellogg-Briand Pact is believed to be the most significant development in the Stimson statement.

This new and hitherto undeveloped application of the treaty invented by the French minister for foreign affairs, Aristide Briand, and the then American Secretary of State, Frank Billings Kellogg, in 1927, was mentioned in the communique given to the world after the first conference of President Hoover and British Prime Minister MacDonald in October, 1929. At that time the two statesmen said:

World Importance Seen.

"In signing the Paris peace pact 56 nations have declared that war shall not be used as an instrument of national policy. We have agreed that all disputes shall be settled by pacific means. Both our governments resolve to accept the peace pact not only as a declaration of good intentions, but as a positive obligation to direct national policy in accordance with its pledge."

The inclusion of the pact of Paris not only as an instrument for outlawing war, with which connection it has already been conspicuously invoked with regard to the 1929 Russian-Chinese clashes in Manchuria, but as an obligatory national policy, is believed to be the forerunner of important international connotations.

This is the first time that any one of the 50-odd nations which signed the pact has interpreted it in this fashion.

The rapid development of economic relations between the United States and the Orient has brought about a quickening of interest in the Far East which will in all probability gain in volume and i tensity in the passage of time. Since the war, American trade with the Orient has quadrupled and even this last year showed in the face of the most adverse business conditions elsewhere an increase of 10 per cent in the volume of American-Far East trade.

Similar Crisis in 1915.

Similar conditions to those which are now existing were facing the United States back in 1915. China had successfully passed through the menace of dismemberment by France, Germany and Russia, which had calmly proceeded to appropriate tracts of Chinese territory in Shantung and Indo-China, and England had taken Wei-Hai-Wei when John Hay issued his now historic "open door" statement. Japan, however, in 1915 had served China with an ultimatum in the form of her "21 demands."

Then it was that William Jennings Bryan, the Secretary of State, dispatched the following note to the Chinese government and at the same time sent an identic message to the Japanese government:

"In view of the circumstances of the negotiations which have taken place and which are now pending between the Government of China and the Government of Japan and of the agreements which have been reached as a result thereof, the Government of the United States has the honor to notify the Government of the Chinese Republic that it can not recognize any agreement or understanding which has been entered into or which may be entered into between the governments of China and Japan impairing the treaty rights of the United States and its citizens in China, the political or territorial integrity of the Republic of China, or the international policy relative to China commonly known as the open door policy."

The immediate result of this note was somewhat delayed by the World War, which prevented more expeditious action by Japan. Some seven years later, however, the ultimate evacuation of Shantung by the Tokyo government was completed. It is expected that Japan will make a somewhat analagous decision in the present instance.

Tokyo's Position Unchanged.

Tokyo, Jan. 8 (Friday) (A.P.).—The Japanese government this morning had not yet received official word that the United States had invoked the Nine-Power Treaty in the Manchurian situation arising out of Japan's conflict with China.

It was understood, however, that Japan's policy remained unchanged, the Japanese government having contended from the beginning of the Manchurian outbreak that the affair concerned Japan and China and there was no occasion for any interference by a third party.

The American, British and French ambassadors called separately at the foreign office today, and it was authoritatively stated their visits were not related in any way.

Sir Oswald Lindley, the British ambassador, inquired about the impairment of British interests in the Peiping-Mukden Railway as a result of the action of the Japanese army in retaining the road's receipts.

He was informed, it was understood, the money had been kept so that it might not fall into the hands of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, but with the withdrawal of Chang it will be paid to the British.

China Welcomes Move.

Nanking, China (Friday), Jan 8 (U.P.).—Chinese official circles today received press reports of Secretary Stimson's action in connection with the Kellogg Pact and the Nine-Power Treaty with expressions of complete satisfaction.

Although official comment was withheld pending receipt of information through diplomatic channels, it was said that the action was the first hopeful prospect for relief of China since the Manchurian conflict began.

The Chinese officials were believed to have been convinced that the League of Nations is unable to halt the Japanese advance, which has progressed far southward from Chinchow toward the Great Wall of China.

Army of Jobless Marchers Gathers at Nation's Capitol

Underwood & Underwood.

Father Cox's army of jobless, 10,000 strong, as they massed on Capitol Plaza yesterday morning just before their leader presented petitions for unemployment relief to Senator Davis and Representative Kelley, of Pennsylvania. The army was orderly and good-natured and the photograph shows them cheering their leaders and waving American flags.

CHAIRMAN OF LEAGUE REGRETS U. S. DELAY

Nine-Power Treaty Should Have Been Invoked at First, Murray Says.

London, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Prof. Gilbert Murray, chairman of the League of Nations Union, expressed regret tonight that the United States had delayed so long in invoking the nine-power treaty in Japan's conflict with China.

"I had always considered that the action of Japan was not consistent with the nine-power treaty," he said, "and I am only sorry that the United States did not call the attention of Japan to the point at the beginning, when it could have been done with less friction."

Viscount Cecil, British delegate to the League of Nations, when informed of the United States' action, confined himself to a remark that "it seems to be a matter of considerable importance."

The news from Washington arrived long after the British working day was over and foreign office officials said they had heard nothing about the American move before leaving for their homes. In the circumstances, they said, they were not prepared to do more than express their extreme interest in the new development.

Inquiries at the offices of some of the leading morning newspapers brought a response that the editorial writers were unwilling to comment on such short notice on what they considered to be a major event in international affairs.

The Reuters (British) News Agency, in material supplied to newspapers in connection with the Washington dispatches, said the decision of the United States to invoke the treaty "marks the gravest development that has yet taken place in the Manchurian crisis."

It linked the American decision with the recent assault by three Japanese at Mukden on Culver B. Chamberlain, United States consul at Harbin.

"Although the Japanese government have tendered their regrets in Washington and although Mr. Stimson has now announced the apology has been accepted," the Reuters Agency said, "American public opinion has been far from satisfied. We now see the first moves of the American reaction."

New Minister of China Presented at White House

(Associated Press.)

Dr. W. W. Yen, new Minister from China to the United States, yesterday presented his credentials to President Hoover but said he was undecided when he would leave to take up his even newer post as China's member of the League of Nations council.

Word reached the capital yesterday that Dr. Yen had been asked by his government to leave immediately for Europe to replace China's present delegate on the league council.

A 15-minute ceremony in the blue room of the White House was required for Dr. Yen's formal presentation.

In his remarks to the President he said his government considered it "a matter of moment that in view of the very critical international situation in the Far East and of the earnest efforts which are being made to arrive at a just, equitable and peaceful settlement, I should enter into the duties of my office in order to render any assistance that may be needed to restore conditions to peace and normalcy."

Japanese Leaders Talk On War at G.U. Tonight

Japan's policy in Manchuria will be discussed from the Japanese viewpoint tonight at 8:30 o'clock, in the public forum conducted under the auspices of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service. The speakers, Count Ayseke Kabayama, member of the House of Peers, and Takashi Komatsu, director of the Asano Shipbuilding Co., are two of the leading men of Japan.

Their lectures open the Georgetown series on international affairs and at a later date the newly appointed Chinese minister, W. W. Yen, will present the Chinese view of the Far Eastern situation. The date will be announced soon.

JOBLESS ARMY OF 12,000 QUITS CAPITAL, FOLLOWING APPEAL

country, which has been so greatly disturbed, largely from abroad.

"The Federal Government is spending now half a billion a year above normal to give employment. World-wide depressions and their resultant unemployment are like great wars. They must be fought continuously, not on one front, but upon many fronts. It can not be won by any single skirmish or panacea. In the present and what I believe is the final campaign against the depression, I have laid a program before Congress and I trust we will secure its early adoption. The real victory is to restore men to employment through their regular jobs. That is our object. We are giving this our undivided attention."

In a Nation-wide broadcast over the Columbia System at 3:30 o'clock yesterday, Father Cox, explained his march as an antidote to the Communist march of last month and explained what the marchers had accomplished during the day in the way of placing their proposals before Congress and President Hoover.

"President Hoover," Father Cox said, "feels we must stabilize things in an orderly fashion, that we must restore conditions so that workers will go back to the old jobs. We disagree. We believe this is an emergency that must be faced, just as we faced the emergency of war. If forty billions of dollars could be appropriated for war, certainly five billions can be appropriated in this emergency for employment in order to make it possible for our people to go back to work and happiness. And that five billions will be of permanent value. The forty billions was spent on temporary things."

Marchers Cramped and Wet.

Cramped and sore from their bivouac on the floors of abandoned buildings, and hundreds of them wet and cold from a night's exposure to the elements, they nevertheless assembled on Maryland avenue southwest and adjoining streets to prepare for the march to the Capitol. They had been refreshed by food and coffee prepared for them by rolling kitchens from Fort Myer.

Father Cox and the Rev. Casimer F. Orlemanski, one of his aids, said mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and were given a rousing welcome when they appeared at the head of the column, shortly after 11 o'clock to lead the march.

A fireman's band from North Braddock, Pa., led the way, followed by a group of 30 former service men, attired in their well-worn olive drab uniforms, who acted as an honor guard. Many of them carried canes and were limping.

Petition Asks Jobs.

As they reached the plaza Mrs. Julia Cox and Dr. Earl Cox, mother and brother of the priestly leader, affectionately greeted them. Amid shouts and songs of the assemblage, he presented the four-point petition to Senator Davis and Representative Kelly.

The petition asked for a five-billion-dollar works program to give jobs; direct Federal appropriations for unemployed relief loans to reestablish the farmer, and that the money be raised by increasing the surtaxes on large incomes, inheritance taxes up to 70 per cent, and by a large gift tax.

Senator Davis said "that one fine thing about the demonstration is that it has come in an orderly way, bearing the American flag. One of the men planted the flag near the group of the march leaders and Father Cox then led in the pledge to the flag. Representative Kelly said the demonstrators were "loyal Americans, led by the kindly Father Cox." As the marchers left Capitol Hill, their petitions were read in the Senate and House of Representatives.

Received at White House.

The men were again fed at the rolling kitchens, scattered in the Southwest section, while Father Cox led the committee to the White House, accompanied by E. W. Franc, who was dressed as Uncle Sam. While there Father Cox told President Hoover, if "relief is not forthcoming soon, then God help the country."

Among those who witnessed the services at the Arlington amphitheater, were the Right Rev. William Hughes, president of the Army Chaplains Association, and the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, both of whom served overseas with Father Cox.

The food for the men on the trek here was donated by the merchants of Pittsburgh. Donations received from a radio appeal furnished gasoline and oil for most of the cars. This money was soon exhausted and Father Cox yesterday received several donations of money, one from Senator Davis, who offered to aid the men in the purchase of gasoline.

All that filling station proprietors have for much of their sales is the personal word of Father Cox that they will be paid. Father Cox intends to broadcast an appeal for funds when he returns in order to pay the outstanding bill which will run into thousands of dollars.

Senator Davis gave Father Cox an order for 30,000 gallons of gasoline for the homeward journey.

571 Stragglers Returned To Pittsburgh by Trucks

Pittsburgh, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Trucks bearing 571 stragglers from the march of unemployed on Washington came into Pittsburgh early today.

One man had frozen feet and many of them were so numb with cold that they were tied to the trucks to keep them from falling off.

The trucks were sent out last night and they followed highways as far east as Edensburg, Pa. Great containers of coffee and 1,100 sandwiches were taken to give the hungry.

Many of the men were described as ill from exposure and hunger by an aid to the Rev. James R. Cox, leader of the march.

2 WOMEN FLIERS' BODIES RECOVERED

Wreckage of Plane Also Is Found in Mountains of Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Pennsylvania's mountains, grave yard of aviation, today yielded the crushed and broken bodies of two young women on the eve of their projected flight from New York to Buenos Aires.

Near the wing-stripped, splintered wreckage of their plane, Pennsylvania National Guardsmen and forest rangers found the bodies of Mrs. Ruth Stewart, 26, St. Louis, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, 28, Indianapolis.

Lost in the rain and fog which separated it from a companion plane early Tuesday afternoon, the ship had crashed in the heart of the Tuscarora State forest, 40 miles west of this city and 30 miles north of the Southern State line.

Soaked With Gasoline.

The bodies, which authorities had difficulty in identifying, were soaked with gasoline, but the ignition of the plane had been cut off by Mrs. Stewart. There was no fire in this latest of the mountain crashes which have taken the lives of twelve air mail pilots as well as of less experienced aviators.

Mrs. Stanford, in the rear seat, was trapped by the telescoped framework, which had to be sawed away by cavalrymen removing the bodies. Both legs were broken and she suffered a deep gash in the forehead. Unlike the pilot, who was killed instantly, Mrs. Stanford had survived the crash only to die while fog obscured the wreckage yesterday.

In the mist which hid her from the view of Gentry Shelton and her parents, traveling in an accompanying plane, Mrs. Stewart lost her bearings after crossing all but one ridge. As she circled about in the low-hanging clouds, the plane was headed westward into the mountain and crashed.

Began Trip Unwillingly.

Richard G. Herbine, State aviation inspector, said the plane either had gone into a spin in the thick fog or had nose-dived into the soft earth at the end of a glide.

At the hotel where she had waited anxiously through two days for word from their daughter, her mother today said Mrs. Stewart had begun unwillingly the flight from Terre Haute to Pittsburgh and Harrisburg. En route to New York from where she and Mrs. Stanford planned to make an attempt to lower the flying time to South America, Mrs. Stewart told her mother she "Didn't like to take off in this weather." Her query, "Why can't we wait until it clears up" was overruled by the persuasion of other fliers.

Idle Man Stricken Ill; Has $1,050 in Pockets

Stricken with a fainting attack yesterday, M. John Cylkouski, 50-year-old Pittsburgh member of the unemployed army, remained here in an Emergency Hospital bed. A member of the brass band, he dropped unconscious to the street and after being taken to the hospital, suffered a second seizure there.

In his pockets were $1,050. He wore a diamond ring. Hospital authorities were told that the money was his savings which he withdrew from a bank when the march commenced. He said he lost his job, that of collector for a furniture company, last July.

ARGENTINA REBELS FACE DEATH IN FIRE

Wooded Stronghold in Which Small Band Is Hiding Put to Torch.

La Paz, Argentina, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Police set fire today to an island forest in an effort to burn out the three Kennedy brothers, who led a brief uprising Sunday.

The fire was started on the small island of La Dedonda in the Parana River, 300 miles northwest of Buenos Aires, to destroy or drive out the brothers Mario, Eduardo and Raul, and their small band of rebellious henchmen, who were thought to have taken refuge.

The bodies of five provincial policemen, slain yesterday in a skirmish with the rebels, were found on the island. There, too, was a recently abandoned camp of the Kennedys, but no clew to their whereabouts.

A reconnoitering party pierced the islet forest after army airplanes had flown over it and raked the ground with machine gun fire, without sighting the rebels.

The dead found this afternoon included the assistant chief of police of Entre Rios Province, two sergeants and two patrolmen, three shot through the head, two through the heart, indicating that the fight was at close quarters.

Beside the embers of a campfire, police said, were a discarded revolver and several personal effects. Some doubted, however, that the Kennedys still were on the island. They suspected that the rebel leaders had fled to another island of the many in the river there.

The machine gun and bomb attack from the air today was the first such use of the Argentine air corps in its history, except in sham battle maneuvers.

Latin Nations May Move Cash From London to U.S.

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—While Dr. Edwin W. Kemmerer, internationally famous money expert, conferred at the Federal Reserve bank on Latin American finances today, Wall street banking circles understood that several of the South American republics bordering on the Pacific are planning to remove their cash balances from London to New York.

Dr. Kemmerer returned from Lima, Peru, last week with Eric Lamb, of the Federal Reserve bank, where the two Americans acted as observers and advisors at a joint meeting of representatives of the Central banks of Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador and Colombia.

armament while the United States has been "doing practically nothing" in warship construction.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, added the remark that much of Japan's naval building has been done with "money borrowed in the United States."

Instead of a ratio of five for the United States and Great Britain and three for Japan as permitted by the naval treaties, Hale contended the present ratio is: United States, 10; Great Britain, 11.6, and Japan, 7, while on the expiration of the London Treaty at the end of 1936 the ratio of ships not over age, if new American construction is not undertaken, will be United States, 10; Great Britain, 9.9, and Japan, 10.

Japan, he said, instead of being on the short end of a 5-5-3 ratio, will be practically equal with this country in tonnage and will have boosted its ratio from 4.5 in 1922 to 10, an increase of 122 per cent.

After conceding that the United States had increased bargaining power at London by virtue of the 15-cruiser program it had adopted shortly before, Adams was asked what the Government had to take to Geneva to gain a similar advantage.

Smilingly he replied: "We may have a great moral claim by being under the other fellow. I don't know."

He declined to commit himself when Senator Smith (Democrat), South Carolina, suggested that America by keeping its construction to a minimum might aid disarmament by its example, but Hale said this had been done for the last ten years with the result the American Navy has been left behind in naval building.

In answer to questions, Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of construction, said it would be possible to build the American Navy up to treaty limits in four years if the money were provided this July 1. Adams and Hale estimated the cost at $765,000,000.

Unemployed Youth Collapses at Baths

North Carolina Boy Who Came Here to Seek Work Is in Hospital.

On the eve of the departure of Father Cox's hunger marchers from Washington late yesterday, a more realistic hunger march was brought to light when the Fire Department ambulance was called to a Turkish bath house at Fifteenth and G streets northwest, to remove an unemployed youth to Emergency Hospital.

Clifton Nelms, 19, of Rocky Mount, N. C., reached Washington Wednesday after days of tramping other city streets looking for work. After getting a bath at the establishment, he was treated for a blister on the right heel by W. E. Butcher, assistant manager, who also offered to help the youth find work.

Returning again yesterday to see if Btucher had found any prospect of employment, Nelms was again treated for the blister. As he arose to leave, according to Butcher, Nelms suddenly screamed with pain and fell, unconscious, to the floor. At Emergency Hospital it was stated that no signs of poisoning could be found and the case was thought to be not serious.

Kingsford-Smith Hops for Australia.

Hamble Hampshire, England, Jan. 7 (A.P.). — Air Commodore Charles Kingsford-Smith left today in his airplane, Southern Star, on the first leg of a return flight to Australia. He landed in England December 16 with the Christmas mails from Australia, picking them up after another airplane which began the trip crashed in Malaya.

Jobless Car Driver Hits Woman; Held

Five Companions Stick to Him; All Fed and Jailed Pending Outcome.

An automobile, said to have been operated by Frank L. Klaeser, of Pittsburgh, Pa., struck and knocked down an elderly woman at the intersection of Wisconsin avenue and Macomb street northwest, last night.

According to police the machine struck Mrs. Elizabeth Gilmore, 68 years old, of 3319 Wisconsin avenue, as she attempted to cross the street. She was treated by a private physician for bruises to the legs and head. Her condition is said to be undetermined.

Klaeser and five companions, who were en route to their homes, were held by police pending the outcome of Mrs. Gilmore's injuries. Although the other occupants of the machine were free to go their way, they insisted on remaining until Klaeser was freed. They were taken to the precinct station house, where after a hearty meal furnished by the policemen, they were placed in cells for the night.

Private C. W. Peters, when he learned the men had barely enough gasoline to reach their homes, said he would donate a full tank of gas before their departure.

9 ARMY PROMOTIONS ARE SENT TO SENATE

Two New Major Generals and Seven Brigadiers Asked by Hoover.

President Hoover yesterday forwarded to the Senate recommendations for the promotion of two officers to the rank of major general and seven others to the rank of brigadier general.

Brig. Gen. Edgar T. Collins was named to be major general on June 1, 1932, succeeding Maj. Gen. John L. Hines who retires May 31, 1932. Gen. Collins was graduated from West Point in 1897, saw active service in the Philippine Islands and took part in the campaigns in Cuba, participating in the engagement at San Juan Hill. He has been decorated as an officer of the Legion of Honor and holds the Distinguished Service Medal of the United States.

Col. Frederick W. Coleman was recommended to be appointed chief of finance with the rank of major general for a period of four years beginning April 23, 1932, succeeding Maj. Gen. Roderick L. Carmichael, to be relieved on account of expiration of a four-year detail. Col. Coleman is a graduate of the Infantry and Cavalry School in 1904, the Army War College in 1922 and of Rock Hill College in 1897. He has been finance officer of the Sixth Corps Area, Fort Sam Houston from September 14, 19[illegible], to date. Col. Coleman holds the Distinguished Service Medal and has been awarded two silver star citations.

Air Corps Promotion.

Lieut. Col. Oscar Westover, of the Air Corps, has been named to be assistant to the chief of the Air Corps, with the rank of brigadier general, filling the vacancy created by the appointment of Brig. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois as chief of Air Corps. Col. Westover was graduated from the Military Academy in 1906 and served in the Signal Corps until June 2, 1919, when he was detailed to the Air Corps. He was graduated from the Balloon School in 1921, the Air Service Advanced Flying School in 1923 and the Air Corps Tactical School in 1927. He has been instructor and chief of the Air Corps Subsection Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth from August 20, 1928, to the present time. He holds ratings as an air pilot, air observer, airship pilot and balloon observer.

Col. Julian R. Lindsey was named to be brigadier general as of January 1, 1932, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Brig. Gen. Henry J. Hatch, who died December 31, 1931. Col. Lindsey holds the Distinguished Service Medal "for the brilliant and successful attack of the 164th Infantry Brigade, Eighty-second Division, in the Argonne Forest under his command."

Col. Perry L. Miles was nominated to be brigadier general February 1, 1932, succeeding Brig. Gen. William P. Jackson, who retires January 31, 1932. Col. Miles is the holder of the Distinguished Service Cross, the Distinguished Service Medal, the French Croix de Guerre with Palm, and the French Legion of Honor in the grade of officer.

Farm Board Will Lend Funds to Tobacco Men

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Board has agreed to help Kentucky and Tennessee tobacco growers in their present low-price difficulties. The growers of dark fired tobacco were told to complete organization of their cooperative, obtain primary financing from commercial banks, and then the board would advance secondary loans for the farmer members.

Chairman Stone said yesterday that the original amount of loans asked from the board was excessive, amounting to more than the actual value of tobacco on hand. He added the growers had accepted the board's position that it could not extend that much credit.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

LEVEE BREAK ROUTS RESIDENTS OF DELTA

Hundreds Seek Refuge From Rising Waters Which Wreck Homes.

Glendora, Miss., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Warned by the dreaded glare of signal flares and the firing of pistols and shotguns, taken up from community to community to carry the word downstream, residents of the Tallahatchie River Valley fled for their lives today ahead of floodwater unleashed by a levee break near Sharkey.

Glendora, across the swollen river from the break in the twilight levee, and other nearby communities, forgot their own troubles from rising waters hammering at their dikes and manned rescue boats.

The flood swiftly spread over 30,000 acres and ran back into the Tallahatchie below Phillip, 10 or 12 miles to the South. Dead live stock of all sorts was seen floating on the flood waters, and near the break itself homes were overturned and washed away.

Despite the valiant rescue work of crews from Glendora, Charletson and other towns, fear was expressed that there might be new names to add to the death list of two recorded in three weeks of high water. One Negro was drowned yesterday and another in the early stages of the flood.

Tom James, a planter of the Sharkey community, said the roar of the opening crevasse was sufficient for residents within several miles.

By noon today the break had widened to 100 feet and was pouring the full force of the Tallahatchie over hundreds of farms in Tallahatchie County and down into Leflore.

Complete evacuatoin of the communities of Tippo, Payne, Marcel, Delta and even Phillip was threatened. Hundreds of refugees fled north toward Charleston and south toward Phillip. The latter town itself was the scene of a battle to the finish against the river, with hundreds of fresh convicts from the State prison farm thrown into the fight to hold the lines of weakened levees.

Tammany Leader Accused of Theft

Culkin, Former Sheriff, Took County Funds, Seabury Charges.

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A Tammany leader was accused today of having been in the liquor business while he was sheriff of New York County and of "getting money out of the city treasury to which he was not entitled."

The charge, against Charles W. Culkin, was made by Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter legislative committee, after James M. McCunn, preprohibition liquor dealer and later Culkin's partner in a lamp business, was shown to have made bank deposits of $1,310,797 in the last six years.

An accountant testified the largest deposits were made while Culkin was sheriff and at a time when Seabury charged McCunn and Culkin were running a joint liquor business. Seabury said he would prove his charges.

Legion Head to Ask 6-HourDay on U.S.Work

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Henry L. Stevens, jr., national commander of the American Legion, announced in an address here tonight that the legion will seek legislation to make mandatory, on Government construction projects, a six-hour day, at six hour pay, and five days a week.

Stevens said he had telegraphed John Thomas Taylor, vice chairman of the national legislative committee of the legion, in Washington, to use the influence of the organization to obtain passage of a law requiring such a clause in each governmental construction contract.

COURT TEST IS DUE ON GANDHI'S ARREST

Nationalist Attorneys Will Seek Review of Seizure Under 1827 Law.

Bombay, India, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The legality of the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, leader of Indian Nationalists in their struggle for independence from British authority, will be tested in the courts.

Nationalist attorneys announced today they would apply Monday for a writ of habeas corpus which would call for a high court review of the mahatma's arrest under an 1827 law.

Meanwhile all India remained tense. Several persons were injured at Benares when police with staves dispersed a crowd which had assembled in defiance of prohibitory orders.

In Calcutta five live bombs were discovered in a first-class compartment of the Darjeeling Express. The bombs were found when the train arrived at Calcutta.

Attorneys backing the legal fight to release the mahatma said he could not be held indefinitely in prison under a regulation they considered antiquated and vague. The 1827 law has never been challenged in court, and they willl attempt to test it before the highest tribunal in India.

The law empowers the government to "place under personal restraint" without the formality of trial any person whose arrest is considered necessary to prevent "internal commotion."

Mr. Gandhi, who was admitted to the bar in London years ago, probably will plead his own case in the event he is taken before the court.

Three hundred American tourists got a taste of the civil disobedience campaign when they came ashore at Bombay today in the course of a world cruise. Scientifically Purer..

Something every smoker wants to know!

● Absolutely pure . . . that's what you expect in the things you eat and drink . . . and in the cigarettes you smoke.

"Chesterfields are as pure as the water you drink," a noted scientist writes. There's no way to make a purer cigarette.

Starting with tobaccos . . . the ripest, finest, purest leaf that grows is selected for Chesterfields. Mild to start with . . . Cross-Blending makes it milder still. Then it's wrapped in paper that is so pure it burns without any taste or odor.

The phrase "Scientifically Purer" is entirely justified. By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, the Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

In addition, scientists check every ingredient, every method. Even the factory air is washed, and changed every 4½ minutes. More purity!

Notice, too, the clean, white, attractive package . . . moisture-proof. Chesterfields come to you as good and as pure as they're made. Good . . . they've got to be good! Change to Chesterfields and see.

DEMOCRATS FOREGATHER.

Democrats will gather tonight at the Jackson Day dinner to clear the way for what they hope will be a mighty victory for their party next fall. They expect to win the Presidency and both branches of Congress.

Three defeated candidates for President will be the principal speakers at the dinner.

Not physically present, but actually present in mind of every Democrat at the dinner, will be the Governor of New York, who carried that great State with 725,000 votes to spare.

It may be well immediately after a battle to hold a conference of defeated generals and field marshals, to take account of the reasons for defeat, so that disaster shall not occur again in the same manner. But when a battle is approaching, and there is need of a general who can inspire his army with the expectation of victory instead of defeat, it is well to choose one who has never been defeated, and whose victories can be regarded as harbingers of greater triumphs.

The Democrat most acceptable to the greatest number of Democrats in all sections is Franklin D. Roosevelt. It is not necessary for him to come to the Jackson Day dinner to impress himself upon Democratic leaders. They know he is the first choice of the rank and file of the party. Some of these leaders have declared for him, others are inclined to do so, and others oppose him.

It is commonly believed that Chairman Raskob is opposed to the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt; that he prefers to bring about the renomination of former Gov. Smith. Gov. Smith's noncommittal attitude up to this time has been attributed to a desire to win the nomination for himself, if opportunity should offer. He has not said anything that indicates opposition to Gov. Roosevelt. It has not been necessary to commit himself to anybody, and he has been wise in watching the trend of events and party opinion.

The time is nearly at hand, however, when Democrats in all parts of the country will ask Gov. Smith to define his attitude toward Gov. Roosevelt. Gov. Smith's position is unique. He enjoys immense personal popularity and party influence. If he does not possess power to veto the nomination of any candidate for the nomination, he is at least in a position to make such a fight that any nominee opposed by him would be weakened in the campaign.

It is not in the interest of the United States that one of the two great political parties should be so embittered by internal dissensions in selecting a candidate and adopting a platform as to lose the confidence of the people in its ability to conduct the Government. No President should be elected by default. The battle should be between two strong men, backed by united and enthusiastic parties. Then the people could make their choice on principles and policies, as well as on personalities. The fundamental doctrines of the Republican and Democratic parties should always be sharply defined by the rigors of a countrywide battle before the people.

If there is any way in which the Democratic party can shake off the two-thirds rule before the next convention the reform should be adopted. The rule is antidemocratic, and against the best interests of the country, as well as damaging to the Democratic party. It gives too much power to a minority and defeats the will of the majority. Democrats should shake off the ancient rule that virtually insures bitter strife in the national convention. The man who commands the support of a majority of Democrats is entitled to be their nominee for the Presidency, according to all the rules of Americanism and fair play.

FUTILE HUNGER MARCHES.

Why are hunger marches? Who finances this latest invasion of the Capital by a mechanized army of unemployed? The first demonstration of this kind was frankly Communistic, but there is no explanation of the backing that provides traveling expenses for the present futile parade. Gasoline for 2,200 automobiles and the machines themselves are not secured for such a trip without organized effort. The source of these supplies and the real object of this latest imposition upon the charity of the Federal District should be investigated.

The absolute bootlessness of these mass demonstrations must be apparent to all the more intelligent participants in them. The leaders know that their impudent demands are impossible of fulfillment. Every member of Congress and the administration is fully alive to existing conditions in this country, and nothing that hunger marchers can offer will add to their knowledge or expedite relief measures. On the other hand they impose an unwarranted burden upon relief funds of the Capital that are needed for its own unemployed. So-called marchers with paid drivers and brass bands, using hundreds of motors and buying gasoline with funds that would provide them with food, do not constitute a proper appeal to charity.

This latest cavalcade met a congenial spirit in the Governor of Pennsylvania when it passed through Harrisburg. Gov. Pinchot, who has made a couple of mendicant trips to Washington himself, could not do less than commend the fruitless journey of the Pittsburgh contingent on a similar errand to the National Capital. The governor's begging trips were even more to be deplored. He did not even come as the representative of men out of work, but as the executive of one of the richest States of the Union, asking Federal aid when almost without exception other communities are not only caring for their own needy citizens, but disdaining Government assistance in doing so.

Whether they are misguided enthusiasts fully believing that the trek to Washington might accomplish some good, or whether they are the unwitting tools of more sinister influences, the organizers of these hunger marches are not doing the cause of American workers any good. American unemployed are not uncared for, and will not be allowed to starve. The very fact that such a procession could be equipped as it was for a march to Washington is evidence that the same effort would have provided many jobs and certainly food for those who participated in it. Hunger marches should be discouraged at the point of their inception. They are useless and wasteful, and utterly without any power for good in the present situation.

FIGHTING AMERICAN SHIPS.

Competition by the Government with its own citizens is always reprehensible, but when the Government spends millions of dollars to stimulate a private enterprise and then insists upon competing with that agency for business the situation becomes ridiculous. That is how Uncle Sam is dealing with the American merchant marine. Congress has instructed the Shipping Board to dispose of Government-owned vessels as rapidly as possible and to get out of the shipping business. Liberal terms are granted to the purchasers of these vessels; generous mail contracts are awarded to many of them, and vast sums are lent by the Government for the construction of new ships that will carry the American flag into every port. Yet Congress at the same time maintains transport systems for the Army, the Navy and the Panama Canal Railroad, all of which compete directly with the American merchant fleet.

This anomalous situation was brought to the attention of the House this week by Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana. His plea for the Government to get out of the transportation business is especially germane at present, because of the need for economy and the plight of the merchant fleet. The American Steamship Owners Association recently estimated that the Government could save upward of $4,500,000 annually by turning the business now carried on by these special transport systems to private carriers. Government transport vessels could be sold by the Shipping Board. When private ships are in a position to render better service with less expense to taxpayers there is not the slightest excuse for maintaining these obsolete transport systems.

One other reason for abolishing the transports is the discrimination that results from the operation of these ships out of only New York and San Francisco. All supplies needed by the Panama Canal, for example, must be delivered by the vendor at either of those ports. This makes it impossible for concerns in the Middle West or even those having easy access to Gulf ports to compete for this business. In fairness to other ports and to all citizens the Government should allow an equal opportunity to firms bidding for its orders.

Apparently the only reason why Congress has maintained this ambiguous policy in dealing with the merchant marine is because of the junket privileges which members of that body have on Army and Navy transport ships. Congressmen take their families and sail to remote places to "investigate," paying only for their board. When the Treasury is confronted with a huge deficit and taxes must be raised, it is a good time to abolish this congressional graft. The Government can not afford to maintain special fleets of merchant ships for the benefit of pleasure-seeking congressmen.

The usual excuse offered for continuation of this transport service is that the ships are an adjunct to the Navy in case of war. The same vessels would be no less available if they were in private hands. The merchant marine is always subject to command of the Government when emergencies arise. Modern vessels and not the antiquated boats that make up the transport service would be called into action to supplement the Navy if war should break out.

Congress will never have a better opportunity than the present to get rid of these transport systems and thus strengthen the position of the American merchant fleet. Congressional junkets and delusive notions of economy through Government competition with private ships should not be allowed to stand in the way of this urgent improvement.

WAGE SLASHERS REBUKED.

An excellent day's work was performed by the House committee on expenditures in the executive departments when it crushed the movement to reduce Federal salaries. With remarkable dispatch the committee cut off the hearings on these measures and threw them into the discard. Assurance is given that the salaries of Government employes will not be cut.

The committee is to be congratulated on disposing of this movement before it augmented to any great extent the feeling of unrest and instability that is abroad throughout the country. A slash in Federal salaries would have been equivalent to notice that the United States Government had succumbed to depression psychology. By nipping this insidious propaganda in the bud, the House committee has maintained the confidence of Congress in America's ability to shake off despair and depression.

Notice is given to the Senate that any attempt to slash Government salaries will fail. Senators who have been guided by this counsel of despair would do well to acknowledge the futility of any further action on their bills. Let the matter be dropped as a disgraceful chapter in the record of panaceas calculated to deal with a difficult economic situation. Any further agitation of the question would take on the aspect of destructive but futile propaganda aimed at the security of American working men and women throughout the country.

Some Democrats are not so much afraid that the tax increase will affect the return of prosperity as they are that it will affect their return to power.

When Gandhi was sent to jail he carried some books with him, but some of our prisoners are allowed to carry machine guns.

No matter what Chairman Raskob suggests, Southern Democrats reply: "That will not do; I would fain die a dry death!"

IN THE SENATE GALLERY

An Arkansas Farmer Speaks His Mind While Watching Senators.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is as much sense in "cursing Peter" as there is in cursing President Hoover because of this depression. No one man is responsible for our present condition. We are now reaping what we have sown in the last twenty years. The way we have lived has brought on all our troubles. The only way in God's world to remedy things is to live on less and cut down on expenses. This is the way to reduce taxes and save money.

We must quit lending money to Europe. "Get out of Europe and stay out of Europe," as Senator Borah said. Let Congress pass laws forbidding loans to defaulting foreigners. Let the rich men lend their money here at home and develop our own country. We don't need Europe for anything. As long as the United States will furnish the money the rest of the world will fight and frolic and have a good time.

Let Congress appropriate $100,000,000 to buy 40 acres of our own land, a mule, cow and calf, tools, corn and "sow belly" to give to every idle man and wife in the cities, and let them go back to the farm, where they can make a living raising chickens and children, or credit them for ten years; and in ten years there will not be a "bread line" in the United States.

Poor people have no business trying to make a living in a big city. They should be in the country, where they can make a living on the farm. Of course, if a man farms over the telephone, or in a Ford car, or rides a sulky plow with patent leather shoes on, he will fail. But if he works like I did in 1882 in Arkansas when I made my last crop he will "make a living" and some money. Let Congress help the farmer in such a way that he can help himself.

There was never a man on the farm, trying to make a living, who starved to death in the United States. We have wasted enough of the people's money in financing wars in other countries and buying foreign securities now repudiated ($800,000,000 worth in South America) to give every idle man in cities and towns and villages 40 acres of land and equipment for farming in the United States and build a schoolhouse where his children can have school advantages and build him a modern home.

There are millions on top of millions of acres of good tillable land in our country, on which the idle laborers in this country can make a good living if they have a little help in this way.

This is a solution of our troubles. Our cotton situation can be solved by everybody wearing more cotton goods and less silks from Japan. Let the farmer wrap his own cotton in heavy cotton cloth and not jute from India. This would give a market for 5,000,000 more bales of cotton in the United States.

The Farm Board is not worth a darn to the farmers. It only furnishes fat salaries to chair-warmers who get their living by looking wise.

The League of Nations is not worth "a pinch of dirt" to the world, and the conduct of the Japanese government is all the proof we need.

The people are not interested in who is elected president pro tem of the Senate, and if the Senate doesn't quit quibbling over nonessentials and do something to relieve the "hungry and starving" some of the people in the gallery may throw rocks at some of the senators. The visitors in the gallery want a rest, and the great mass on the outside need and must have relief.

POST HASTE.

The next most interesting speech this evening at the Jackson banquet will be by Chairman Raskob.

If Secretary Mellon had favored immediate payment of the veterans' bonus in full Mr. Patman, of Texas, would not have found it necessary to impeach him for high crimes and misdemeanors.

Senator Blaine apparently aspires to the distinction of being the human monkey wrench in the reconstruction machinery.

Japan doesn't quite seem to get the idea that it is not so much what happened to Consul Chamberlain as its official attitude toward the incident.

The Legion declaration of war on unemployment will insure a record-breaking enlistment of volunteers. Paradoxical as it may seem, if all employers can be induced to increase employes 10 per cent there will soon be no need of wage cuts.

Gov. Roosevelt's message to the Jackson Day dinner, and incidentally the New York Legislature, reads like a practice shot at Capitol Hill.

When Bill Murray, Senator Moses and Finland drys all blame election results on the weather it is time for the meteorologists to organize a defense.

In a good many countries their condition would not be considered entirely hopeless when 10,000 unemployed men can not only secure rations but fast motor transportation to take them on a free-lunch joyride to the National Capital.

The railroads certainly will be grateful to an astute investigator from the I. C. C. who has discovered that buses and trucks have cut into rail earnings very materially.

The first inconsistency prize of the year goes to Democrats who criticize international conferences and then propose to establish a permanent conference in which other nations will determine American tariffs.

PHARAOH'S DREAM.

Once Pharaoh dreamed of seven kine
beside a river bank,
And pleasing was the sight of them
as from the stream they drank.
Fatfleshed and favored well were they,
but as the king stood by,
Seven lean and undernourished kine
he noticed drawing nigh.

Thought he, the strong will surely turn and drive the weak away.
Those lusty kine will never let such starving cattle stay,
But as he watched the fatfleshed cows were eaten, one by one,
By those seven lean, ill-favored kine, until the last was gone.

Again the mighty Pharaoh dreamed of seven ripe ears of corn,
Which fruited on a single stalk, but much perplexed at morn,
He called his wise magicians in to solve what he had seen, Since those full ears had been destroyed by seven poor ears and lean.

We know that Joseph came at last and said: "Oh, mighty king,
The years of famine swallow up what years of plenty bring."
And as it was in Pharaoh's time, five thousand years away,
We find the economic law is still the same today.

All Europe Now Seen Playing 'Buy Back' Debt Bond System

By JOHN J. DALY

In a day of systems—there are, for instance, the 1-2-3 system and the forcing system in bridge—each individual and each nation tries to work out a system.

Impoverished European peoples, too loaded with taxes and pressed with debts that their governments are unable to pay Uncle Sam, now are working on what is bruited about as the "Buy Back" system. It is the way of paying off new debts with old.

Simple, once its fundamental principles are mastered, the "Buy Back" system works like this:

Take a $100 gold bond, gilt edge, at 6 per cent. Sell it at par, or above par if possible. Once it is sold, and the cash money "in the bag," as the bandits say, sit back and wait for the bond to drop in value.

The bond will drop in value. Make no mistake about that. Bonds usually do when sold to the right parties.

When the bond does a nose dive and goes to 20, or perhaps 10, that is where the "Buy Back" system comes into play.

A wise operator, working the "Buy Back" system, having sold his bond at 100, sees it knocked down to 20, picks it up at that price and then pays off his indebtedness at the face value of the bond. He thus makes a profit of 80, minus the usual 6 per cent interest, which always is paid to keep the bond at a value of 100—for the value must always be there even though the bond is not worth this value on the open market.

This brings up the paradoxical problem involved in the economic consideration of value and worth, whether worth is more valuable than value or value more worthy than worth—in other words, the difference between worth and market value.

All sentimental values aside, worth is what a man believes, or hopes, his property should sell for, while value is what it will probably command in a falling market.

* * * *

This operation is somewhat like the Prince of Halica-Baca, a little known province on one of the far-off Pacific Islands. He was a prince in Halica-Baca, but just a bootblack on Broadway. Then he developed a system of collecting tribute from proprietors of shoe-shine parlors. With the money made, he floated a series of European bond issues, at par, and worked the "Buy Back" system when the value decreased to 10. The worth of the bonds, however, no matter who held them, always remained the same.

While the "Buy Back" system may seem involved to some individuals, who can not quite keep up with the manipulations, the quickness of the hand deceiving the eye, it really is as simple as the Old Army Game. That was the system of hiding a pea under one of three shells—now you see it, and now you don't.

In the new order of the world, System is everything.

Cincinnati Enquirer.

Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, has proved himself by past performances to be one of the keenest of senatorial investigators. There have been many of them, all versed in the artifice of drawing out testimony to prove what they wished to prove. But when Senator Walsh suggests an investigation into the causes of business depression, an investigation to be conducted by five Senators and five members of the House, his valor overruns his judgment.

Nothing could be more depressing and futile than a congressional study of what caused business to slow down and the market in securities to sag. Senator Walsh lays particular stress on a proposed investigation of what caused the New York market to collapse, now something more than two years ago. Heralded as a plan to discover what the causes were in order that they might be prevented in the future, such an investigation could do nothing but prolong the dolorous, backward-looking attitude that is the main hindrance to recovery today.

G. O. P. Senators Omitted.

Houston Post-Dispatch.

Strange as it may seem, Republican senators are raising no complaint because none of their number is included on the American delegation to the Geneva arms conference. The only senatorial member of the group is Mr. Swanson, of Virginia, a Democrat. The President's own party in the Senate is not represented at all in our delegation.

The circumstance has come about, however, through no disinclination on the part of Mr. Hoover to include a Republican senator in the American representation. He sounded out several on accepting a place in the group, and all rejected the invitation. Borah felt he was not fitted for the task; Vandenberg was too busy; Moses said he could not spare the money. And so on.

A Democratic Tariff Bill.

Boston Transcript.

The so-called joint policy committee of the House and Senate has evolved what will be known as the Democratic tariff bill; the first step in the Democratic program of breaking down the American protective tariff system. Its main features aim to deprive the President of and restore to Congress the power to pass upon recommendations of the Tariff Commission; to establish the office of "consumer's counsel," which shall act for the public in matters affecting changes in rates, and to institute a permanent international economic conference through which, in some unexplained manner, tariff rates may be reduced and other "barriers to trade" may be removed. It also would "authorize and request" the President to negotiate reciprocal trade treaties containing tariff concessions; an excellent theory, which never yet has worked out in practice on any large scale, except the old Canadian reciprocity treaty which Congress abrogated in 1866. Bertrand H. Snell, the Republican leader, promptly has characterized the bill as a "gesture" and a "camouflage," and a study of it leaves one wondering how anything concrete can come out of it.

The Others on Vacation.

The news that President Hoover took his grandchildren clear to the Washington Zoo to view the strange collection there caused us to wonder momentarily. And then we recalled that Congress was in holiday recess.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Explains the Helpfulness of the Humane Society—Membership Is Small in Comparison to the Population of Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At a time of many appeals for the relief of human distress may I ask for a little space to call attention to the needs of an organization devoted to relieving the distress of helpless creatures unable to make their own appeal.

I refer to the Washington Humane Society, which is making a campaign for new members in an open letter calling attention to the fact that the society's present membership of 285 in a city of half a million is woefully inadequate and assuredly cannot represent the total number of Washington's residents that have some compassionate concern for the welfare of their nonhuman fellow creatures.

The Humane Society was fortunate enough in its recent elections to secure the unselfish and able services of Col. Laurence Halstead as its active president. Membership is only $2 a year. Contributions of any amount are welcomed. Its headquarters are at 1231 New York avenue.

Supporters may feel assured that the society's funds are devoted to the relief of all kinds of animals in distress and their protection against cruelty and thoughtlessness with the utmost economy and directness, and that its usefulness is limited only by its resources.

Possession of a Razor and Soap Not Proof That a Hungry Man Is a Criminal.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I really think our chief of police is a bit hard on a jobless man in suspecting him of sinister and criminal motives in carrying a cake of soap and a razor. The man's intentions may have been of the best. Likely they were.

Naturally, the chief of police has a keener sense of values than I; but I personally should not suspect a man asking for a dime as being on the brink of a criminal career, just for that. Maybe he merely wanted pie or a sandwich or something like that; he may not have been hankering for dynamite or high explosives or a gallon of the bootlegger's best to spur him into burning an orphan asylum or dancing on his grandmother. But one can never tell; especially one who has never been an Army officer, a parade leader, chief of police or anything noble in the manly line—my unfortunate predicament.

But, coming down to tin tacks, 30 days for asking a dime and carrying a cake of soap and a razor is something extreme. It used to be 10 days or $10, a dollar a day. Thirty days for 10 cents figures out 0.3 cents per day, an unreasonable rate for the District of Columbia to charge.

The Lights at Christmas—Let Everybody Put a Light in the Window and Cheer Up.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a time of so-called depression, never has Washington been so gay with Christmas illumination. It is hoped that no one missed the fairyland picture that Wesley Heights produced. It seemed that each home tried to outdo the other in its variegated colored brilliancy of lights to help cheer up Washington. Fourteenth and Seventh streets were gay with holiday light.

Secretary of State Stimson selected the tallest cedar on his beautiful lawn to dress it completely with white lights, which made a picture no one could forget.

"Let your light shine" would be a good motto to encourage everybody next Christmas to put a light of some kind in the window, even if only a coal oil lamp. What a picture of cheer and warmth it would give! Many lonely, discouraged hearts would beat faster with the real spirit of Christmas. Let's give it a thought.

BESSIE POWELL DUNLOP.

Chief Glassford Helped the Reds, but Refused to Give a Dime to a Hungry Man.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read in the news of the day where a man asked the big-hearted chief of police for a dime "to get something to eat," and the chief said "come on, follow me," and proceeded to take the poor unfortunate to a patrol box, call the patrol and lock him up.

What is the feeling in the poor man's heart? He must have read where this same big-hearted chief of police saw to it that the Communists were fed, these Reds who came here to start trouble; yet a lone, helpless unfortunate is arrested for asking for a dime. What if the man was a beggar? Won't the taxpayers of the District be contributing more than a dime to feed and lodge him in jail?

The chief of police might at least have followed the custom of the old kings, who before they killed their subjects fed them a hearty meal. He could have at least bought the man a cup of coffee and a sandwich, and Lord knows he wouldn't have missed the dime. A. C. PARSONS.

British Traveler Suggests World Conference, Now That Congress Refuses to Cancel Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recent action by the United States Congress seems to indicate that Europe has nothing further to hope from that quarter, and many prominent persons have expressed the opinion that another European war is, therefore, almost inevitable. I, therefore, suggest that a conference of all the civilized nations of the world should be called to bring about a reconciliation between the late combatants in the World War.

BAKER ENTERS PLEA FOR BARRED PAPER

Avows Order of Court Was Unwarranted Deprivation of Property Right.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The man who was at the helm of America's World War activities came to Frankfort today to wage a legal battle for what he termed one of the great safeguards of liberty.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War in Woodrow Wilson's Cabinet, appeared before the Kentucky Court of Appeals in behalf of an application by the Knoxville News-Sentinel for a prohibitory writ against Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt, who barred representatives of the newspaper at the mine murder trial of William Hightower at Mount Sterling.

The court took the case under advisement, but set no date for announcement of its decision.

Judge Prewitt, veteran Montgomery County jurist, was represented by his son, Allen Prewitt, Frankfort attorney.

Arguing for the newspaper, Mr. Baker said Judge Prewitt's order was "an unwarranted deprivation of a property right" and by implication "imperiled a civil liberty of the people."

Right to Protect Itself.

The judge's son contended the circuit court had an inherent right to protect itself against a "contumacious and contemptuous newspaper."

Gov. Ruby Laffoon and numbers of State officials crowded the courtroom to hear the arguments.

Judge Prewitt held the News-Sentinel had libeled and slandered him in commenting on the conviction of William B. Jones, another miner tried in connection with the Harlan County coal fields disorders.

Baker termed the editorial "an exceedingly temperate, philosophical and just statement," which he said might "well have been made by this court or any other court of final judicial procedure." After terming Judge Prewitt a man of "great distinction of character," the former Secretary of War said the judge had claimed publication of the editorial had intended to obstruct justice by attempting to influence him. He termed this "practically an admission of lack of judicial qualifications."

The court's order, Baker said, was an attempt to impose "vicarious punishment" upon the reporter's employer and "redress a wrong done by an absent person as to which the statutes of Kentucky give him other remedy."

Property Right.

In citing the case the Associated Press won against the International News Service establishing property right in news, Baker argued the United States Supreme Court "in terms says the right to go out and collect news is a property right which a court of equity will protect."

In his first oral argument before the State's highest tribunal, Allen Prewitt, son of the Mount Sterling judge, cited decisions in other contempt cases and said: "The contempt powers of the court are inherent. They are above legislation."

He termed the News-Sentinel editorial the parallel of the newspaper's telling the court: "You have not convicted this defendant on legal evidence. You have convicted him because he is a labor leader."

The newspaper, he said, has no right to throw insults in the face of the court. "If an individual said that," he asserted, referring to the editorial, "couldn't the court put him out? Why can't it put a newspaper out? Must the court knuckle down to a contumacious and contemptuous newspaper?"

First Tumor Clinic Opened in Capital

Established at Providence Hospital Under Direction of Dr. Liebell.

A tumor clinic, the first of its kind in Washington, has been established at Providence Hospital, Second and D streets. It opened recently under supervision of Dr. Casimir Leibell, physician-director and chief of clinic, and a staff of 34 physicians representing various departments of the hospital.

The purpose of the clinic is the prevention, diagnosis and treatment of cancer and allied conditions among the poor of the city. A further objective will be the dissemination to the public of medical truths on this subject.

The clinic will be open every Thursday morning during the year, holidays excepted. If accepted, the patients are transferred to the proper department, or departments, of the hospital where complete nursing and social service will be available for the use of both the patients and physicians.

Japanese Pilots Seek Plane for Pacific Hop

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Two former members of the Japanese army, Hoshinore Magoya and Kanekichi Asai, conferred today with officials of the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation at New Castle regarding the purchase of a plane for a proposed transpacific flight.

The Japanese, now members of the aviation reserve staff of the army, said they had not decided as yet from what city the flight from the Pacific Coast would be made, but they hoped to take off before the middle of March. Retsu Kiyosaua, a representative of the Tokyo newspaper, Hochi Shimbun, accompanied the fliers here.

C. M. Keys, Air Magnate, Announces Retirement

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—C. M. Keys, one of the kingpins of American aviation, today announced his retirement from his aviation activities. He said he acted for reasons of health and pressure of other business.

Among the posts he held were chairman of the executive committee of Curtiss-Wright Corporation; chairman of the board of Transcontinental and Western Air; chairman of the board of North American Aviation, Inc., and director of Eastern Air Transport. A former school teacher, he became a millionaire broker and aviation magnate.

COOPERATION URGED BY COUNTY MANAGER

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Meeting with department heads and superintendents in his office at the Arlington County Courthouse yesterday, County Manager Roy S. Braden stressed that cooperation at all times is most necessary for the carrying on of the affairs of the county government.

Braden called upon the department heads to see to it that citizens be given every consideration.

"It is my purpose," he said, "to call you together from time to time that we may better work out problems as they present themselves, that the best interest of the county may be served.

Braden said he is preparing a bulletin which will be in each department, and which will clearly set forth what will be expected of employes.

As a result of a conference with officials of the General Outdoor Advertising Co. in the offices of Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas yesterday, work on construction of the huge signs at the intersection of Glebe road and Wilson boulevard, at the request of County Manager Braden and Douglas, was stopped pending a further hearing on the matter with the county board.

Officials of the company will appear before the county board at its meeting January 16, when the matter of granting a permit for the erection of the signs will be thoroughly gone into.

Thomas and Homer Randolph Thomas.

It is further asked in the suit that a receiver be appointed for the Airport Swimming Pool, Inc.; to have the Washington Airport, Inc., enjoined and restrained from canceling or foreiting the lease of the Airport Swimming Pool, Inc.; to have an accounting made between the Airport Swimming Pool, Inc., and the Washington Airport, Inc., and for general relief.

The plaintiffs in the suit claim that the total claims against the swimming pool corporation aggregate $55,000.

Barrere Reported Seized Third Time

Old Baker Case Circular to Be Destroyed Due to Texas Arrest.

An old circular, sent out shortly after the Mary Baker murder case, caused the arrest for the third time of a man believed to be Herman Henry Barrere, one time suspect in the unsolved murder, in San Antonio, Tex., Wednesday.

Barrere was first arrested shortly after Mary Baker's body was found in a culvert near Arlington Cemetery nearly two years ago, but police were unable to break his alibi and he was released. He was later arrested in California because of the same circular.

When notified of the arrest of Barrere in Texas, Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, head of the Washington detective office, said he would immediately broadcast an order throughout the country to destroy the old circular.

Barrere was first arrested in Montreal, Canada, two years ago, and brought here and questioned for several weeks by local and Virginia authorities, but released. When arrested in Texas he gave the name of Barrer, but his fingerprints matched those on the circular and Washington authorities were notified. When searched in the Texas city newspaper clippings on the Baker case were found in his pockets.

Dinner Burglar of Fairfax Takes 'em Right Off Stove

A reincarnation of Sherlock Holmes is badly needed in the town of Fairfax. Dr. Watson might label this particular adventure "The Mystery of the Missing Dinners."

Mrs. Bessie G. Russell, who recently discharged her maid, was cooking the evening meal about 6 o'clock yesterday. She had just taken some of the dishes from the stove and prepared them for serving when the telephone rang.

She went to answer it, leaving part of the meal on the kitchen table and the rest simmering on the stove. Her husband, a retired minister, was ill in the front room and the family watch dog trailed to the telephone with Mrs. Russell.

Her telephone conversation required about five minutes. When she returned to the kitchen she was dismayed to find the place completely bare of food. Even the steaming pots had disappeared from the stove. There had been no sound made by the thief and police who investigated found no footprints.

It was the second mysterious pantry raid in the town of Fairfax. Mrs. Robert Stump, a next door neighbor, lost part of a dinner she had just prepared just a few days before.

ACCUSED CONSTABLE DENIED FURTHER PAY

Slater, Asked to Resign in Attack on Photographer, Is Given Notice.

No further accounts submitted by Constable Howard Slater will be paid, the Prince Georges County Commissioners notified him yesterday, saying that an undated resignation he filed before his appointment had been accepted.

This action was taken after the commissioners had requested him to resign following a hearing on charges that he blackjacked a newspaper photographer. When asked to resign, Slater, on advice of his attorneys, John S. White and Adrian P. Fisher, refused. The law provides that constables may only be removed by judges of the circuit courts, although they are appointed by the commissioners.

In an attempt to get around this provision, all constables are required to give an undated resignation before they are appointed. Members of the county bar hold the opinion that these resignations can not be enforced, but the question has never gone to court. Apparently the board has decided to test the previous resignation, the attempt to get a current one having failed. The refusal to pay further accounts means that Slater, who works on a fee basis, will not be paid for any arrests or other police work he may do.

What action Slater may take to try to force payments by the board has not been decided, Mr. White said last night. He has not yet seen the letter written by the commissioners, he said, and had not had an opportunity to confer with his client.

JURY RULES DEATH BY TRAIN SUICIDE

Homer Bordens Leaves Note Indicating Self-Destruction; Steps Before Car;

Homer Bordens, who was killed yesterday by an electric train near his home in Seat Pleasant, Md., committed suicide, a coroner's jury decided after reading a note left by the dead man and hearing testimony of the engineer that he deliberately stepped in front of the train.

Bordens, who was 35 years old, was struck by the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis train, which is due in Seat Pleasant at 10:20 o'clock in the morning. Roy Hicks, at the controls of the train, said the man was walking toward the train on another track, but stepped in front of the Baltimore-bound car as it neared him.

In the man's home was found a note addressed to his wife Rose, telling her good-by and speaking of taking "this way out." Bordens was a former soldier and received a pension, but had been in ill health. In addition to his wife, employed in the Department of Agriculture, the dead man is survived by a 2½-year-old son.

The coroner's jury in the case was impaneled by Judge Louis Gundling, while the death was investigated by Constable Earle Blackwell.

The Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, at its meeting Monday night voted down a motion to remove the sign.

The sign has been a bone of contention since its erection more than a year ago. Residents of Leland claim they purchased homes in Chevy Chase and that their deeds say so and that the sign gives the impression that they live in Bethesda.

He was a son of the late Henry C. and Mary E. Brown, and was a native of Alexandria. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. A. L. Ladd, and a sister, Mrs. Annie T. Bruce.

Mr. Brown was a charter member of Robert Andrews Chapter, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, and was prominently identified with the Masonic fraternity, being a member of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, Mount Vernon Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; Old Dominion Commandery, Knights Templar, the Scottish Rite bodies and Acca Temple, Mystic Shrine.

The funeral will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Wheatley's funeral home and interment will be in the Methodist Protestant Cemetery. Services will be conducted by Alexandria-Washington Lodge of Masons.

All-Night Lighting Sought in Riverdale

Town Council Also Told Police Fail to Patrol Certain Areas.

Criticism of part of the Riverdale police force and the town's practice of turning off street lights at 2 o'clock in the morning featured the last meeting of the town council. The two bailiffs neglect certain parts of the town to spend their time in the vicinity of the traffic light on the Baltimore boulevard, it was charged.

The town council was requested to have street lights burn all night, on the plea that a number of recent robberies have occurred between 2 o'clock and 5 o'clock. The Potomac Electric Power Co. will be asked to give estimates of the cost of all-night lighting, and a council meeting to decide the subject will be held late this week.

The fire apparatus recently bought by the town was turned over to Chief Edward C. Stewart, who was also confirmed as chief by the council. Guy Baker, elected as assistant chief, was also confirmed.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PROGRESS.

(Being another variation of an idea at which nearly everybody has taken a crack.)

YESTERDAY nearly everybody believed in working for a living, families lived within their income, young girls were taught to mend socks, men wore side whiskers and carried umbrellas when it looked like rain, women wore so much clothing their husbands had to help them dress, guns and ammunition were bought only by hunters and bicycle race starters, whisky was never kept around the house where the kiddies could see it, house guests behaved with reasonable decorum, a good steak cost 11 cents a pound, the evening meal was called "supper," the bathtub was never full of bottling gadgets, no society leader incorsed mattresses, and no boy grew up with the notion that success in life depended on not getting pink toothbrush.

Today people squawk if they can't afford to keep more than one automobile, you go to the drug store for split pea soup, girls don't stay in their own homes long enough to know their parents at a glance, women wear fewer clothes on the street than they used to wear in bed, gunmen roam the streets with their professional bondsmen within calling distance, everybody's list of telephone numbers includes a bootlegger, hotels and dining cars charge 50 cents for pot of bad coffee, social leaders feel slighted if their names are left out in newspaper lists of people arrested in speakeasies, and the hardest thing to get in the country is a job.

YESTERDAY kings got up every morning and gave orders without first gazing furtively around and making sure they were still kings, dictators were associated only with Mexico and ancient Rome, magazines catering to the general appeal were careful not to be filthy, every home had a cat, a canary and some artificial flowers in a glass bowl, no boy under 15 got arrested for driving an automobile while intoxicated, newspaper columnists didn't keep the public in touch with impending births, a comfortable city home could be bought for $5,500 and $15,000 was top price for a country show place, the family had to dress around the kitchen stove in winter to keep warm, the prayer meeting was a thriving American institution, men frequently spent all their lives with the same wife, stewed tripe was a common dish in the average home, milk was considered expensive at 5 cents a quart, the magic lantern, parchisi board and tiddledywinks were considered happy means of fireside diversion, women were ejected from public places for smoking cigarettes, and dad could go to sleep on the hair sofa without being disturbed by a jazz band playing in Medicine Hat.

TODAY every monarch carries a sideline in case he is thrown out of the palace, young men think their education is being neglected if they can't keep a limousine at college, activities in the Great American Home are confined largely to homebrewing, testing new cocktails and trying to get six radio concerts over one wave length, privacy is old-fashioned, Reno is a national shrine, golf is a national vice, and Rudy Vallee is the national idol.

THE LAST PROSPECT FADES.

The American Museum of Natural History has halted all expenditures for expeditions and explorations. This practically disposes of all hope that any excavator will dig up an American optimist this year.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

INSURING LOVE AGAINST DISASTER.

DEAR Frances McDonald: I read each day with interest the good advice you give to the many who write. I am wondering if you would help me. I am 21 years of age, a graduate of high school, musical and I have played over the radio. I am no beauty, but people call me the French doll and everywhere I go every one seems to like me. All through my school days I never had a quarrel with any one. Am a Sunday school teacher and my home life is wonderful. I have always lived in peace, have a pretty home and am a home-builder. Many folks say I could make a home out of a packing case. I love a home—and children I just love them. I have been engaged to a young man 28 years old, and for quite a while we were very happy. Everywhere we went we had a most wonderful, happy time. He was quite a singer and he would sing as we rode along. He gave me a beautiful diamond ring and we have been engaged for some time. Of late we have been so unhappy. We would ride for miles and not a word would be said. Other times he would say the meanest things. That drove fear into my heart. It was all because I would not allow continual petting. He seemed to think we were engaged and it did not matter. Well, each night it would be the same and the result a quarrel. So I thought things over and returned the ring—sent it to him as I did not want another scene. I wrote him and told him I was sorry to return his ring like that, but if he were willing to go my way I would love to have him back as I do love him dearly. Did I do wrong? I am so anxious to know. He has never answered me. Please tell me what you would do. MAUREEN.

You did exactly right, and what a great many more girls should have the courage and sense to do. The man who makes demands is the first to misjudge the girl who out of sympathy rather than inclination meets his demands. Immediately he begins to wonder how many others pleaded their cause with equal success, and presently he despises the girl as promiscuous—purely upon the evidence of his own suspicions.

The man who is worth having makes a home for a wife instead. It is invariably the one who can not make a home or offer marriage who brightly suggests some detour that usually ends in the ditch. This type seems to believe that by virtue of their own futility, they have some special claim to particular consideration at a woman's hands. And they become expert beggars. When girls begin to expect things of men, men will begin to perform as expected. At present the idea seems to be that whatever suits the man is all right and a diamond chip is supposed to end all arguments.

Hasten the day when girls will wake up, lay down the law and know how real men behave toward the women they love. At present too many girls are accepting the sneak-thief type lover as average. The one who worms his way carefully into a home, and takes what he can get—which is usually whatever he demands in the name of love. Well, love demands only that the loved one be happy and safeguarded, and the sooner that fact is accepted by girls the better. When it is quite a few diamond chips will pass through the mails, back to the chinless Romeos who purchased them.

In other words, you will never regret your act.

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

APHIDS AND SCALE.

WITH these two insects all gardeners are familiar.

When plants are sprinkled over the tops and care taken of them generally, the aphids, or green plant lice, can almost always be kept in check and thus prevented from doing much damage. But let the plants be neglected for even a short time and some day the young and tender branches of many of the usual house varieties will be found to be literally covered with green plant lice.

This insect increases with wonderful rapidity, if let alone, and in a short time will utterly ruin any plant to which it has attached itself if persistent and exterminating warfare is not waged against it.

Tobacco is the weapon with which to combat the aphids. To make this effective, a considerable quantity should be prepared and the plants held upside down in it. You may use a proprietary preparation, or make a solution of tobacco in your own kitchen by boiling a half-pound of any cheap smoking tobacco in a gallon of water. After it has been boiling about 20 minutes, remove from the fire, strain and bottle. This solution will keep indefinitely. The mixture must be diluted with water until it is the color of table tea. To make it an effective insecticide, the plant must be permitted to remain in the solution for three minutes.

Smooth-leaved plants, like ferns, palms, rubber plants and English ivy, the pandanus, aspidistras and dracenas are usually attacked about this time by a hard-shelled little insect known as scale. The only way to banish this insect is by scrubbing him away. A stiff toothbrush is the proper instrument to use. Owing to his hard shell, insecticides have no effect on him.

When you have removed every insect, wash the leaves with cold soapy water and in the future wash the foliage every other week with cold water and about twice a week carry your plants to the laundry and sprinkle their tops with water. Cleanliness is the ounce of prevention that is worth the pound of cure when it comes to insect enemies of house plants.

Dare Interprets the Mode

New York, January 7.

"DEAREST DARE: Along about the end of summer did you notice fond mothers sitting by the carriage of their infants busily knitting or crocheting? They know how to prepare for baby's winter! Thought you might like to pass on to your readers a few hints for making these winter sweaters, for that is what those wise mothers were doing, for nothing is more practical than sweaters for kiddies at this time of the year."

Thus writes sister Dionne, and I thought you would like to hear about it.

"Yes, I've made and used them for my own babies. I tried all the different stitches but like the one made with the long crochet hook best, sort of a cross between knitting and crocheting. And I made their little sweaters to button on the side, well up on the neck, and with a round turnover collar which also buttoned on the same side. Before arriving at this stitch I tried the other fancier ones—shell stitch, knitting, &c.; but found that they would not hold their shape after washing, while the stitch recommended gets tighter with each laundering. So-o-o, one must remember to make it loose.

"Need I warn you to be careful when washing them? Don't use hot water, ever, or hard soap. In a pinch use face soap. Have enough sweaters to use while others are drying. Shouldn't put them on the radiator to dry but if you simply must—have layers and layers of bath towels under them. And, colored wool always fades into anemic hues so I used white only and trimmed them in white silk."

'N' how do you like the very tricky and military afternoon frock from Bruyere that I sketch for you today? It's of navy blue crepe romain, most oddly and becomingly incrusted on the skirt and blouse, and with a neckline that shows us a new way toward shoulder width. The sleeves of white crepe marocain are banded with circle of navy chenille embroidery, and a gay feminine touch is given it by the red bow that comes through an eyelet in the bodice. The belt, incidently, is incrusted right into the frock itself, which accounts for the snug and flattering fit.

'N' if you want to know a secret, dark blue and white will be one of the popular color combinations for early spring wear!

You know, the department stores very, very kindly call a yard and a quarter and sometimes even two yards, a remnant—and I just don't know anyone who knows of more things to do with small pieces of material than your own Dah-Ray! So this week's illustrated leaflet, for which you can send a stamped, self-addressed envelope, if you do it right away, just tells you about some of these things to do with remnants. Better send for it whether you are buying any remnants at these January sales or not—because you'll always have small pieces of nice material left over that you will wish you could do something with. Address your letter enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, you know.

What Today Means to You

"CAPRICORN."

IF January 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:40 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 2:30 p. m. to 3:34 p. m., and from 10:30 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m.

January 8 favors those who are past middle-age; their business affairs will improve, or family difficulties will be unexpectedly settled. Speculative investments, especially in minerals or metals, would not be advisable at this time. The young may form tempting, but profitless, friendships.

The child born on this January 8 will have a certain perseverance and determination which will carry through most of the things it undertakes successfully. It will be subject to moods, rather quick of temper, and critical. It will not be dependent upon others, nor crave companionship.

You, if a woman, and born January 8, are not of a philosophical, contented nature. You will never reach that point in life when you are not crying for something beyond. You are very full of the love of things, and are a worshipper of false gods. You are always seeking outside stimulation, and have nothing to fall back upon but the excitements that take the place of imagination. You are sophisticated, supercritical, intolerant, and pretend to despise anything of a "highbrow" nature. You are fundamentally sound, but you do not seem able to find yourself. You do not find anything interesting enough to call for any real effort or thought.

You, if a man, and born January 8, have a roving disposition. As you see the world, it is sadly out of joint. You have an exaggerated idea of your own consequence, and are too self-centered to properly connect with life. You have your share of brains, and are really clever, but your ideas are not properly indexed for commercial value. You do not have the personality to put things across. You are willing to work, and to work hard, but you lack the patience to stick to anything for long at a time. Your moral integrity is of the highest, and your actions are always clean-cut and above board. You will love with intensity.

Successful people born January 8:

John Canfield Spencer—Statesman.
Lowell Mason—Musician.
Wilkie Collins—English novelist.
James Longstreet—Engineer and soldier.
William W. Gilchrist—Composer.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A-208

REACHING THE RIGHT CONTRACT.

IT has been my contention that the game invitation two-bid in the Official System, so highly regarded by Mr. Lenz and other advocates, is not a god bid in that it preempts the place of a much more important bid. It is of little value in reaching Slams, because of the lack of accurate information regarding honor-tricks conveyed to the partner. The story it tells, if any, is the story of playing-tricks.

The second deal of Rubber No. 20 of my match of 1001 hands with Mr. Sidney S. Lenz showed the following distribution of the cards:

South, Dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

Mr. Lenz: ♠ 10 9 7 5 ♡ A Q 3 ◇ — ♣ A J 9 8 7 4

Mr. Culbertson: ♠ Q J 4 ♡ 10 9 5 4 2 ◇ J 7 5 4 ♣ 5

Mr. Culbertson: ♠ A 8 6 2 ♡ — ◇ Q 10 9 8 6 3 2 ♣ 10 6

Mr. Jacoby: ♠ K 3 ♡ K J 8 7 6 ◇ A K ♣ K Q 3 2

The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
2♡	Pass	3♣	3◇
Dbl.	Pass	6♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

The result was the defeat of the six heart contract by 1 trick. I, of course, made a trump trick and Mrs. Culbertson made her Ace of spades.

It is apparent that this hand is a lay-down Slam at clubs or no-trump. Our strong defensive bidding had precluded the possibility of a Slam being played at clubs, but there was still the opportunity to play the hand at six no-trump and using the Approach-Forcing System of bidding, this result could and would have been reached as follows:

South	West	North	East
4NT	Pass	5♡	Pass
6NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding of four no trump, after East's defensive bid of three diamonds, carries two distinct messages, both of great importance in the Slam try. One is the information of the double stopper in the diamond suit and the second, which can not help but be of value to North, is the information that his void in diamonds is of no value because of partner's high cards in that suit. This suggests also the probability that the hand may play better in no trump than in a suit, due to the invisible rocks of distribution, as in fact, it would.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Uselessly high Opening bids are not an aid to reaching the correct contract, but shut out valuable information which would otherwise be obtainable by unforced responses of the partner and possible opposing Overcalls.

How to Keep Well

BENZENE POISONING.

THAT benzene, sometimes called benzol, is capable of producing either acute or chronic poisoning has been known for a long time. The large number of uses to which it is put makes it a considerable industrial hazard, information which most employers and many employes have.

Dr. S. C. McCord thought of the possibility that the poisonous effects might be due to some impurity in the product and, if so, whether it might be possible to make a harmless but useful benzene. In this effort to solve this question he conducted an elaborate investigation in the laboratory and on animals, and he came to the conclusion that benzene was itself highly poisonous. It followed that no amount of purification would make it a safe product. He discovered that some of the chemicals found in commercial benzene were poisonous, but the worst of them was less poisonous than the pure solvent. In some cases these impurities had somewhat the same physiologic effect that the benzene did. In others they had opposite effects. For instance, one sign by which doctors diagnose benzene poisoning is a very low white blood cell count. One impurity sometimes found in commercial benzene causes a high white blood cell count. Therefore, in a case of poisoning due to this mixture a physician who based his diagnosis on a low white blood cell count would be misled.

People who work with benzene, or in any industry where benzene is used as a solvent, or for any purpose, should be constantly on guard. The following symptoms should cause a worker to suspect that he is getting too much gas and to go to the doctor to find out whether or not he is: Redness or irritation of the eyes, bronchitis, tenderness or bleeding of the mouth or gums, pallor, muscle weakness, vomiting, attacks of acute indigestion, dizziness, headache, feeling of a band around head or chest, small hemorrhagic spots under the skin, bleeding from any membrane, tremor, spasmodic jerking or twitching, insomnia, seeing things, being drunk without having had liquor, convulsions, marked change in the facial expression. Another list of symptoms includes the above and adds: Peculiar brackish taste, slight giddiness, unsteady vision, odor of benzene on breath, staggering in the dark, numbness, tingling, loss of weight. If any of the following conditions can not be otherwise explained, and one works with benzene, he should suspect benzene poisoning: Trench mouth, boils, postules, frequent colds and arthritis.

LIVER BEST FOR ANEMIA.

T. Y. writes: Could you give a good diet suggestion for an anemic child? She is nearly 12 years old.

REPLY.

Liver is the best single food. Among other good articles of diet are juicy meats, yellow of eggs, carrots, green vegetables. Try to find and remove the cause of the anemia.

SENSITIVE DENTINE.

C. L. T. writes: I have a front tooth that has been giving me trouble lately, when eating hot or cold foods. It is very sensitive, even when breathing air through the mouth.

REPLY.

This condition is known as sensitive dentine. Painting the sensitive tooth with alcoholic iodine gives relief. If it tends to persist, change the diet so as to get more lime and vitamins.

"FAUST" ACCLAIMED BY LARGER AUDIENCE

Grace Anthony Takes Honors With Vladimir Dubinsky; Carmen Tonight.

Grace Anthony, as an appealing, effective Marguerite, and Vladimir Dubinsky, in the role of Mephistopheles, contested for first honors last night in the Cosmopolitan Grand Opera Company's presentation of Gounod's immortal opera, "Faust," at the New National Theater. Alexander Kurganoff, in the title role as Faust, the scholar-philosopher searching for youth and love, was a rather unconvincing member of the operatic trio of principals in the production.

Present last night was a larger audience than at either of Wednesday's performances and there was a quick response from the opera singers to the better conditions prevailing, and the presentation was full of vigor and animation. The opera was given under the local management of Mrs. Wilson-Greene with tireless Jacques Samossoud as conductor.

"Faust" is a universal favorite with its arias, duets and other vocal parts and last night's audience listened for each outstanding theme and gave it special applause.

As usual Mephistopheles captured the center of the stage from Faust. Last night's satanic majesty—Vladimir Dubinsky—was a fine figure of a devil, gay, sardonic and admirable in his impersonation. His "Calf of Gold" song reminded one of its singing by Chaliapin in the same role as heard here several years ago.

In the famous garden scene studded with blossoms of melody the singers scored a real success beginning with Siebel's famous "Flower Song," well sung by Georgia Standing.

Grace Anthony added to her laurels in her presentation of the lovely, hapless Marguerite. She looked the part and her voice was sweet and true. In her great aria "The Jewel Song," difficult as it is beautiful, she deserved the praise which followed its rendition.

Joseph Royer was a convincing "Valentin," and Luigi Dalle Molle as Wagner, and Alice Haeseler as Martha, contributed their share to the operatic feast.

In "Faust" the work of the orchestra is immense and Samossoud and his men did not falter beneath their task. Its work was superb in the church scene displaying Gounod's special genius, of course, as a composer of sacred themes.

The mounting of the opera was adequate and the costuming of unusual merit.

MAJ. GEN. BARNETT'S WIDOW LAUDS POST ESSAY CONTEST

shall watch The Washington Post Essay Contest with close attention and interest and read the winning essays with much pleasure."

Reports from various sections of the city and surrounding territory eligible to compete in The Post Washington Essay Contest, closing March 14 at midnight, in which $1,000 in cash prizes is to be distributed among 108 winners, show that the young essayists are buckling down to the task of preparing the best essays possible.

In some of the schools whole classes are preparing to enter the contest, and the essays will be regarded as part of the English lessons for these classes.

The flood of applications for the special booklets presented to all contestants who send in the application blank printed in The Post grows each day.

Appeals are coming for the inclusion of boys and girls in Maryland and Virginia counties other than those designated in the announcement to be allowed to participate in the contest. It is not known at this time if such extension can be made, but announcement on this will be made later.

Acceptances are coming in from the distinguished men and women who have been asked to serve as judges of the contest. As soon as the committee of judges is completed it will be announced.

The $1,000 in cash prizes are available to boys and girls up to 18 years of age, pupils in public, private and parochial schools of the District of Columbia, Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties, Md.; Fairfax and Arlington Counties, Va., and the City of Alexandria, Va., for the best 500-word essays written on George Washington.

FOURTH SYMPHONY CONCERT APPLAUDED

Miss Rosa Low Again Wins Much Acclaim; Kindler Is Well Received.

The fourth symphony concert of the National Symphony Orchestra at Constitution Hall yesterday found another enthusiastic audience ready to acclaim its abiding interest in Washington's own orchestra, which, in the brief half season it has been playing, has aroused a wealth of favorable comment.

The artist of the afternoon was Miss Rosa Low, soprano, who renewed the good impression of Sunday's concert in her admirable singing of a group of songs, including a fascinating Roumanian folk song, "Luna, Luna," by Montia, which received special applause.

Hans Kindler, the conductor, was in fine form yesterday, and the orchestra responded ably to every motion of his baton in a vivid reading of Joseph Haydn's "Symphony in D Major" with its four alluring movements. One of the most charming of these movements was "The Menuetto," admirably played.

A treat was given music lovers in the audience by the rendition for the first time in Washington of Glazounov's Polonaise from "Chopiniana." This composition has much merit and it was artistically played. The orchestral portion of the program was concluded by the playing of two Wagnerian numbers, prelude from "Die Meistersinger" and prelude to "Lohengrin."

In these Wagnerian selections the orchestra displayed its ability to interpret this great master, a test which any aggregation of its kind must pass before it can truly claim the title of a symphony orchestra.

Miss Low was in her usual delightful vocal form and sang a consistently good program. The beauty of her diction enhanced her singing of a Schumann number, while the audience also enjoyed her rendition of Marion Bauer's "Orientale."

Hungary Will Not Enter Olympic Games This Year

AMUSEMENTS OF THE FIRST PRESIDENT.

THAT both the President and Mrs. Washington suffered from homesickness while in executive residence in New York and Philadelphia is recorded in history. Mrs. Washington wrote to Mrs. Fanny Washington, whom she had left in charge at Mount Vernon: "I never go to any public place. Indeed I think I am more like a state prisoner than anything else; there is certain bounds set for me, which I must not depart from, and as I can not do as I like, I am obstinate and stay at home a great deal."

The President, in writing to a friend in Virginia regarding the dignity of his position, said, "God knows it has no charms for me. I had rather be at Mount Vernon with a friend or two about me than to be attended at the seat of government by officers of state and representatives of every power in Europe."

Yet there was no lack of gayety in either city, with a continual round of balls, dinner parties, theaters, concerts and other diversions, and if the Chief Executive and his wife could not join in the most exciting pastimes of the Capital, they could at least follow their inclinations in many respects.

In Colonial times there was a passion for gambling in certain quarters, and bets were placed on all games. Loo, or as Washington sometimes spelled it, "leu," was the most popular, and it was no uncommon thing for a man or woman to win or lose $200 or $300 at a sitting. There is no record, however, of Washington's winning more than £3, or of losing more than £9 14s and 9d. In fact, Washington always played for small stakes. He seemed to be interested in the game and the diversion it afforded rather than in the winnings.

Washington's fondness for cards and billiards shows in his diary, where, before he became President, he often recorded that he had been "home all day at cards," and itemized purchases of "one doz. packs playing cards."

WASHINGTON CHEERED AT ADAMS INAUGURAL.

ON the day that John Adams was inaugurated as President, Washington was greeted at the Capital, then in Philadelphia, with a volume of cheers and enthusiastic acclamation which even exceeded the demonstration which followed the appearance of the newly elected President.

Having taken the oath of office, Mr. Adams, in his inaugural address, spoke of his predecessor as one "who, by a long course of great actions, regulated by prudence, justice, temperance, and fortitude, has merited the gratitude of his fellow citizens, commands the highest praises of foreign nations, and secured immortal glory with posterity."

At the close of the ceremony, as Washington moved forward toward the door to retire, there was a rush from the gallery to the corridor that for a time threatened serious injury to many of the spectators in their eagerness to catch a last look of one who had so long been the object of public veneration.

LAST OFFICIAL DINNER GIVEN BY WASHINGTON.

ON the 3d of March, 1797, the last day of his official career, Washington gave a farewell dinner to the foreign ministers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. John Adams, the President-elect, Thomas Jefferson and other prominent persons, according to the division of information and publication of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission.

"During the dinner much hilarity prevailed," says Bishop White, who was present. When the cloth was removed, Washington filled his glass and said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: This is the last time I shall drink your health as a public man. I do it with sincerity, wishing you all possible happiness."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

WHEN "Blessed Event" is presented as the fifth production of the Professional Players current season, the first week in February, at the Belasco Theater, following a try-out week in Newark, N. J., it will be no slip-shod, thrown-together comedy-melodrama that Capital theatergoers will see. Not because of the Newark week, but by reason of the fact that utmost care has been exercised over a long period of time in the play's preparation.

During a long chat yesterday afternoon with the author of "Blessed Event," Mr. Robert Forrest Wilson, familiarly known to his former associates in Washington as "Bob" and to magazine readers and theater patrons as Forrest Wilson, minus the Robert, much was disclosed concerning the precise manner in which this dramatic recital of the life of a metropolitan newspaper columnist has been carpentered into its final form—the one that is now in rehearsal with Roger Pryor, a Washington favorite, last seen here is "Up Pops the Devil" last spring, in the stellar role.

Mr. Wilson first got his idea for the play from a short story he had written for a popular monthly magazine. His first draft was accepted for production, but upon closer analysis failed to please either him or the purchaser of the rights. At first blush, the idea was so "hot" that Paramount took an option on it, which, however, was allowed to expire, thus throwing the work back on its original purchaser.

All this time Mr. Wilson and a collaborator or two whom he had called into consultation, were mulling the idea over in their minds. Last summer they tore the structure completely apart, added a prologue, converted the second scene of the second act into a third act, injected love interest that had previously been absent and altogether evolved a bigger and better play than they had had in the first place. This is the one that is coming to the Capital.

There is no secret about the identity of the columnist around whom the comedy revolves. Neither is there any secret about the fact that portions of the script do not at all please him, although it is not impossible that there may be evidence of the plot's rigid adherence to fact in certain of its climacteric revelations.

Roger Pryor, who will be seen in the role of the columnist, looks upon his part as the greatest opportunity he has ever had. It is, so he says, the role he has always wanted to play, but never before could find.

Mr. Wilson has been so close to his story for so long that he has flown rehearsals for a week's respite among old acquaintances in Washington. He says frankly enough that he has gone stale on the whole business and can not discern a laugh in the entire script, despite the fact that everyone else who has read it professes to perceive one in every line.

At any rate, it is a real effort that is to be divulged in the Belasco come February 1. For one, I am eagerly awaiting it.

In case you are one who missed the Rialto Theater from yesterday's announcements of the new week's attractions in the motion picture theaters, you may care to know that the omission was not one of oversight or inadvertence, but the result of the management's endeavor to convince itself that "Strictly Dishonorable" really is doing such a land-office business that it can not in justice to the picture or the house be taken off at the height of its popularity.

Thus it comes about that Universal's splendid picturization of the Preston Sturges comedy, originally produced on the stage by Brock Pemberton, today enters its third consecutive week on Ninth street, with Paul Lukas, Sidney Fox and Lewis S. Stone still delighting capacity crowds as the foremost members of a cast that is uniformly excellent.

Just a step across the alley to the Fox to thank George E. Stone for the handsome autographed photo and bid him good-by and good luck, only to find him surrounded by blondes, brunettes, Titians and a few males, all apparently bent on the same friendly mission. He returned to New York last night.

Speaking of the Fox, two Washington girls, members of the Fox Theater-Fanchon & Marco free dancing school, recently discontinued, have already obtained stage recognition and left Washington last night as members of Fanchon & Marco's "Three Big Figures" Idea, seen on F street throughout the week just closed.

The girls are Beulah Hunter, residing at the Clifton Terrace Apartments, Fourteenth and Clifton streets northwest, and Lillie Fay, 2116 Eighteenth street. Both were trained in stage dancing by Helene Kearney, instructor in charge of the Fox school. Both also were members of the cast of the "All Washington Revue" staged by Managing Director Harry W. Crull at the Fox several months ago.

Seven unusual events, including programs featuring music, literature, and varied interest, will be offered every alternate Tuesday evening, at Central Community Center, beginning January 19, by the Community Institute of Washington, at a special "half-season" price, of approximately 35 cents for each event. Reserved seats for each event are priced at only 25 cents extra.

The event on Tuesday evening, January 19, at 8:15 will be Stoddard King, "a jester of royal descent" whose humor plays over all life, and grows upon the hearer as does the personality of the speaker—vivid and virile, with a warmth of kindliness and fun. King is the "go-ahead-and-be-funny-man" with the Spokane-Spokesman Review, and is well known as the author of "It's a Long, Long Trail," "Grand Right and Left;" and "I Like My Neckties Wild."

He will be followed by Sylvia Lent, Washington violinist, on February 2; Ellery Walter, America's supreme adventurer, on February 16; Herbert Adams Gibbons, world traveler, on March 1; Clara Clemens, daughter of Mark Twain, on March 15; Albert Squier, gifted word-builder and master of camera-craft, on March 29, and John Erskine, a veritable "literary and musical furnace of energy," who will speak this time on music, "Music in Our Daily Lives," as the closing event, April 12.

Those who heard Lois Moran as guest artist on the air last evening with Lehigh's little brother Rudy and his Connecticut Yankees no doubt were as astonished as this column by the power, purity and obvious cultivation of her rich soprano singing voice. It is not at all to be wondered at that Miss Moran, better known as a screen than a stage player, is scoring even more decisively in "Of Thee I Sing," currently a hit on Broadway, than she did in "This Is New York," in which she was enthusiastically acclaimed as an ingenue of extraordinary promise.

Although it is well known that Miss Moran was in musical comedy and revue abroad before her fame became known in America, her voice through the speaker last night still was the biggest surprise that has come along since Estelle Taylor professionally disclosed an excellent soprano that nobody knew she possessed—not even Jack!

And I seem to recall that Miss Taylor told me, too, that Beulah Bondi, at the Belasco in "Distant Drums," with whom she worked on the film version of Elmer Rice's "Street Scene," also sings, and that they used to have some very elegant private recitals at her home over the crackers and cheese after the day's work was done. But I will be able to tell you more about that tomorrow.

Now, let me think, where do they have a piano in the breakfast room?

LONDOS FLATTENS SZABO BEFORE CROWD OF 7,000

Airplane Spin Wins in 37 Minutes

Greek Is Aggressor From Start to Finish in Fast Match.

Dusek Beats Corrigan; White Feather Stops Tiger Nelson.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IF Dana had waited until modern times to establish the definition of just what is news and what is not, it is quite likely that he would have chosen Jim Londos' winning streak as the paragon of no news at all and a defeat of the Greek as downright spectacular information. Instead he chose the old one about the man biting the dog and vice versa.

Well, there is no news to report. Maestro Londos is still the kid himself, and the manly chassis of Sandor Szabo, late of Hungary, was added to the list of 17,638,419½ men the classically proportioned gentleman from Athens has dumped since assuming the world's championship of New York, Pennsylvania and points South.

Seven thousand citizens were parties to the bouts last night, the largest indoor crowd for nearly a year, all come to see Szabo grind the fine old Grecian shoulders of the champ into Mr. Turner's upholstered mat. In the group were Senators Harrison and Schall, "Round the World" Gatty, without Post, and the usual run of Washington's sinister characters. Several hundreds were turned away.

Londos Gives Fine Show.

Londos gave his finest show in his eight appearances here. He left his bicycle home this time and waded into Szabo in much the manner people seem to expect of champions. He led all the way, something of an innovation in the gentle art of biff and gouge, and won going away in 37 minutes. Twice he fell victim to Szabo's finishing hold, a beautiful back drop, but came back brandishing elbows galore.

He looked beat in the last three minutes of the bout when he stood toe to toe with Sandor and slung elbow jolt for elbow jolt. Weakening the Budapestian, Londos sailed into him and applied two torturous crab holds, achieved by forming a figure U of Szabo, with the base of Szabo's back as the inside of the bottom of the figure.

Szabo came out of the two bends with a bad left leg and there was little left of it. Londos picked him up, held him aloft a moment and then slowly spun him around and around in the thick noxious air. Releasing him quickly, Szabo plunged down to the mat and the last rites were quickly administered.

The crowd gave the winner something of an ovation, but no bout on the card of five exhibitions aroused it as much as the last spot on the evening's bone bending, wherein a couple of old and pugnacious gents, Chief White Feather and Tiger Nelson, slugged like burlesque heavyweight fighters for 22 minutes before the Chief landed a murderous hay-making right to the brittle jaw of his accomplice, and knocked the spots loose on the Tiger. Nelson was completely out, and the Chieftain, himself the recipient of much foul play, maintained about an even gram of consciousness.

White Feather's Win Sensational.

It was the roughest and most appreciated bout in years. Umpire Bennah Bortnick allowed everything from rum distilling to arson, and the boys kicked and cuffed merrily. About the only thing they refused to stoop to was wrestling.

In the other bouts, Rough Rudy Dusek downed Jim Corrigan, a handsome California gorilla, in 39 minutes, when Corrigan cried "Uncle" on a cradle rock; Matros Kirilenko and Herb Freeman waddled through to a 30-minute draw, and Doc Wilson, Washington's ubiquituous Own, was ensnarled in the same sort of affair with Master George Hagen, a reformed Marine.

Cash, Salary, Room, Board in Deal at Willamette U., Says Player.

Eugene, Oreg., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—A declaration that he was hired by Willamette University, of Salem, Oreg., to play football, was made today by Harold McKenzie in his answer to a suit in which Sigma Tau, Willamette fraternity, sought to collect for McKenzie's board and lodging.

McKenzie, a guard on the 1931 football team, declared he contracted with the university in August, 1927, to play football, the school agreeing to grant a passing grade in hygiene, pay his tuition and pay him $75 in cash and $10 a month during the school year. Room and board also was to be furnished, he asserted.

McKenzie's answer declares arrangements were made by the university with the fraternity to give him board and lodging during the year, with the university reimbursing the fraternity.

The suit against McKenzie was filed March 16, 1931, asking for $143.76 in addition to interest at 6 per cent from October 31, 1923.

Salem, Oreg., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—An allegation by Harold McKenzie today that Willamette University had contracted to pay him for playing on its 1927 football team was denied here today by Leslie Sparks, Willamette graduate manager.

TOLEDO CLUB IS SOLD TO INDIANS

First 'Farm' Acquired by Cleveland; No Terms Divulged.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The bankrupt Toledo Mudhens of the American Association today became the property of the Cleveland Indians for the coming season, with provision for outright purchase at the end of that period.

Court approval was given the offer of General Manager Billy Evans to operate the Mudhens under Toledo's franchise for one year, with option to buy at the season's close.

No financial terms were divulged, although the agreement provides for leasing the Toledo baseball park during both the coming year and for any period thereafter.

Acquisition of the Mudhens gives the Cleveland club its only minor league farm. At present the Indian management has a working agreement with New Orleans in the Southern Association for acquiring new talent, but this limits the Cleveland farm program.

Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Baseball Club, said the Indians will be able to send to Toledo a squad of good young players that should bring the Mudhens to the top of the association standings.

Toledo Last in 1931 Race.

Toledo finished last at the close of the 1931 season, and before it went into receivership the management peddled players in wholesale lots.

"It ought to be a good deal for both cities," Bradley said. "Cleveland needs a good AA class farm and Toledo will benefit by the players we will send there."

A new manager is to be appointed to take the place of Casey Stengel, last year's pilot, who is now signed was the Brooklyn Nationals as coach.

A bid of $37,500 for the club by Hugh Brennan, Chicago advertising man and formerly connected with operation of the Milwaukee Club, was withdrawn because of opposition by Toledo stockholders. They said it was insufficient.

Only 58 Entered In Grand National Lowest Number in Years Named for Aintree Classic in March.

London, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The lowest number of entries in many years for the Grand National, which will be run at Aintree in March, was announced today. Only 58 as compared with 65 last year and 121 in 1929 are eligible for the gruelling four-mile steeplechase test.

The American horses entered include Jesse Metcalf's Theras, a recent winner over the hurdles; R. K. Mellon's Alike and Glangesia, the latter the winner of the Grasslands Chase in Tennessee; M. D. Blair's Ballyhanwood, Mrs. C. S. Bird jr.'s Heart Break Hill, J. H. Whitney's Dusty Foot and Sir Lindsay and Sea Soldier, owned by a Chicago syndicate.

Among the notable absentees, which ran last year, are Whitney's Easter Hero, now in the United States; Victor Emanuel's Rhyticebe and Stephen (Laddie) Sanford's Ballasport.

Hitting The Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATKINSON.

IF past performances mean anything in the Howard Campbell Sweepstakes, which will open at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow on the Lucky Strike alleys, Ollie Pacini, the up-and-coming Temple star, is already in. Pacini, nevertheless, will have to keep on his toes from start to finish if he expects to land the first-prize money, for no less than 50 of the ranking members of the duckpin colony have signified their intention of competing.

Ray Von Dreele and Ed Blakeney, Baltimore stars, are also eligible for the stakes and probably will be in line when the barrier is sprung.

Pacini is the standout choice to win because of his work in the three major tournaments already reposing in the record books. In the Dixie he came from behind, after trailing Ray Barnes over two-thirds of the route, to win out in the final block by 4 pins. His grand total for the fifteen games was 1,876. Pacini's sets were 627, 647 and 602. His next effort was in the Star tournament and in this he disturbed the maples to the extent of some 676 pins, one short of tying Maxie Rosenberg for second and three short of Carroll Daly, the winner.

Ollie's latest efforts were in the rich national sweepstakes. He trailed Ray Barnes, the winner, by 102 pins in this event, but at that was good enough to take second prize with a score of 1,865. For the first ten games of the contest, Barnes was nothing short of phenomenal. In previous tournaments he had rolled between 640 and 650 in the first two blocks and then had dropped to 600 and less in the final five games. In the National Barnes' opening salvo was 674. To this he added 698 in the second five for a total of 1,372, or approximately 80 pins above his usual score. He ran true to form in the final block and finished with a set of 595. Pacini was not as brilliant as his rival, but he was more consistent. His sets were 634, 618 and 613.

Another lad whose sight is pretty keen when it comes to locating the pins, and who is figured to be among the first five in the Campbell stakes, is Earl McPhilomy. The Earl is sporting an average in the neighborhood of 120 for the season and has given no indication of cracking. Three years ago, when he was obliged to give up the game because of a serious illness, Earl was crossed off the books as a serious contender. For one year, the wiseacres were correct in their assumptions for McPhilomy retired from competition. When he did come back he was as good as ever and since has gone quietly about the task of upholding his reputation for one of the greatest prospects ever developed in the city. He has not reached his peak, but he is bad company for any one with championship aspirations.

As an added incentive for the underdogs and those who get hot hands at various stages of the journey, Campbell has announced two additional prizes of $25 for each of the three blocks. The first quarter of a century note will go to the man scoring the highest set and the second to the owner of high game for that particular block. Contestants will be eligible to receive only one prize and those finishing in the big money are also disqualified.

King's Palace gained a 2-1 decision over Temple in a National Capital League match at Lucky Strike last night. The winner's scores were 558, 587 and 575. Temple's games were: 518, 597 and 566. Al Tompkins, of

SHIRES CHIEF ADDITION TO BRAVES

Maranville to Shift to Second With Maguire at Short.

BOSTON, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The off-season has been the dullest in years for the Boston Braves, and new faces will be few when Manager Bill McKechnie starts the 1932 operations in St. Petersburg, Fla., late next month.

The Tribe was, and still is, overburdened with trading material, but its chieftains were only able to make two important deals to bolster the weakest hitting outfit in the National League.

The outstanding trade reinstated Art Shires as a big leaguer, and "the great one," who had quite a year with Milwaukee, is bent on becoming the best first baseman in the senior circuit. Bill Knothe, who labored in Seattle during 1921, will cross the continent to try to plug the wide gap at third base.

The passing of Freddie Maguire to Louisville will force McKechnie to move the colorful Rabbit Maranville over to second base and give Bill Urbanski the acting midget's old shortstop berth.

Most of the Braves' hitting last season was supplied by the outfield, Wally Berger, Wes Schmulmerich and Bob Worthington, and this trio has not been tampered with. Randy Moore and Earle Clark will again serve as utility fielders.

Berger, one of the five National Leaguers to play in every game, closed last season with a .323 batting average, getting 199 hits, including 44 doubles and 19 homers. Schulmerich was the only other to pass .300. The Tribe, as a whole, hit for .258, against the league's team average of .277, and Helen Jacobs Placed Second to Women's Champion.

By GALE TALBOT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The selection committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association recommended today that the two eminent Californians, Mrs. Helen Moody and Ellsworth Vines, jr., be ranked as the country's leading players for 1931.

As the pair easily proved themselves champions of their respective division on the field of play, it was a foregone conclusion they would receive the No. 1 berths, but other recommendations made by the official selectors probably will cause plenty of argument at the national meeting in New Orleans a month hence.

Before the rankings released today can become official they must be ratified by a majority vote of delegates at the national convention. In former years the committee's list had only to be approved by the executive committee.

Vines' selection as the country's top-ranking star climaxes a remarkable year for the 20-year-old Pasadena youth. Rated no better than No. 8 at the start of the 1931 campaign, he swept through almost every major tournament on this side of the water, including the national championships.

Mrs. Moody Regains No. 1 Ranking.

Mrs. Moody returned to her customary place at the head of the feminine division after a year's lapse, in which she was not ranked because of lack of sufficient data.

Both of last year's No. 1 players took a tumble down the list. John Hope Doeg, ranked first among the men for 1930, dropped to No. 5; Mrs. L. A. Harper, of San Francisco, who led the women's division, fell to No. 3.

George Lott, jr., of Chicago, veteran Davis Cup star, who lost to Vines in the finals for the national singles championship, drew the No. 2 ranking for 1931. He was No. 7 the previous year.

Frank Shields, of New York, member of the United States Davis Cup Team, was placed No. 3, with John Van Ryn No. 4, John Doeg No. 5, Clifford Sutter No. 6, Sidney B. Wood, jr., No. 7, Keith Gledhill No. 8, Wilmer Allison No. 9, and Berkeley Bell No. 10.

The drops taken by Wood and Allison in the ranking were the most precipitate.

Allison was adjudged No. 3 a year ago and Wood was No. 4. Gledhill, national intercollegiate champion, rose from No. 14 for 1930 to his present position.

Probably the greatest surprise was the lowering of Wood to No. 7. The blond youngster failed badly in the national championships, but he previously had won the singles title at Wimbledon and represented the United States in its unsuccessful attempt to win the Davis Cup.

Doeg Ranked Below Shields.

There was prospect of an argument over the ranking of Doeg two notches below Shields, in as much as left-handed Johnny eliminated Shields in the quarter-finals of the national. Doeg also went farther than Van Ryn in the championships.

Helen Jacobs was placed at No. 2 among the women, with Mrs. Harper No. 3, Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup No. 4, Mary Greef No. 5, Marjorie Morrill No. 6, Sarah Palfrey No. 7, Mrs. Marjorie Van Ryn No. 8, Virginia Hilleary No. 9 and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus Burke No. 10. Mrs. Burke was ranked No. 22 a year ago.

Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, old Davis Cup doubles pair and national champions, were ranked No. 1 in that division, with Vines and Gledhill No. 2 and Lott and Doeg No. 3.

Jack Lynch, of Taft, Calif., was selected as the country's top-ranking junior star, with Jay Cohn of Santa Monica, Calif., second and William Doeg, also of Santa Monica, third.

8 GRID GAMES ON CATHOLIC SCHEDULE

Chattanooga, Wake Forest New Foes of Cards' Eleven.

EIGHT and possibly nine football games will be played by Catholic University next fall, it was learned yesterday. The Brookland athletic authorities are endeavoring to schedule an opponent for October 8, which date is still open on their schedule.

For the first time in the history of the school, Catholic will play host to a couple of Southern elevens, with the University of Chattanooga and Wake Forest College scheduled to appear in Brookland Stadium on October 15 and November 5, respectively.

The University of Chattanooga won the championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association last fall, reaching heights it never before had attained in the gridiron world. However, in its closing game, which was played for charity, it lost to the University of Alabama. Wake Forest has been one of the strongest of the smaller Southern group of football teams for several years.

Five Games on Home Schedule.

With these games and the one sought for October 8, the Cardinals will have a home program of five games. The others will be played with Duquesne on November 18 (Friday night), and with Loyola on November 24 (Thanksgiving Day).

Games on foreign fields will be played with City College of New York, on October 1; Manhattan, at New York City, October 22; Holy Cross, at Worcester, Mass., October 29, and Providence College, at Providence, R. I., November 12.

Athletic Director Arthur Bergman attempted to secure Manhattan for a local game, but, failing of this, closed an agreement to bring Chick Meehan's team here in 1933. Manhattan, under the coaching of Johnny Law, bowed to Catholic here last season. It is expected that Meehan, who recently resigned from New York University, will effect a considerable strengthening of the New York team by the time the 1932 season rolls around.

Nats Buy Youthful Pitcher for Tryout

Mike Delaney, Regarded Highly, Purchased From Youngstown Club.

Mike Delaney, a right-handed pitcher not yet of voting age, was signed by the Nationals yesterday. This lad was purchased from the Youngstown Club, which signed him last season after he had worked out in Chicago, his home town, with the Nats and was highly recommended by Walter Johnson.

Delaney will be taken to the Biloxi training camp next month and, even if he fails to make the grade, he will come in mighty handy pitching to batters, for the Nats are taking but a small mound squad and will need plenty of help in this connection.

Tilden Beats German Pro in 3-Set Match

Philadelphia, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Big Bill Tilden had little trouble overcoming Roman Najuch, former German champion, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2, in the Eastern professional tennis play tonight. His driving and defense was too much for the German.

Hans Nusslein, German champion, disposed of Allen Behr, of New York, 6—2, 6—3, 6—0, in the other match of the night. Behr substituted for Bruce Barnes, of Texas, who arrived too late to play.

Tilden and Bobby Seller, of California, disposed of Emmett Pare, of Chicago, and Albert Burke, of Ireland, 6—3, 6—4, 6—4, in the first doubles round.

Burke defeated Seller, 6—0, 6—1, 6—1, in the opening match today.

C. U.-MD. CUBS PLAY.

The freshmen basket ball teams of Catholic and Maryland universities will meet tonight in Brookland gymnasium, starting at 8 o'clock. This game replaces the Catholic-University of Mexico contest which has been canceled.

A.A.U. Basket Ball Tourney Starts on March 1 at Tech

Annual Court Feature Opens Week Earlier; Best Facilities Again Assured; Players Urged to Hasten Registration.

TEN days earlier than it has ever been scheduled, the District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, will swing into action Tuesday, March 1, with the giant Tech High Gymnasium once more the scene of the courtfest, it was announced last night by Winfree Johnson, chairman of the basket ball committee. It will last throughout March.

Entry blanks will be issued Monday and may be obtained thereafter at the sports department of The Post. Entries are to be returned to Walter Haight, at The Post.

As an initial step in encouraging organized teams, D. C. A. A. U. officials yesterday ruled that all applying teams shall have played at least two games together, as a team, prior to February 1, 1932.

Last Dates Named For Registration.

Teams in the 130, 145 and unlimited classes must be registered as amateurs and have their applications in to The Post by February 1. The 100-pound teams and the junior and senior girls sextets have until February 23 to sign up.

Teams will be weighed in on Thursday and Friday, February 25 and 26, at the Boys' Club, where applications for amateur registration can be made with Charles Fyfe, director of the club and A. A. U. official.

The committee in charge of the tournament urged local teams to hasten along their applications for registration as amateurs. At the same time the committee warned A. A. U. teams to guard against playing either with or against unregistered teams or players.

Suspensions May Result.

It was brought out that such violations of this A. A. U. code would result in suspension of both the team and its players.

Virtually every leading basket ball combine in the District is already entered, or about to enter. The entire Community Center League, composed of the 20 leading unlimited squads, entered in bulk, as did the Boys' Club League teams, and other representative outfits.

School Fives Open Series Today

Central Choice Over Western; Other Teams Active.

WITH the most critical gallery of sports fans in Washington looking on from more than 3,000 seats, the annual high school basket ball series begins this afternoon in Tech High Gymnasium at 3:30 o'clock. The opening tilt brings together Tech and Business and the second game concerns Central and Western.

The teams of Tech and Central are favored a bit in the high school betting courses on the eve of the battles, but the other two bands of young men are noted as "sleepers," and if they achieve the kind of form they have shown upon occasions early this year, may provide the newspaper boys with a chance to write "upset" stories.

Tech has the best bunch of shooters in several years, and if it can keep its first team of Russell, Wheeler, Reed, Willison and Thomas intact through the rest of the season, seems likely to cop the title. Today, against Business, it will find itself matched with a hardworking little club which lacks any semblance of brilliance. The Stenog combination of Esenstad, Tipton, Sherman, Cavanaugh and Shore is a good defensive team, and may severely test the attack of the Techians.

Business May Play Freezing Game.

Since Tech installed the zone defense system, Business has usually been successful in throwing the Manual Trainers off their stride. Customarily Business will attempt to get a two or four point lead at the start of things and then begin to freeze the ball, forcing Tech's zone players to come out of their stalls and mix in the game. It may bring results today, for one of Tech's coolest heads, Capt. Artie Willison, will be on the bench with an injured ankle.

The Central-Western game looks like a natural. Central has what is perhaps the finest defensive team in the series, but has produced only one outstanding shot, Capt. Bill Burke. Western's defensive play is negligible, but in Anthony Latona, Bucky Buscher and Bill Payne it possess a trio of first-rate individual players.

Eastern to Face G. W. Freshmen.

Eastern High, idle on the series schedule today, in no way will be inactive. At 7 o'clock tonight it tackles the elongated George Washington University Freshmen, who are seeking their fourth victory over a local high school combination, having defeated Business twice and Central.

In other games today Devitt meets Swavely, at Manassas; Friends plays Georgetown Prep, at Garrett Park, and St. Albans meets Episcopal, there. Tonight St. Johns plays the Boys Club, at home, and Gonzaga plays host to the Knights of Columbus outfit.

Day, Medalist, Wins First Florida Match

Miami, Fla., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—An overshot green that gave his opponent a 6 instead of a par 5 on the eighteenth hole brought victory today to Win Day, lanky Chicago golfing schoolboy, in the first match play of the Miami midwinter amateur golf tournament.

Day, medalist in the tourney, and Jimmy West, Atlanta and Miami, went to the tee on the eighteenth hole all even. Day sank his ball to take a par 5 for the more than 500 yards hole.

West's approach went over the green, and it took three more strokes to get down. Other first flight players shot stellar golf despite a high wind over Miami Country Club golf course. Billy Dear, Montclair, N. J., won handily 6 and 4 from Bob McCullough, Chicago. Brooks Glenn, Miami, won 3 and 2, from A. P. Lawton, Howell, Mich.

Schmeling and Walker Will Sign Terms Today

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Signing of the contract between Max Schmeling, heavyweight boxing champion, and Mickey Walker for a title fight in Miami in February today was postponed until tomorrow.

In announcing yesterday that the contract would be signed today Garden authorities failed to take the lawyers into their confidence and when they received the contracts found they were dated Friday, January 8. The signing will be merely a formality however, as all details have been argeed on.

Wilson Is Sought By Brooklyn Club

Carey Visits Hack at His Martinsburg Home on Way South.

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., Jan. 7.—That the Brooklyn Club of the National League is casting longing eyes at Hack Wilson, former Cubs' slugging ace, who recently was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals, is somewhat of a certainty, it appeared here today, when it was learned that Max Carey, Brooklyn pilot, was in Martinsburg early this week and talked with the all-time National League home-run king.

Wilson today described Carey's visit as a social one, adding that the leader of the Dodgers merely stopped off here on his way to Miami. To local baseball fans, however, it seemed queer that anybody should make this little West Virginia city a stopping point on the way to the Florida resort.

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

ENSCONCED comfortably in the green beige upholstery of his office furniture at the headquarters of the Washington Baseball Club, Clark C. Griffith beamed benignly upon all visitors yesterday. There was a reason.

The morning mail from Greensboro, N. C., had deposited upon his desk a letter from General Alvin Crowder, the mainstay of the pitching staff in the closing months of last season, and the news therein gave the president of the Nats great satisfaction. Crowder painted a pretty picture of his preparedness for the 1932 season in contrast to his poor start last year when he failed to win a game in his first half dozen starts.

So mild has the weather been at Greensboro that Crowder has had opportunity to take short workouts three times a week, he wrote. In addition, he declares that the kink in his pitching arm has vanished and that the stomach ailment which he contends affected his pitching last season has been completely cured.

With Hadley and Jones departed these precincts and Griffith depending upon Crowder to bear the brunt of the pitching burden next season, the owner of the Nats received with great gratification the gladdening news from Crowder. But his joy was short-lived.

He told the story of Crowder's letter to a baseball correspondent who had appeared on the scene for the weekly conference. The latter listened intently, looked searchingly at Griffith, and then raised his eyebrows in an expression that had all the earmarks of "Oh, yeah?"

Mr. Griffith didn't agree at once that Crowder might have heard that the high-salaried men of the club were due for a cut in wages, and that the pitcher's cheering letter might have been a smart move to head off any such action by the owner of the Nats. But he was impressed with the plausibility of the situation and declined to state whether or not Crowder's contract had already been sent the pitcher. As the correspondent departed, Mr. Griffith was blowing his cigar smoke in thoughtful, deliberate rings, indicating that he was thinking deeply.

The Washington Club's undergraduate school at Chattanooga reports a heavier registration than usual with nine former members of the Nats who were found delinquent in tryouts released to the Lookouts during the off-season.

With this wholesale withdrawal from the Washington Club's forces the identity of the Nats' regular line-up for the 1932 campaign holds little mystery, with the club retaining only 2 utility infielders, 3 utility outfielders, 1 reserve catcher, and only 4 new additions to the pitching staff.

The Nats will take only ten pitchers to the Biloxi camp next month, with Thomas, Griffith, Freiderich, Ragland and Delaney signed yesterday as the only simon-pure rookies in the lot. Of this quartet only Ragland is conceded a chance to break into a regular berth. Manager Johnson will have little work to perform on raw rookie talent, with Crowder, Marberry, Brown, Burke, Fischer and Weaver in the class of experienced twirlers.

Joe Cronin and Ossie Bluege are placed in the gratifying position of encountering no opposition in the battle for places on the team. The Nats have retained only two reserve infielders, Joe Judge and Johnny Kerr. Judge is strictly a first baseman and Kerr can hope only to dislodge Buddy Myer at second, thus leaving the Nats without a utility man for shortstop or third-base duty.

Evidently the complaints of Johnson during the Southern training trips of the last two years have gone unheeded insofar as pitching talent is concerned. Johnson has long bemoaned the scarcity of pitchers at the Washington camp, and this department can see no effort on the part of the club to remedy the situation.

During the last two years Johnson was forced to call upon his regulars to take long turns on the mound in batting practice owing to the lack of rookies. In contrast, there were more than 30 pitching candidates at Bradenton, Fla., last year with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Betting Coup Costs Bookies $1,000,000

Special to The Washington Post.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—Upward of a million dollars in losses were believed to have been sustained by bookmakers here and throughout the country today as the result of a West Coast betting coup. The first race at Agua Caliente yesterday, which was won by Linden Tree, a 2-year-old, was the tool for the gamblers. Linden Tree paid $21.40 to win, $2.60 to place, and $2.20 to show. The horse is said to have been quoted at 1 to 3 in the odds posted before the horses left for the post. After a delay of nine minutes at the post, Linden Tree's odds were shifted to 9 to 1. It is believed that those interested in the coup were able to drop enough money into the mutuels at the last minute on other horses in the race to bolster up the odds on Linden Tree. Betting at the Mexican track has been so low this winter that a few thousand dollars played would materially change the odds.

Y. M. C. A. VS. CARDINALS

The Y. M. C. A. Unlimited Basket Ball Team will meet the Washington Cardinals in a game scheduled for 8 p. m. on the "Y" court tonight. All players are requested to report promptly.

AMP DOUGLAS WINS THIRD IN ROW AT JEFFERSON PARK

Coughlin Ace Leads From Start

Sandwrack Makes Bid But Loses by Small Margin.

Daily Double Pays Winners $643.80 for $2 Wager.

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Camp Douglas, three-year-old ace of J. J. Coughlin's Chicago barn, ran his winter season record to three straight when he defeated a classy field at one mile in the Al Tauzier purse over the Jefferson Park oval today.

The son of Campfire, which failed to win a race until he reached New Orleans, got away flying and managed to hold the advantage all of the way. C. Januska's Sandwrack, winner of his last start, made a determined challenge in the stretch but failed by the narrowest of margins to catch the Coughlin colt. Third share of the $1,000 purse went to Crystal Prince from the Jackson Park stable. Camp Douglas paid $3.60 for a $2 straight ticket.

Sir John K., which paid $55.60, and Miss N. Conlin, a 5-to-2 shot formed the daily double combination, which paid $643.80 for $2.

Chancellor Repeats at Tropical Park.

Tropical Park Race Track, Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Master Hank Mills again dominated the spotlight at the picturesque Coral Gables course this afternoon. The diminutive apprentice sensation earned his "daily double" in the featured Dade County claiming purse of one mile by driving J. V. Stewart's Chancellor to victory in a blanket finish which found the first three horses noses apart. Gold Mint was second, with Deemster garnering the short end of the purse.

It was Chancellor's second consecutive score and the old fellow covered the eight panels in 1:41 flat over a fast track. He was well supported, paying $7 for $2. Deemster ruled the choice.

Chancellor's chances to win looked very dismal for most of the journey. He lacked his usual early speed and was back among the trailers until a quarter mile from home. Deemster and Crack Play, two 4-year-olds which have been shining in sprint affairs, had the track all to themselves for six furlongs, while Gold Mint was rated in third position. At the turn for home, there was a general closing in and Deemster began to waver under pressure. Mills brought Chancellor through the weaving leaders. It was a great finish with Mills, getting to the front with Chancellor and keeping him together just long enough to beat Gold Mint and Deemster.

Infinitus Easy Winner At Havana.

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Infinitus, 5-year-old son of Infinite, which races for H. C. Rumage, was an easy winner of the 6-furlong feature at Oriental Park today. He showed the way at the finish to A. W. Brent's Timon, while in third place was A. Pelleteri's Scapegoat. The winner, ridden by Jockey T. Roderick, was a pronounced choice.

Infinitus opened at odds on, but drifted slightly up toward the end, due to the support given to Timon, which was backed from 5 to 1 to 3 to 1. The winner dominated the running all the way, taking command at the rise of the barrier and ending the journey in a common gallop.

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

JEFFERSON PARK, New Orleans, La., Jan. 7.—A program of claiming events, with the exception of a juvenile race under allowance conditions, will be offered the patrons of Jefferson Park tomorrow. With favorable weather, the card will be contested over a slow track. The best offering of the day is the fifth event, a mile and a sixteenth gallop for 3-year-olds and upward.

In the feature event, I. P. Rick's GETTIN EVEN, a recent winner, appears to hold a slight edge over his six opponents. The son of Blazer is partial to a slow track and under the conditions should hold GALAHAD safe. The latter has been training well and has shown splendid efforts in soft footing. STEPHANITE is moving up in this group but is selected over the others for the short end of the purse.

FIRST RACE—LUCK PIECE, steady plater from the T. Flippen string and an easy winner last outing, figures to repeat. GOLD BET and DEVON, two seasoned campaigners, are on edge and should furnish stern opposition.

SECOND RACE—AMERICAN THUNDER has shown the most consistent form of this cheap lot and on her recent third to Miss Onine is selected to score. ZAILA is the place choice, with PURPLE ROBE fancied for the show.

THIRD RACE—BOBUP raced creditably as a juvenile and in his first appearance this year showed a splendid effort. On his recent form is the logical choice. VERITY BALLOT appears to be the challenger, with BEAUTY BRIDE a possibility for third.

FOURTH RACE—TIVERTON, a promising youngster, which scored in her debut, is favored to repeat. CHANTESUT displayed speed in her only start and is the place selection with CLOISTER DREAM fancied over the others.

SIXTH RACE—DICK MORRIS has raced consistently at this six furlong distance and figures to outfoot his rivals. OVERBOARD and ESTIN, two superior mudders, should battle it out for the remainder of the purse.

SEVENTH RACE—BERNICE VAN, from the V. Michie string, finished second last start and should improve enough to gain the honors. NERVATOR is fancied for the place. GOLD HANDLE should hold the others safe.

SUBSTITUTE RACE—In this number ALL COLUMBIA, lightly weighted with 103 pounds, should show the way. STUPENDOUS is on the improve and may furnish the opposition. HELEN DEAN has plenty of early speed and is the show selection.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOB WEIDEL, $59.00, $13.40, $4.00; BIG BLUE, $3.80, $2.80; DRURY, $3.60.

BOB WEIDEL, lucky throughout and away fast, saved ground after reaching the turn, improved position rapidly when urged in stretch and, passing BIG BLUE on inside, came away fast in the final fifty yards. BIG BLUE, lucky at the start and taken into the lead, raced under slight restraint for a half mile, swerved out slightly in the stretch and weakened after reaching the final sixteenth. DRURY, away in a tangle, bettered his position gradually and closed fast. MUST HURRY, a factor throughout, had no mishap and held on fairly well. INDIAN LEGEND, away poorly, showed a good effort. SONNY BASIL was given an energetic ride. MAD FINN began well, but dropped far out of it after a quarter. OBSTINATE GIRL and MARDELLE got away poorly.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:31. Winner, Mrs. E. Hoffman's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIR JOHN K., $55.60, $27.20, $9.20; SOLUS, $8.40; $7.60; ST. JIM, $3.20.

SIR JOHN K., going in his best form, forced early pace under strong restraint, drew into command quickly when called on and, continuing strongly, won thereafter. SOLUS dropped far out of it and was badly outrun to the stretch, where he closed with a rush after coming to extreme outside. ST. JIM began slowly, raced wide under weak handling throughout and closed some ground in the stretch. POLYPON had speed, had the firmer footing throughout and held on well. NOBLE WRACK held on gamely. AGAPANTHUS pulled up lame. BRINKLEY had speed, stumbled at the stretch turn and weakened when straightened out in the final quarter. ITSO was knocked back shortly after the start.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-old fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:57. Off at 2:59½. Winner, M. J. Palmer's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS N. CONLON, $7.80, $4.20, $3.00; COTTON TIME, $9.40, $6.40; HASOLA, $8.60.

MISS N. CONLON, well ridden and away fast, saved ground throughout, slowly shook off WHITE TOES after reaching the stretch and continuing well, held COTTON TIME safe. The latter began fast and was forced back at the turn, saved ground entering stretch and stood the drive gamely, but failed to threaten the winner. HASOLA raced wide early, saved some ground in the stretch and, closing resolutely, outfinished FORTUNA MIA. The latter began slowly and gained steadily in the final quarter, but could not get up. SPORTING MAUDIE, fractious at the post, but away fast, was rated under slight reserve to the stretch, where she weakened after rallying mildly. WHITE TOES had early speed. MEMPHIS LASS showed a poor effort.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. (Substitute). Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. colts, horses and geldings. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—STOP GAP, $14.00, $6.40, $4.20; ROBOT, $5.60, $3.40; IRISH, $4.00.

STOP GAP, lucky, began slowly, gave improved speed after three-eighths, came through on inside entering the stretch and, wearing down ROBOT, drew out rapidly. Latter, also lucky, had speed from the start, saved ground at the stretch turn, held the issue safe until tired and weakened, but outstayed IRISH. The latter, probably not in the best, began fast, was extended when he ran out badly at the stretch turn and went well under timid handling while racing on extreme outside in the stretch. TUFINUF raced well. FINNATH closed some ground. SHACKELFORD forced early pace under energetic riding and was eliminated when forced almost to the outside fence by IRISH at the stretch turn. PARTICIPATE was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; allowances. Al Tauzier Purse. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:49. Off at 3:50. Winner, J. J. Coughlin's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAMP DOUGLAS, $3.60, $2.80, $2.20; SAND WRACK, $3.20, $2.40; CRYSTAL PRINCE, $2.60.

CAMP DOUGLAS, taken into the lead, was occasionally indulged mildly during the opening three-quarters, raced a trifle wide in the stretch and weakened, but stalled off SAND WRACK. The latter saved much ground, was under slight restraint the first half mile and was in close quarters approaching the stretch turn, moved up strongly on the inside after reaching the final eighth, but hung in the final strides. CRYSTAL PRINCE dropped out of it, raced wide and closed resolutely. PRINCE FARTHING had speed, saved ground and weakened in the stretch. CHICON was weakly ridden. THE WHIG had early speed and tired badly.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Club House from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:13½. Off at 4:18½. Winner, R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BILL LOONEY, $9.80, $4.60, $3.40; DOWNPOUR, $6.40, $5.00; WISE SELLER, $4.00.

BILL LOONEY forced the early pace under strong restraint, raced into the lead with a rush and, maintaining fine speed thereafter, won under mild hand riding. DOWNPOUR, up close from the start, bore out slightly in the stretch and held on well. WISE SELLER had speed, but weakened after reaching the last three-sixteenths. ELIZABETH BOLLA began slowly, lost ground early and failed to rally when hard urged. JACK B. broke slowly, bore out at the turn and swerved repeatedly in the stretch. CLUB HOUSE refused to break with the field.

DIM RAY, away fast, followed early leaders under restraint, quickly raced into command when called on and held away thereafter. SETH'S BALLOT, much the best, but away slowly and in close quarters early, was taken far out of it, remained far back the first seven-eighths, then closed with a rush racing wide. PUNKIE, taken to the lead, made the pace under good rating, but weakened in the drive. TROLL had speed from the start, raced wide and weakened in the final eighth. ADALOR T was on inside throughout and was unable to get up. OPEN GO SHUT had no mishap. TOMMY quit. SPORTING BLUES was weakly ridden.

SAKS-MARINE FIVES MEET TOMORROW

Clothiers Face Test in Giant Courtmen From Quantico.

BOASTING the greatest record for victories ever compiled by an amateur team in this city, the Saks Clothiers will take a fling at college basket ball tomorrow when they stack up against the Quantico Marines at 8 p. m., in the Takoma-Silver Spring High School Gym.

In the Marines, Saks will meet a team of veritable giants, for the average height of the squad is 6 feet. Andy Zeher, Farrell and Harold Bauer, the latter a former Naval Academy star, are the leading members of the team.

Devil Dogs Gave G. W. A Scare.

The Devil Dogs added a few gray hairs to the heads of the George Washington players Wednesday night in a fiercely contested game which the Colonials finally won by a spirited rally in the closing minutes of play. The final score was 39 to 27.

Saks will rely on the keen eyes of Bernie Jones and Bobby Lucas to pull it through to victory. Sam Hook and Willis Fisher will hold down the guard berths, and Joe Robey will jump center. This quintet comprises one of the smoothest working teams ever to play in this city, and all are potential point-getters. Manager Dick Mothershead is looking gloomily forward to the fray, freely predicting the third downfall in two years of the apples of his eye.

MEXICAN FIVE CANCELS ON C. U.

U.S. Invasion Financial Failure

10 Other Games Listed, 8 Away, for D. C. Colleges.

Gallaudet-Md. State and Bliss-Wilson Play Here.

WASHINGTON basket ball fans were denied the advertised feature of the week's collegiate program when the University of Mexico yesterday canceled its game with Catholic University, scheduled tonight at Brookland. This leaves but two games for local consumption while eight other contests involving Capital quintets will be played away.

In the remaining local games, both of which are to be held tonight, Gallaudet will entertain Maryland State Normal at Kendall Green, and Bliss will engage Wilson Teachers at Silver Spring.

Entire U. S. Tour Abandoned.

In a letter to athletic authorities at Catholic University the management of the Mexican Team stated that the game here had to be canceled in order to save a great financial loss. Prior cancellations of games on the Mexicans' tour of the United States made it impracticable for them to carry out their plan of visiting the Capital. It was therefore decided that the entire tour would be abandoned, the letter advised.

Gallaudet hopes to register its third victory in four starts tonight at the expense of Maryland State Normal, which has appeared here twice already this season and lost on both occasions. The home team will present Wilbur Jensen and George Brown at forwards; George Walnoha at center, and Jimmy Rayhill and Bilbo Monaghan at center. This combination, though inexperienced in the main, has indicated promise of developing into a formidable quintet ere long, and Coach Wally Krug looks ahead confidently.

Bliss, leading contender for the Washington Collegiate Conference championship, is favored in its game with Wilson Teachers. Preceding this contest, the Eagles Girls, amateur champions of the District, will oppose the Howitzers, beginning at 7:30. A dance will follow the main attraction.

Georgetown Plays at Brooklyn.

Georgetown, American, Benjamin Franklin, Columbus and Strayer will perform on foreign courts tonight and tomorrow. Georgetown with a squad of ten players meets the strong Crescent A. C. tonight in Brooklyn and tomorrow night plays New York University in New York City. American, which inaugurated its Virginia tour last night with Randolph-Macon, will play Virginia Medical tonight at Richmond and Hampden-Sydney tomorrow night at Hampden-Sydney, Va.

Benjamin Franklin will step out of its class to battle Rider College tonight at Trenton, N. J. Rider ranks among the strongest collegiate quintets of the East and the local club will be lucky, it is figured, to escape with a respectable score. Tomorrow night, Franklin encounters New Jersey State Teachers, also at Trenton.

Strayer and Columbus will compete tomorrow night, respectively, against Shepherd College at Shepherdstown, W. Va., and Shenandoah College at Dayton, Va. Shenandoah recently invaded Washington to win four out of five games, defeating Columbus by a one-sided score among others.

Griffith Drilling C. U. Trackmen for Big Meet

Coach Dorsey Griffith has his Catholic University trackmen working out daily in preparation for a program of six indoor meets, including the annual Catholic University carnival, scheduled in Brookland gymnasium the night of February 27.

The Cardinals will begin competition on February 6 in the Millrose games at New York. On February 17 they will take part in the New York A. C. meet. Three days later the Meadowbrook games in Philadelphia will attract them and they will journey to Morgantown on February 22 for the annual West Virginia University program. The Southern Conference meet at Chapel Hill, N. C., will conclude their indoor activities.

Coach Griffith is hopeful of producing the strongest squad Catholic ever has boasted. He is counting heavily on Octavius Averhoff, a Cuban first-year student and a promising middle-distance runner. Such veterans as Garafalo, two-miler; Fraatz, hurdler; Lyons, sprinter, and McGuigan, Hickey, McDonald and Campbell, quarter-milers, are once more available, while in addition Griffith has gained the services of Barkley, sprinter, and Connor and Brennan, quarter-milers.

BOAT CLUB FIVE WINS.

The Potomac Boat Club quintet scored its second victory over the Tremonts within a week at the Boys Club last night by a score of 22-12. Roberts and Johnson led the winning team in scoring, while Dan Galotta was best for the losers.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

King's Palace, and Whitey Appell, of Temple, tied for the set honors with 357, but Appell had a game of 139 tucked away in his match, which enabled him to obtain the high game honors.

The H. B. Leary Team in the Automotive League came in for a bit of reflected glory at Lucky Strike when it copped three of the four high marks for the evening despite its one-game loss to Packard. Terry, anchor man on the team, shot a game of 135 and set of 348, and the team hung up a game of 558. Emerson & Orme kicked in with a set of 1,567 to lead in this respect. In the other matches, Buick, Mott and Pohanka odd-gamed their way to victory over Stanley Horner, L. P. Steuart and Trew Motors. Skinker dropped all three to Emerson & Orme.

The leading Peoples Drug Stores Team received a jolt in the Commercial League at Convention Hall when the Star bowlers won all three games. Woodward & Lothrop furnished the scorer with another upset when it took the odd game from the second-place Daily News five. The News, incidentally, rolled a game of 574, and Rogers, of the same team, turned in a game of 134, while a teammate, Bradley, was credited with a set of 347. Sterrett Operating took the deciding game from Diamond Cab, and Wonder Bread won all the dough from Carry's Ice Cream.

The Washington Herald added insult to injury when it took The Post Circulation Team into camp for the necessary third game in the Daylight Loop at Convention Hall. The insult was in the nature of a new set record of 1,599, the old mark of 1,589 being held by the victims. The Evening Star took two from Bond Bread, and The Post Composing Room and Occidental Hotel scored clean sweeps over the Master Printers and Post Press. Coffren's 356 set was high for the day, and Scott took the game laurels with his 134.

Johnny Pendleton, Bert Talley and Musko Garnett dominated the Intercollegiate League activities at Rendezvous. The first two mentioned tied for high-game prize at 131, and the third member of the trio walked in with set laurels when he peppered the pins for a score of 347. Yale defeated Navy by one game in the feature match. The Tars won the first game by a single pin, and held their opponents to a draw in the second tilt, only to lose on the roll-off. Yale came through with a win by a comfortable margin in the final game. V. M. I. and V. P. I. won the deciding games over Michigan and Lehigh, and Maryland, Princeton whitewashed Brown, Dartmouth and Harvard.

Treasury added to its lead in the Ladies Federal League by trouncing Commerce in all three games at Arcadia. A set of 1,450 was chalked up by the winners. Interstate took the final game from Labor, and Internal Revenue applied the same medicine to G. A. O. Mary Bryant, a newcomer to the league, made an auspicious debut when she toppled the pins for a set of 338 to lead the Commerce Comets to a 2-1 win over Veterans Bureau. Pauline Ford's 327 total was conspicuous in the Marines' odd-game triumph over Commerce Juniors. The cellar occupants, Census, emerged long enough to hand Economics the short end of a 3-0 score, and Agriculture trimmed G. P. O. by one game. Cecil Raver's 124 game helped save Commerce Juniors from a shutout.

Frank Gauzza's 142 game and Bill Walman's 359 set topped the individual scoring in the War Department League at Arcadia last night. Hydrographic took the team laurels with a game of 565 and set of 1,632.

Marie Walsh and her gang of Nitwits, ran off with the show in the Ladies Veterans Bureau loop at Arcadia. Miss Walsh chalked up a game of 111 and set of 295 while the team came through with a game of 490 and set of 1,356.

Miss Rieves had the spotlight all to herself in the A. G. O. Ladies loop at Columbia, ringing the bell with a game of 123 and set of 305, the highest individual scores recorded. Bombardment laid the Military Police low with a three-game victory and the Mine Planters swept Signal Corps off its feet with another three-game win. Pack Train took all three from the Butchers and Pursuit Group won the odd one from Firing Squad. Bombardment's set of 1,279 and Mine Planters' game of 439 were the outstanding team totals.

White-washing Disbursing in their match at Columbia last night, G. H. I. captured the first series in the Interior Department League, finishing a full game ahead of Survey. Land, which had held the lead up until last night, dropped to third when it succumbed to Engravers in the deciding game. Survey took the runner-up honors with a 2-1 victory over Secretary, and Pension finished fifth by trouncing Indian, 2-1. Secretary's game of 564 and Survey's set of 1,566 bagged the team prizes. Buscher captured individual high set with his 344 and Flannery took the game medal by virtue of his 136.

A set of 1,440 by Value failed to daunt Finance in the Valuation Examiners' loop at Columbia, and the latter eked out a 2-1 decision. Recapture was saved from a shutout at the hands of Investment when it rolled a game of 508. In the only other match Income socked Costs for the most important tilt. Kelly, of Recapture, tickled the wood for a game of 140 and set of 315.

American U. Five Wins at Ashland

Special to The Washington Post.

Ashland, Va., Jan. 7.—Randolph-Macon's Yellow Jackets bowed to the American University five tonight on the local floor in the initial clash of the year for the home five. Early in the fray the Washington cagers took the lead, to end the half with a 23-to-12 lead and carried on in the closing period to finish the game, 37 to 20.

Soon after the game got under way, Fuchs dropped one in for the Eagles to start things. About midway the half, after the game had been held very close, American opened up and, led by Olsen, Fuchs and Sells, piled up a comfortable lead in a few minutes. Beall rallied the Sheppardites for a few minutes, but was unable to match shots with the visitors.

Both teams returned after the rest period, determined to put the game away, if possible, but fight as they would, neither side was able to make much headway. Randolph-Macon was successful in stopping the opponents' big guns, but its own offensive also was quite ineffective.

Olsen, Sells and Fuchs led the attack for the visitors, while Charlie Beall was outstanding for the Jackets. He was aided greatly by the work of Later and Birdsong.

Eastern Is Winner Over Training Five

Reserves Show Power as High Tossers Win 11th in Row, 38 to 21.

Eastern High School's Basket Ball Team won its eleventh consecutive victory of the season yesterday afternoon at Eastern when it downed a smoothly functioning National Training School five, 38-21.

Eastern's reserve strength was given a test during the game and was not found wanting. The regular combination of Waters, Courtney, Davis, Kane and Zola did not enter the game until the last half of the last quarter, after their understudies had put the game on ice.

The score at half time was 21-5, produced through the fine form shown by Essex and Edelin, two minor figures on the light Blue and White squad. National Training showed a better team than was expected and matched the Easterns step for step throughout the second half.

Noel, Training School Ringmen Meet Tonight

The Noel House boxing team will be seeking its second victory of the season tonight when it tangles with the National Training School ring team at 7:30 o'clock in the Noel House gym. Eleven bouts are on the program and a capacity crowd is expected to witness the match.

The Noel House defeated the Christ Child team in its only appearance this season. The Training School squad trimmed the Boys Club mittmen in its debut and was in turn trounced by the Knights of Columbus in its second engagement last week. The bouts are as follows:

70 pounds—Pat Cechinni (N. H.) vs. Harry Hicks (N. T.); 85 pounds, Ernest Stasuli (N. H.) vs. Chris Albans (N. T.); Vincent Buonovitri (N. H.) vs. John Perrin (N. T.); 95 pounds, Billy Maxwell (N. Marines and Vic's Frown on League

Proposed Semi-Pro Circuit Finds Only Three Teams Still Interested.

Plans for the early formation of an independent semipro basket ball league received an unexpected setback yesterday when the Quantico Marine and Vic's Sport Shop quintets announced that they were unalterably opposed to entering such a league. The withdrawal of these two leaves but three teams still interested. These are the Skinker Eagles, French's and Howitzer Giants.

In speaking for the Marines, Lieut. McKenna, athletic officer of the post, declared that the team was not desirous of forfeiting its amateur status as the schedule contains a number of games with college and A. A. U. teams which would necessarily be cancelled should the Quantico five enter the proposed loop. The Sea Soldiers also plan to enter the District A. A. U. tournament at the termination of its regular schedule.

In denying that his team was interested in the league, Manager Vic Gauzza pointed out that the financial risk involved was too great. The Sport Shop five has booked a number of the leading road teams of the country for appearances in this city, which Gauzza is confident will attract more court fans than would a league composed of the leading independent teams of the city.

G. W. Frosh to Swim At Baltimore Tonight

The first freshman swimming team in the recent athletic history of George Washington University will make its bow tonight in Baltimore against the Friends School swimmers, of that city.

On the yearling outfit will be Dick Lane, Andy Litscomb, Alex Litman and Charles McMillen, sprint men; Matheson and Royce, breast stroke; Flack, backstroke, and Biesada, diving.

COMPANY F AHEAD.

A field goal by Burdette Cogar, and a foul shot by his brother Fenton, in the extra period, turned the tide of victory in Company F's favor in its game with Fort Washington at Hyattsville last night. The final score was 26-25.

ACACIA MUTUAL LIFE REPORTS PROGRESS

Insurance in Force Totals $364,500,000; Policies in Year, $38,000,000.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

An analysis of year-end statistics of Acacia Mutual Life Association by President William Montgomery of that institution, made public yesterday, reveals an impressive record of progress. The figures which have just become available, demonstrate that in face of generally unfavorable business conditions, the association advanced notably during last year.

"As a result of gains during 1931," Mr Montgomery pointed out, "Acacia's insurance in force now totals more than $364,500,000. During the twelve months our placed business reached the most encouraging aggregate of approximately $38,000,000.

"Throughout the year, Acacia's position was remarkably strengthened as a result of the vigorous conservation policy pursued. It long has been our contention that conservation is of the most vital importance, and for many years we have given it much attention. The correctness of this viewpoint was never so clearly demonstrated as it was during 1931.

Progress in December.

"The month of December continued and emhasized the year's record of progress, with the net gain figure standing at more than $1,330,000 and with a 15 per cent improvement in the net lapse as compared with the previous month. Furthermore, our mortality was exceptionally good not only in December but all during the past year."

Acacia Mutual Life Association, one of the country's outstanding old-line companies, is an important factor in the economic life of the District of Columbia. More than 400 persons are employed at its home office building, First street and Indiana avenue northwest, from which are directed the activities of branches in all principal cities.

In an address to employes recently, Mr. Montgomery assured them of continuity of employment, asserting that the association will continue to maintain its entire personnel intact.

Richard A. Norris, chairman, educational committee, Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, announces examinations for first semester work will be held as follows:

Rooms Open Each Night.

Chapter rooms will be open on each of these nights, and examinations will start promptly at 7:30 o'clock. There has been a total of 256 enrollments in first semester classes and of this number 239 have qualified for the final examinations.

The industries most favorably situated today are those which invariably cater to the imperative day-to-day needs of individual consumers, says the Standard Statistics Co. of New York in a survey which continues in part:

Sales volumes of these industries reflect the fact that the irreducible minimum of demand, even in depression, is at a high level. Profits are influenced either by relatively fixed sales prices or by marked gains in the efficiency of distribution. The divisions of industry thus enjoying comparative stability comprise the following: Chain stores, cigarettes, dairy products, electric and gas utilities, package foods, specialty bakeries and telephones.

Industries in Group.

Included in a group, prospects of which are better than average, are industries that likewise supply individual consumer needs, but the products of which are less indispensable, selling prices vulnerable to the effects of intensive competition or product subject to heavy seasonal fluctuations. These industries comprise automobile parts, automobiles (passenger), beverages, flour and feed, heavy chemicals, medicines and drugs, metal containers, refrigeration, sulphur and welding supplies.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—Union Pacific's net income for 1931 is estimated at $9.50 a share. This would compare with $15.56 a share in 1930. Loss in nonoperating revenues from dividend omissions and reductions on rail securities held as investments will be reflected to a greater extent in this year's results than in the 1931 accounts.

Since England's abandonment of the gold standard the country has received more than £15,000,000 from India and another £5,000,000 is in shipment, according to advices to local banks. Much of this metal has been sold in the London open market to continental buyers, but about £6,500,000 has been reshipped to New York.

Southern California Edison Co. will spend about $11,397,000 in 1932 for improvement of service lines and other betterments.

Wall street is keenly interested in the coming news developments on U. S. Steel Corporation. Directors meet January 26 for dividend action on the common and preferred and to release the earnings statement for the final quarter of 1931. There is also a possibility that the price for employes' subscriptions for common stock will be announced this month.

General Electric Co. gained 33,323 new stockholders in 1931, it was announced today. The total number of stockholders in December was 150,073, the largest in the company's history. Of this number 9,590 were owners of the special stock.

The 4 per cent drop in Electric Power output last year was mainly the result of decreased industrial activity. Domestic consumption held up well, showing increases in many districts. Utility executives consider the year's output figures favorable, in view of the very sharp recession in business.

S. H. Kress & Co. December sales were $11,221,097, or 7 per cent below the same month of 1930. Sales for the year were $69,041,925, off 0.03 per cent.

Wall street believes the long string of decreases in U. S. Steel Corporation's monthly unfilled tonnage figures may end with the December statement, to be released on Saturday. If an increase is shown, it will doubtless be small, and due to year-end book adjustments.

In the Mahoning Valley, 21 of 68 open hearth furnaces were operating at midweek. This is unchanged from the average number active last week and seven less than those melting at this period last year.

Plans for the formation of a protective committee for minority stockholders of the American Cigar Co were announced today. It will be organized by Robert Lehman, of Lehman Bros.; Maurice Newton, of Hallgarten & Co., and John Fay, of Farnum, Winter & Co. The committee will request minority stockholders to closely examine American Tobacco Co.'s offer of purchase of their shares before accepting. American Tobacco owns a majority of the common and preferred stock of American Cigar.

Shipments of Chrysler-built cars in 1931 totaled 270,927 cars and trucks compared with 266,169 in 1930. Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the company, points out that the increase is in contrast with a considerable falling off for the industry as a whole.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. was reported in Wall street today to have arranged to place its holdings of Western Maryland Railroad stock in trust with the Chase National Bank pending outcome of rail consolidation plans.

No comment was available at the New York office of Baltimore & Ohio. The arrangement, it was reported, provides for Baltimore & Ohio to retain deposit certificates of the Western Maryland stock while Chase, as trustee, would vote the stock.

Southern Pacific Railroad Co. will redeem $12,000 of its first refunding mortgage gold bonds for the sinking fund. Bids are invited for the surrender of such bonds not later than February 29, at prices to be named by the bidders. Similar tenders are requested from holders of Southern Pacific Co.-San Francisco Terminal first mortgage bonds to the amount of $5,819, and Central Pacific Railway first refunding mortgage bonds to the amount of $25,000.

STOCK PRICES CLOSE HIGHER AFTER DROPS

Cheerfulness Resists Attack of Profit Taking; Sales, 2,181,999 Shares.

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The stock market kept its head above water today, buoyed by the strength of railroad securities in particular and its own latest cheerfulness campaign in general.

At their best, prices were 1 to 5 points higher, but these gains were reduced by profit taking. However, the market's ability to close higher was encouraging, even though, as seemed evident, much of the buying represented short repurchases. Wheat and corn firmed moderately. Stock trading was more active at 2,181,999 shares. The average net advance amounted to about a point.

Apprehensivenes toward railroad affairs appeared to have been considerably allayed, doubtless because of measures already undertaken to tide over the weaker links in the transportation chain and because of the widely held belief that a cut in wages is to be taken voluntarily. Carrier stocks and bonds rallied confidently, equities rising 1 to 5 and loan securities roughly 1 to 8.

Stronger Rail Shares.

The stronger shares included Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Atlantic Coast Line, New Haven, Santa Fe and Norfolk & Western. Several preferred issues enjoyed a much better market.

Neither American Telephone, General Motors nor General Electric was able to accomplish much during the rally, but United States Steel was 2½ points higher at the top; it lost just half the rise. Reynolds B, American Can, International Harvester, Gillette, Hudson Motor, Johns Manville and Wrigley were up a point or more at the close. Oils were firm.

Although the reconstruction corporation may not get through Congress this week, as had been indicated before opposition developed, Washington dispatches said passage was assured. Wall street circles hope there will be as little delay as possible in the enactment of this legislation, holding that an important part of its value lies in the speed with which the corporation can go to work.

The return of funds from interior banks reached larger proportions and call money was reduced to 2½ per cent on the stock exchange, this marking virtual completion of the year-end swing. There was no change in other interest rates, although commercial paper was more active.

Money Circulation Rises.

Currency circulation rose $28,000,000 in the week ended January 6 and is now $897,000,000 above a year ago. Total Reserve Bank credit dropped $281,000,000; the central banks' discounts, bill purchases and holdings of Government securities declined sharply, reflecting usual adjustments after the turn of the month and year.

Good export sales continued to influence wheat, which closed with major fractional gains. Smaller Black Sea shipments and cold weather in the Southwest were other factors. Corn closed steady to firm, but cotton was a little easy at the finish, off 1 to 4 points.

Sterling rallied more than 4 cents, perhaps on reports that the outlook for a balancing of the British budget was brighter. The French franc was heavy and German marks reacted slightly.

BOND MARKET RISES WITH RAILS LEADING

Trading Is Buoyant, Despite Some Profit Taking; Foreigns Strong.

New York, Jan. 7 (A.P.).—The bond market climbed to higher levels today, with the rails leading the rest of the list by several lengths. Although thinness marked the trading, all classes of securities took part in the ascent. The average for 60 corporate issues registered a gain of 1 1-10 points, and sales totaled $13,492,000, slightly under yesterday's aggregate.

Transportation liens displayed buoyancy from the start of the session and, although there was apparently some profit taking, they ended the day with gains of from 1 to 8 points. Baltimore & Ohio bonds were the spectacular performers, the refunding 6s jumping 8 points on few sales.

Bonds of Other Roads.

Bonds of other roads adding from 1 to 5 points to their prices included those of Atchison, Boston & Maine, Canadian National, Central Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Burlington, Great Western, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Southern, Union Pacific and Wabash.

Foreign bonds were strong, heaviest trading being in the German 7s and 5½s. The latter gained 2½ points, while the 7s lost a fraction after being up around 4 points. Finland Municipal 6½s, series A, advanced 8¾ points.

South Americans were active in the advance and Japanese loans were steady. Canadians were up around 1 point.

Federal Issues Higher.

United States Government obligations closed irregularly, although they sold at higher prices during most of the session.

Strength in the foreign as well as the domestic list was attributed to the growing belief that the European debt situation is rapidly approaching adjustment and that industry in the United States will benefit greatly by formation of the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation.

Actual constructive news was lacking, although various optimistic rumors were current in the financial district.

HOOVER GIVES $7,500 MORE AS CAMPAIGN OF CHEST IS BEGUN

Civic Leaders at Banquet Applaud Increase to $10,000 Total.

CHIEF JUSTICE HUGHES' DONATION ALSO LARGER

Head of Rockefeller Foundation Tells Why Drive Should Succeed.

Civic leaders who will take part in the Community Chest drive were inspired with fresh enthusiasm at a dinner meeting last night at the Mayflower Hotel when announcement was made that President Hoover has donated $7,500 to the Chest besides the $2,500 he has given the District employment committee. The dinner marked the launching of the campaign of special gifts unit, which ends January 22.

The 500 or more men and women, a great many of whom made up the special gifts unit of the Chest, burst into prolonged applause when Clarence Aspinwall, chairman of the dinner, made the announcement prior to the program of speeches and entertainment. The sum donated by the President is 275 per cent more than he gave last year.

Announcement was also made that Chief Justice Hughes will subscribe 50 per cent more than he did last year. Messages wishing the workers success in the drive toward a goal of $2,601,000, almost $1,000,000 of which has been given by Government employes, were received from Speaker Garner of the House and Vice President Curtis.

Dr. Vincent Chief Speaker.

The gathering, representing a cross-section of civic and social life of the Capital, was fired with augmented encouragement by an address from Dr. George Vincent, president emeritus of the Rockefeller Foundation, who was the principal speaker.

He declared that the Washington Chest organiaztion has the main essentials to make the campaign a success—"an ideal that takes the imagination by storm, and a definite, intelligible plan to carry that ideal out in practice." As a further prescription for success, he suggested "doing the work without consciousness of making a sacrifice and having the time of your life doing it."

Five-minute talks were made by Coleman Jennings, president of Associated Charities, and captain of team 1 of the special gifts unit; Edward F. Colladay, campaign chairman, and Elwood Street, director of the Chest. Invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, while Mgr. Eugene Connelly, pastor of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, offered the benediction.

Capital Doctor and Society Girl Wed in New York City

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond T. Holden, jr., who were married yesterday in New York City. The bride was formerly Miss Margaret E. Burch, of 1827 Belmont street northwest, who made her debut four years ago.

Dr. Raymond T. Holden and Miss Margaret Burch Telephone News.

A romance of less than a year culminated yesterday in the marriage of Miss Margaret E. Burch, daughter of Preston Burch, Washington sportsman, and Dr. Raymond T. Holden, prominent young physician of this city.

The marriage, which was performed in St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City, came as a surprise to friends and relatives of the couple. They left late Wednesday night with a group of friends, presumably on a pleasure trip to New York. A long-distance telephone call to their parents announced the wedding.

Miss Burch, who is 23 years old, is a graduate of St. Timothy's School near Baltimore, Md., and made her formal debut in Washington society about four years ago. She is widely known in local social circles and for some time has been operating a book shop on Connecticut Avenue. The couple met last summer.

Dr. Holden, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Raymond T. Holden, Sr., is a graduate of Georgetown Medical School, and for a number of years has been conducting a joint practice with his father at 3111 Sixteenth Street northwest. He is a member of the staffs of Providence, Columbia and Gallinger Hospitals, and is an assistant instructor at Georgetown. He is 27 years old.

Dr. and Mrs. Holden, Jr., are expected to return here shortly to make their home. The bride lived with her family at 1827 Belmont Road northwest.

INFANT IS RESCUED BY MOTHER IN FIRE

Yule Tree Short-Circuit Is Blamed for $3,000 Blaze in Home.

An eleven-month-old girl was saved by her mother last night as a fire, believed to have started through a short circuit in Christmas tree wiring, swept through two rooms with $3,000 damage.

Mrs. Raymond W. Carpenter, of 615 Franklin street northeast, was preparing supper when the fire broke out. Her baby, Helen, was in her carriage in the dining room, adjoining the room in which the fire started.

A red glare reflected in the glass of the front door gave Mrs. Carpenter her first intimation of danger. She caught a glimpse of it as she stepped from the kitchen for a moment. The mother rushed into the dining room to find that the flames had just leaped across the threshold there, and were lapping curtains directly over the child's carriage.

Mrs. Carpenter hurriedly wheeled her baby from the flaming home and then called the fire department. The fire was halted before it had spread from the front and dining rooms and hall.

Insurance adjusters said they believed the fire had started from a short circuit, probably in the wiring of the drying Christmas tree. They estimated damage to the interior of the house at $1,500 and to furniture at $1,500 additional.

The child suffered slight burns about the forehead and was treated by a private physician. Mr. Carpenter said the baby was not badly hurt and the physician was called as a precautionary measure.

Public Again Is Warned Against Old Fur Fraud

The public is again warned by the Merchants and Manufacturers Association against the purchase of furs from salesmen on the streets of Washington, who are selling from automobiles bearing other State licenses.

Many of these furs have been brought to expert furriers to be appraised, by the purchasers who have learned that these furs were imitation and worthless, and they have been victims of fraud.

Woman Seeks $25,000 For Falling in Store

Laura M. Grant, 1215 Eighth street northwest, yesterday sued the American Stores Co., for $25,000 because of injuries she sustained in a fall in one of the company's stores at 712 K street northwest, June 18, 1930.

Attorney Tracy L. Jeffords, for the complainant, alleged that she fell over a hole in the floor and suffered serious injuries.

Bid of Industrial Firm Low on Repair Shop Job

The Industrial Engineering & Construction Co., was the lowest bidder on the job of constructing an addition to the District repair shop, Roland M. Brennan, chief clerk of the engineering department, revealed yesterday, when bids were opened. The low estimate was $21,242.

Thirteen bids were submitted. The highest was $28,400.

DATE IS POSTPONED ON TAXICAB METERS

Utility Commission Relents and Plans to Await Decision on Appeal.

The Public Utilities Commission relented somewhat on its order requiring all cabs to be equipped with meters and postponed the effective date from Sunday until 60 days after the District Supreme Court renders a decision on the appeals of the City and Bell Cab Cos., providing the order is upheld.

The commission sought stubbornly to put the order into effect as scheduled, but was forced to abandon its position because of the tardiness of operators in obtaining meters. Formerly, William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, had told Justice Jesse C. Adkins the commission would refrain from prosecuting delinquent operators providing they could show they were making efforts to obtain meters.

A resolution by the House of Representatives asking Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman, to rescind the order was chiefly responsible for the sudden postponement, it is believed, as otherwise the announcement might have awaited a ruling on the appeals.

Gen. Patrick and Mr. Roberts called on Representative Thomas Blanton, of Texas, yesterday, but were unsuccessful in convincing him that the meter cabs would be preferable to the zone system.

Justice Adkins today will hear arguments from Mr. Roberts and from counsel of the Bell and City Cab Cos. and probably from People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech as to the validity and fairness of the meter order.

Youth, 17, Defendant In Action for $25,000

Albert Howard, 323 B street northeast, yesterday brought suit in the District Supreme Court against Lloyd Llewellyn, 17 years old, of 3024 Otis street northeast, for $25,000 damages.

Through Attorneys Herbert P. Leeman and Charles Dean, Howard charged that he was seriously injured when an automibile driven by Llewellyn collided with a car in which he was a passenger November 16 at Thirty-fifth street and Bladensburg road northeast.

Parked-Car Right Debated in Court

Motorist Haled Before Judge Claims Permission to Move Car.

A Police Court debate between Assistant Traffic Director M. O. Eldridge and Leeland A. Cline, 3750 Oliver street northwest, over the question of whether or not Cline was violating a police regulation when he pushed an automobile at Fourteenth and Park road northwest so that he could park his machine, was continued yesterday to enable Cline to produce the owner of the pushed car in court.

Cline was in court on a warrant sworn out by Eldridge. When he said he was pushing the other automobile with the owner's permission, Judge Isaac R. Hitt continued the case to get the owner in court today.

Just Playing Next Door, Child Lost 4 Hours Says

To bed without supper.

That was the order for Maxine Klein, 7 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Klein, 1810 California street northwest, when she appeared at her home at 7:45 o'clock last night following a four-hour search for her.

The child disappeared shortly before 4 o'clock when she was due home from school and her mother, nearly frantic with suspense, appealed to children of the neighborhood. A scouting party of 25 boys and girls searched alleys, doorways, playgrounds and other girlish haunts in vain.

Finally at 7:45 the little girl walked into her home and when an explanation was demanded, calmly informed her parents that she had been—

"Just playing next door."

ROVER STARTS WAR AGAINST SALACIOUS BOOKS' CIRCULATION

Bookstores and Libraries Are Warned to Clean Their Shelves.

PROSECUTOR EXTENDS MAGAZINE CAMPAIGN

Storekeepers Are to Be Held Personally to Blame for Banned Volumes.

Salacious books now gracing the racks of circulating libraries and book stores will have to go.

This ultimatum was issued last night by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, whose drive last week to force "dirty" magazines from the city's news stands has thus far resulted in the arrest of 133 persons who were found to have for sale copies of one or more of five different magazines.

Protests against the tenor and themes of many books now obtainable from circulating libraries and other places yesterday brought from Mr. Rover the statement that whenever his attention is called to any publication that steps beyond the bounds of public decency he will take immediate and decisive steps to impound all copies of the publication and bring to court those found to have them for public consumption.

"Intimate Stories" Banned.

Two story magazines of the type generally known as "Intimate Stories," were thrown off the local market two weeks ago, and following that Mr. Rover and one of his assistants, Wilbert McInerney, closely perused three humorous magazines that usually played upon banned subjects for their laughs.

After careful consideration, Mr. Rover decided he could get convictions if he arrested those selling the magazines, and a police campaign against the retailers was begun. What will be the outcome of this campaign is unknown, for the first cases have not yet been tried. The first batch come up for motions tomorrow in Police Court. A fine of $25 or more, or imprisonment, awaits those found guilty of selling indecent publications.

The situation as to books was brought to Mr. Rover's attention yesterday, and last night the first steps looking toward suppression of the books found objectionable, together with the arrest of those found responsible for their presence here, were being taken.

Booksellers to Be Warned.

As fast as responsible persons can bring to the attention of the authorities books that are considered lacking in decency, the proper steps will be taken to bring to court the offending persons.

Policemen will be detailed to make the rounds of book shops to warn the proprietors that they will be held personally responsible for the books found in their stores. Such a step is being taken to enable innocent storekeepers to get rid of the more objectionable books.

Unless speedy cooperation is shown by the proprietors in getting the books away from the counters, arrests will be made and prosecutions will be in order.

The names and authors of books that yesterday were placed on the list of indecent publications was withheld by Mr. Rover, who said that he desired more time before taking final action. The campaign against salacious books and magazines was brought to public notice through The Post last week.

13 Auto Fatalities Here in December

397 Injured and 3,805 Arrests Were Made on Traffic Charges.

During December thirteen persons were killed in automobile accidents and 397 injured in the District, according to police records made public Wednesday.

In the same period in 1930 14 were killed and 326 injured and during December, 1929, 9 met death and 332 injured. Property damage resulting from traffic accidents was lower during last December than in the same period for the previous two years. The records reveal 511 property damage cases for December, 1931; 549 for December, 1930, and 769 for December, 1929.

During the last Christmas month, there were 3,805 arrests for various violations of traffic regulations, and of this number, 774 were for violation of miscellaneuos parking regulations. Five hundred and twenty-six arrests were made for disobeying official signs, 484 for parking abreast, 367 for parking overtime, 269 for speeding and 71 for reckless driving.

YEAR'S MORATORIUM ON LAND TAX SALES REJECTED IN HOUSE

Substitute Proposal May Be Introduced by King in Senate.

LONGER PERIOD OF GRACE SUGGESTION OF UTAHAN

Delinquents Would Be Given From 4 to 5 Years to Pay Under His Plan.

A new proposal to combat alleged tax sales racketeering in Washington followed yesterday on the heels of the House District committee's failure to take action on Chairman Mary T. Norton's proposed year's "moratorium" on sale of property for delinquent taxes in the District.

Holding that Mrs. Norton's plan would not have remedied the alleged tax racket here, Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, said he may introduce a bill in the Senate extending the period of grace granted delinquents to four or five years, instead of the present two.

Lower Interest Is Aim.

While he has not worked out the details of the measure, he said, his plan would hit the racketeer by not permitting the District government to sell the delinquent's property until the full period had expired.

Meanwhile, interest would accumulate at less than the present rate of 1 per cent a month. The property would be redeemable by the owner at any time during the grace period by payment of back taxes and accumulated interest.

Sales Scheduled Next Week.

Mrs. Norton's proposal, which was disapproved by the Commissioners, would have postponed this year's delinquest sales, scheduled to take place next week, until 1933.

At Wednesday's meeting of the House District committee an alternative proposal of Jesse C. Duke, local attorney, was substituted for her bill. It would have extended by one year the period in which delinquent property could be redeemed. The proposal was doomed when Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), Texas, raised a point of order.

Glassford Denies Police Prosecute

Chief Says That Patrolmen Must Avoid Interest in Convictions.

Police are not prosecutors, according to a statement published in the Daily Police Bulletin yesterday by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, and should never present evidence spurred by personal desire to secure a conviction or to justify an arrest.

The statement was published by the chief of police in repudiating an article published Wednesday in one of the afternoon papers here, in which it was said that he remarked "Not bad for a beginner" when a man he arrested for begging was sentenced to 30 days in jail by a police court judge.

In his statement yesterday, Gen. Glassford declared that convictions and sentences are entirely within the province of the courts, and the police must avoid any personal interest in them, but that they are responsible that arrests are made in a legal manner.

Truck Driver Is Held In Injury of Woman

An elderly woman suffered a fractured hip and a truck operator was held at the First Precinct as the result of an accident yesterday afternoon on Fifteenth street near New York avenue.

Mrs. Caroline Walker, 73 years old, of 3317 Wisconsin avenue northwest, was knocked down by a five-ton truck operated by Volman G. Rhodes, 29 years old, of Alexandria, Va. She was removed to Emergency Hospital for treatment. Her condition is undetermined. Rhodes was booked on a charge of reckless driving.

Mrs. Borden Harriman Gets Pet Dog Back

"Kim" is back home. "Kim" is a two-year-old police dog belonging to Mrs. Borden Harriman, prominent in Washington society.

The prized pet disappeared last Saturday, and an intensive search, in which newspaper advertising had its part, was instituted. Mrs. Harriman said the dog was returned by persons who had been looking after it for several days. She did not learn their names.

Capital Student's Suicide Laid to Worry on Slump

Took Life in New England Due to Poor Outlook, Relatives Think.

W. P. MONTGOMERY, Jr.

Brooding over depressed economic conditions brought William Penn Montgomery, jr., 20-year-old student at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, from this city, to take his life in a Manchester, N. H., hotel, relatives here believe.

Montgomery's body, a bullet wound through the head, was found in the hotel room Tuesday. He had registered under the name of J. C. Carter, of Pittsburgh. Papers indicated his actual identity, however. Late yesterday Mrs. Helena Johnstone Montgomery, mother of the dead youth, arrived from this city and made positive identification.

A keen student of sociology, Montgomery had taken a deep interest in workers' interests. During a recent textile strike in Lawrence Mass., he was arrested with several workers during a disturbance, but was later released. He said he was present during the strike to study social aspects of the situation.

Jerome E. Johnstone, of 1620 R street northwest, uncle of Montgomery, said last night that he attributed the boy's suicide to worry over economic conditions.

"The boy was afraid that despite his education and ability, that only a breadline awaited him when he graduated from college and faced the world."

Montgomery attended Western High School and other college preparatory institutions here. In 1927 he entered the Naval Academy at Annapolis and after two years there resigned to go to the Massachusetts school. His excellence in his studies there last year earned him a scholarship loan for this year.

Capt. William Penn Montgomery, U. S. A., father of the dead boy, died in July. His mother lives here with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Williams, 3307 Cleveland avenue northwest.

MEMORIAL SERVICE PAYS LARNER HONOR

Late Presbyterian Worker Described as Man Who Knew No Wrong.

Commemorating the activities of the late John B. Larner, a special memorial service was held yesterday morning at the Presbyterian Home, 1818 Newton street, of which Mr. Larner was the former president of the board of trustees.

The Rev. Joseph R. Sizoo, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, delivered the memorial address at the service, which was presided over by the Rev. John C. Palmer, vice president and acting head of the present board.

A framed portrait of Mr. Larner was presented to the home on behalf of the board of trustees by Dr. Palmer. It will be hung in the building.

Dr. Sizoo described Mr. Larner as "one who did not know how to do wrong, a steadying force in every forward movement." His entire life had been devoted to work in Washington, serving its charitable and business organizations. At the time of his death he was serving a score of Washington institutions, including the Washington Loan & Trust Co., of which he was president.

The speaker pointed out that Mr. Larner was the only member of the board of the Princeton Theological Seminary who was not a minister or an elder, it being the only time that a layman had been elected to the group.

Mrs. Brainard H. Warner presided at a meeting of the board of lady managers following the services.

Two new members were elected to the board of the Presbyterian Home at a meeting preceding the service. They are George W. White, president of the Metropolitan Bank and a member of the New York Avenue Church, and J. Harry Cunningham, president of the Lanman Engraving Co. and a member of the Washington Heights Presbyterian Church.

One man was arrested and 17 gallons of alleged whisky were seized when the First Inspection District vice squad, under the command of Sergt. R. A. Johnson raided the premises of an apartment at 1321 Belmont street northwest late yesterday afternoon.

William Joseph Durkin, 34 years old, of the above address, was arrested and taken to the First Inspection District, where charges of illegal possession were placed against him. He was released under $500 bond. The raid was executed upon a warrant.

2 Seized as Pamphlets Seek to Stir Violence

Two men were held at the Fourth Precinct last night for investigation in connection with alleged distribution of radical literature among the thousands of Pennsylvania unemployed here to ask Congress for relief.

Father James R. Cox, of Pittsburgh, leader of the workers here, characterized the pamphlets as not representing the views of either him or his followers.

Those held were Fred Hanover, 24, and Vincent W. McCormick, 24, both of whom said they were from Baltimore.

BOWMAN WILL HEAD RILEY CASE PROBERS

Appointed to House Group; Regular Subcommittees Are Chosen.

Headed by Representative Frank L. Bowman (Republican), West Virginia, leading congressional critic of the manner in which the Edith Riley case was handled, a subcommittee of the House District committee yesterday began an inquiry to determine the need for a congressional probe of local welfare activities.

Appointment of Bowman to the special subcommittee was announced yesterday by Mrs. Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, District committee chairman, who at the same time appointed nine regular subcommittees. Those named to serve with Bowman were Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, and Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), New York.

Representatives of the Board of Public Welfare, charged by Bowman with laxity in the Riley case, and a number of District officials, will be called before the special subcommittee. The three members will determine whether conditions in juvenile administration warrant further action by the committee.

The following regular subcommittees were named yesterday by Mrs. Norton:

Robbers Foiled by Alarm; Suspect Trapped by Victim

Stock in the holdup and robbery market was off a couple of points last night. While Jacob Taitelbaum, operator of a store at 1014 First street northwest, was aiding in the capture of a man he said held him up Wednesday night, the homemade burglar alarm of William J. Brewer was foiling the sixth attempt to rob his shop at 664 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Mr. Taitelbaum and his wife were forced to hand over more than $40 by a colored man who pointed a pistol at them Wednesday night. Last night about the same time a colored man entered the store and was waited upon by Max, Mr. Taitelbaum's 23-year-old son.

Max asked the man to wait a moment and in a low voice asked his father if he did not believe the man was the one who held up the store the night before. The storekeeper agreed that it was, and slipped out the back door and called police.

The young man returned to the customer and sold him a bag of candy. When the man left, Max followed in the store's delivery truck. Police soon arrived in the radio car and arrested the man who gave his name as Oake Wyche, of 701 First street northwest.

Mr. Brewer's printing shop has been successfully entered five times. He grew fearfully tired of coming down of a morning and finding that the side window was open and cash missing. So he rigged up an alarm which sounded for five blocks whenever any one touched the iron grating guarding the window. It sounded last night and frightened the thieves away. Some alarmed neighbor called police who found the window open but nothing missing.

CAPPER PROPOSES HEAVY SENTENCES IN FIREARMS BILL

POLICE INVESTIGATION WOULD PRECEDE SALE

None Convicted of Crime of Violence Could Carry Guns in District.

A District firearms law so drastic that offenders in some instances would be imprisoned up to 30 years, was proposed yesterday by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas.

Only where duplicate licenses, containing the photograph, signature and address of the owner, were filed with police, would possession of a gun be permitted under the bill.

Senator Capper, who will discuss the merits of the bill in a radio address at 11:30 this morning, modeled the measure after the uniform firearms act, which has received wide indorsement from organizations seeking to control indiscriminate sale of weapons.

Increase on Each Offense.

Under its terms, anyone committing an act of violence with a pistol on his person, would automatically have five years added to his sentence on first offense. On second offense the term would be increased to 10 years, third offense, 15 years, and fourth offense, 30 years.

No one convicted of a crime of violence would be permitted to carry a gun. A form blank would be given lawful applicants by the dealer, who would be required to turn it over to police within six hours after filed.

Police Would Investigate.

After an investigation the police department would instruct the dealer whether to proceed with the sale. The superintendent of police would be given power to license for one year only. Dealers would not be permitted to advertise weapons.

Under no condition would possession by an individual of a machine gun, tear-gas bomb, black-jack, slingshot, billy, sand club, sandbag, steel knuckles or a firearms silencer, be permitted.

Rail Case Participants Honor Deceased Lawyer

Attorneys and Interstate Commerce Commission officials, resuming the hearing on the four-road system railroad consolidation plan yesterday, paused to pay tribute to Louis E. Jeffries, vice president and general counsel for the Southern Railway, who died suddenly at the hearing Wednesday.

The official was eulogized by Chairman Claude Porter, of the commission, and by Attorney Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond. Afterward all stood for a moment in silence to his memory.

Eugene R. Woodson was installed as president of Washington Kiwanis Club at its luncheon at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday. Merritt O. Chance was the retiring president.

Mr. Chance was presented with a Gladstone bag. The installation ceremony was performed by Past Presidents John J. Boobar, Mark Lansburgh and Roe Fulkerson.

Sam Rice, Washington outfielder, was a guest. He was presented with a box of flowers. Bruce Baird and Claude H. Woodward were named directors. Wallets were given to eighteen members who did not miss a meeting in 1931.

New Officials Named By Merchants' Group

William S. Friel, of S. Kann Sons Co., was elected chairman of the Department Store Superintendents Section of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association at its monthly meeting at a luncheon in the Raleigh Hotel yesterday. Mr. Friel succeeds Mr. Mark Lansburgh who was chairman of this group last year.

Dr. Ruffin Improves; Dr. Walker Is Sinking

Dr. Ruffin, brain specialist, who treated President Wilson, has been at the hospital for seven days. Dr. Walker has been ill four weeks. He is at his home on the River road, near Bethesda, Md.
